Roosevelt Bid To 'Liberals' Is Defended By Sheppard

Relief Quiz Head Sees 'Nothing Improper' in Primary Actions.

Williams' Appeal Is Held Different

Distinction in Audience of Pleas for Votes Drawn by Texan.

By Robert C. Albright.

Chairman Sheppard, of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, yesterday declared there was nothing "improper" in the President's fireside pledge of aid for "liberals" or in any "general" speech Mr. Roosevelt might make in the States for liberal candidates.

Sheppard said in his opinion the President's Friday night appeal to voters "did not reach the line of undue influence." He drew a distinction between the President's proposed intervention and the "unfortunate" remarks of Deputy Works Progress Administrator Aubrey Williams to organized relief workers.

"The President's speech was addressed to the voters of the country at large. It would be the same thing if he spoke in the States to the voters of a Commonwealth as a unit. He would be expressing his personal opinion to the people of the State as a whole."

Difference in Audience.

"That is quite different from addressing his remarks to some group of employes, as Mr. Williams admits doing. Where Federal employes are brought together in a group, and such opinions are expressed, I think it is undue influence or so near undue influence as to constitute an inadvisable thing."

Sheppard said he thought Williams himself "would have the right to make a speech to the country as a whole on how he stood, so long as he was not giving orders or singling out a group of his own people."

These distinctions were drawn by the Senate committee chairman as another meeting of the group was called for today to consider a second letter from Williams explaining Works Progress Administration increases in wage rates in four States. It had followed reports that increases in Kentucky and Oklahoma, where there are sharply contested primary races, were higher than elsewhere.

Eaton Attacks New Deal.

The committee will put finishing touches on a questionnaire to be sent to all candidates for the Senate, seeking information on use of Government funds or official influence in primary campaigns. Sheppard and Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), Wyoming, yesterday completed a rough draft of the questionnaire. Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, will be present today, giving the committee a quorum. The other two members, Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, and White (Republican), Maine, are out of town.

Sheppard also promised committee consideration of a suggestion by Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota that absentee ballots were used improperly in the North Dakota primaries, where Nye is leading Gov. William Langer in a close race for the Senatorial nomination.

As the Campaign Expenditures group apparently dismissed the Williams address to organized relief

Candidates for Death

Jaywalker dares streetcar as he beats red light at Eleventh and F.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

There is probably no better way to find out whom to blame for Washington's traffic casualties—motorist, pedestrians, taxis, street cars—than to take a street car ride.

Stand behind the motorman of any Capital Transit car sometime and you'll soon develop an advanced case of what is commonly called the "traffic jitters" and you'll do it without a nervous temperament, too.

No. 1 in a Series

From such a point of view a Post reporter and photographer yesterday saw more traffic tangles in three hours than the traffic policeman at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue has seen in three weeks.

The city's legion of foolhardy drivers and pedestrians provided the observers with a few feats of neck-risking that would put a circus dare-devil to shame.

The street car traffic tour, guided by Inspector S. L. Mahanes, of the Transit Co., started at Seventeenth and H streets northwest. The "fun" started almost immediately.

A reckless young man on a motorcycle darted from an alley exit, gave his motorized steed the "gun" and shot in front of the car at right-angles.

He narrowly missed a woman who had stepped from the curb. Motorman Herbert Sowers had to jam on his air brakes to avoid a collision. The cyclist sped merrily on his way, never once considering the havoc he might have caused.

At Dupont Circle, ignoring traffic lights, and looking neither to the right nor left, an elderly woman tried to cross the street, weaving her way in and out among the maze of moving autos.

She was directly on the car tracks before she glanced up. Motorman Sowers again applied his brakes—in no uncertain fashion. The woman,

Messenger boy, in heavy traffic, darts between two streetcars.

Then she turned around and gave the passing motorists and street cars a tongue-lashing before continuing her hazardous trip across the avenue. (Incidentally, she made it.)

Another invitation to the accident ward at Emergency Hospital was sought by a young messenger boy near Connecticut avenue and Florida avenue. He, too, came from an alley on the opposite side of the street, pedaling furiously until he found an opening between Motorman Sowers' car and another moving street car ahead.

Into this opening he darted and escaped by the well-known "skin of his teeth." An entire line of traffic was forced to a standstill as motorists swerved to keep from striking the careless youth.

Left-turning drivers, apparently determined to keep going at any cost, provided observers with hair-raising examples of recklessness repeatedly.

Pedestrians, who by some manner had succeeded in reaching safety zones in the middle of the street, were marooned while autos, street cars and taxis whisked past on both sides.

All in all, yesterday's rush to "get there first" appeared to be a draw. And it's a good gamble that some of those who want to "get there first" will take a detour by way of the hospital—or the undertaker.

3 Armed Fugitives Hunted in Va. Hills

Covington, Va., June 29 (AP).—Officers continued their hunt of the Warm Springs Mountain area tonight for three colored convicts who escaped from a Bath County rock quarry after overpowering a guard and taking his shotgun and pistol.

The convicts—John Tune, 28; Tom Miller, 23, and Johnny Tann, 21—were reported to have exchanged shots with camp guards while fleeing. Bloodhounds were being used in the hunt.

Japan Flood Kills 100, Ousts 500,000

Tokyo (Thursday), June 30 (U.P.).—Nearly 500,000 persons were homeless in Japan today as a result of three days of violent rains which caused severe floods and landslides.

Police reported that 150,000 homes were flooded and it was necessary to quarter the refugees in schools and theaters.

One hundred persons were reported killed by landslides, and hundreds of police and squads of rescue workers searched the debris.

'Johnny Reb' and 'Yank' Chat At Gettysburg, 75 Years After

By Marshall Andrews.
A Staff Correspondent

Gettysburg, Pa., June 29.—Fifteen hundred old soldiers laughed and told stories together tonight to prove that in time and life's twilight are healed the hates that hurled them into mortal combat on this battlefield 75 years ago.

Some months ago when plans for this gathering were first being made there were indications that the blue and gray fighting boys of long ago could never suppress the emotions that made them soldiers, but there was no evidence today that the once fierce rivalry of North and South cannot be forgotten.

The contingent that camped tonight in tents overlooking the un-

Scheid Fired After a Row, Court Hears

Angry Words Preceded Slaying by Officer, Witness Says.

Prosecutor Intimates He Won't Ask Death for Policeman.

Theodore B. Daugherty, Washington musician and engineer, was shot to death less than an hour after an argument with Policeman Edwin Scheid, of Falls Church, now on trial for murder, Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas told the jury in Arlington County courthouse yesterday.

In support of his opening statement to the 12 middle-aged men, Douglas called Harry Frazier, of Falls Church, brother-in-law with whom Daugherty spent his last evening.

Frazier testified he overheard the conclusion of a conversation between his brother-in-law and the 23-year-old officer in the driveway of the Fraziers' Falls Church home shortly before 2 a. m., March 20.

Auto Followed Daugherty.

"Get the hell out of here and stay out!" Daugherty said to Scheid, according to Frazier. Scheid walked out of the driveway, and Daugherty, after saying good night to Frazier, drove his car onto the Leesburg pike, the testimony continued. As the Daugherty car disappeared, Frazier said, he saw another automobile with no headlights leave the driveway of the Scheid home across the pike and follow in the same direction.

In his preliminary remarks the prosecuting attorney said he would produce other witnesses who would tell of seeing a car with unlighted headlights pull up in front of another car on the Lee Highway the morning of the tragedy. The occupants of the pursuing car got out and approached the second machine, he declared. When its operator started to drive away, several shots were fired, Douglas asserted the witness would testify.

Defense Claims Duty.

Defense Counsel Frank Ball opened his case by telling the jury that Scheid and his fellow-officer, Herbert Knox, shot at Daugherty's automobile because it was their duty to do so. They were trying "to protect the citizens of Virginia from drunks returning from wild Saturday night parties," he said.

Toronto Alderman Consigns Hitler to Zoo; Nazis Protest

Toronto, June 29 (Canadian Press).—C. G. Kropp, German consul, protested today to Mayor Ralph Day against a recent remark by Alderman William Croft that the Toronto Zoo was so dirty "the only thing I'd put in there would be Hitler."

Kropp said he had been instructed by Dr. Erich Windels, German consul general at Ottawa, on behalf of the German government, to request that "the offensive remarks be withdrawn."

Mayor Day said "the matter would be given consideration."

Berlin, June 29 (AP).—Germany protested sharply to Czechoslovakia today, charging Reichsfuehrer Hitler recently was lampooned in elementary schools. Those responsible must be punished, the protest said.

Teachers Bar Speech From Legion Chief

N. E. A. Head Refuses to Let Doherty Reply to 'Fascism' Charge.

Veterans' Leader Says He'll Make Address Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press

New York, June 29.—A night gathering of the National Education Association came to an abrupt close at Madison Square Garden tonight when its president refused permission to Daniel Doherty, national American Legion commander, to address the delegates and guests.

Doherty had sought permission to answer the N. E. A. criticism of the legion which arose from an article published in the Columbia University Bulletin, stating that the legion controlled, or attempted to control, the activities of the N. E. A.

The commander, who said he had obtained the right to make his address from Willard Givens, N. E. A. executive secretary, after being referred to Givens by Miss Caroline S. Woodruff, president, this afternoon, said he would give his speech before the convention tomorrow morning.

LaGuardia Speaks.

Some 15,000 guests and delegates had just heard Mayor LaGuardia, a Legionnaire, appeal for a national education program when Miss Woodruff suddenly terminated the meeting.

The differences, brought into the open when Teachers College of Columbia released a book-length thesis written by William Gellerman, graduate student and former Legionnaire, continued today between Doherty and Dr. Frank Kingdon, president of the University of Newark, N. J.

Kingdon said the Legion should "co-operate more with the N. E. A. and it's up to the people to do something about it" while Doherty replied that the educator's remarks were "shallow thinking," adding that the Legion had always co-operated with the education group.

Says Session "City's."

Gellerman, in his thesis, said the Legion was "Fascist" and accused it of being manipulated by a small group of special interests. This prompted disputes among various individuals regarding the truth of the statements.

Questioned regarding the abrupt termination of tonight's meeting,

Stock Prices Rise Sharply as Public Re-enters Market

New York, June 29 (U.P.).—The stock market today whirled forward toward recovery, prices bounding upward in an amazing display of confidence.

With business barometers pointing upward for the first time in some months, public buying reminiscent of the 1929 boom swept into the market and lifted prices $1 to $7 a share to new highs since last autumn in the most active trading in eight months.

Economists were almost unanimous in their belief that this display of confidence on the part of the general public would make itself felt in business circles.

The advance was the eighth in the last ten sessions—a period in which some $7,500,000,000 has been added to market valuation of stocks.

Willis is publisher of a weekly newspaper in Angola, Steuben County seat, with a population of 3,000 in northeastern Indiana. He faces a three-cornered contest next November.

Senator Frederick Van Nuys Democrat, who fought the Roosevelt court enlargement bill last year, has announced his determination to run for re-election as an independent. The Democratic organization is planning to dump Van Nuys in their State convention two weeks hence in favor of a candidate

Langer Slices Nye Majority In Late Votes

Senator's Edge Falls to 7,000 as Delayed Returns Come In.

By the Associated Press.

Fargo, N. Dak., June 29.—Gov. William Langer cut sharply into the lead of United States Senator Gerald P. Nye, his rival for the Republican Senatorial nomination, in late primary election vote tabulations today.

At the halfway mark Nye, who had the indorsement of several of his liberal Senate colleagues, held a lead of approximately 15,000.

Returns from 1,994 of the State's 2,260 precincts, however, cut this to a little more than 7,000. At that point the count stood, Nye, 83,678; Langer, 76,515.

Hagan Leads Thoresen.

In the race for the Republican nomination for Governor, John W. Hagan, a Langer follower, picked up additional strength against Lieut. Gov. T. H. H. Thoresen, on Nye's progressive ticket, as late returns came in. Hagan had 76,565, to 73,005 for Thoresen, with 1,903 of 2,260 precincts tabulated.

J. J Nygaard held a commanding lead over Halvor Halvorson, and E A. Johansson, for the Democratic nomination for Senator, with 980 precincts counted. Nygaard had 13,160, Halvorson 4,693 and Johansson 1,358.

In the Democratic race for Governor, John Moses, "regular," was far ahead of his "progressive" opponent, Oliver Rosenberg. In 980 precincts, Moses had a total of 17,793, to 1,213 for Rosenberg.

Representative William Lemke and Usher L. Burdick apparently were renominated on the Republican ticket, their pluralities increasing in a field of six candidates. Lemke without indorsement, tallied 34,600

Italy Conciliatory.

By Joseph Driscoll.

London, June 29.—With two British destroyers racing for Majorca, it was established in official quarters in London tonight that the Italian government has promised to use its influence with Gen. Franco to prevent further bombings of British vessels.

Majorca is the Franco-held Balearic Island in the Mediterranean from which Italian planes have set out almost daily to bomb Spanish government ports and British and whatever other shipping might be found in the harbors. In retaliation for the attacks upon British ships, laborites and liberals have been urging Prime Minister Chamberlain to send warships to blockade Majorka and war planes to bombard the air base on that island. Chamberlain has resisted such proposals as likely to lead to another World War.

Movement "Routine."

Much speculation was aroused by the sudden dispatch of two destroyers, Imogen and Isis, from Gibraltar to Majorca. An admiralty spokesman explained that the two destroyers are attached to the Nyon patrol, and that the movement was a normal one in connection with their duties in the western Mediterranean. However, it is the custom to describe all naval movements as normal and routine—such as the significant concentration of the British navy in the Mediterranean in 1935, when Britain and Italy were on the verge of war over Abyssinia.

Perth Gets Assurance.

The British cabinet, at its weekly meeting this morning, discussed the repeated attacks on British shipping which have placed Chamberlain, in his role of friend to Mussolini, in an embarrassing position. In the House of Commons this afternoon, Chamberlain refused to say whether he had taken the matter up with Mussolini.

Nevertheless, it was learned that the matter was raised by Lord Perth, British Ambassador in Rome, when he saw Foreign Minister Cabinet Shaken.

By the United Press.

London, June 29.—Prime Minister Chamberlain's government, rocked by widespread anger against his "realistic" foreign policy, tonight faced a fight for existence in a storm generating on the official secrets act and a "leak" of air defense secrets.

A constitutional issue and the possibility of a major cabinet crisis, which Chamberlain has been struggling to avert, were involved in the controversy, which will be brought into the open with perhaps sensational disclosures in a House of Commons debate late tomorrow.

Duncan Sandys, Conservative member of Parliament and son-in-law of Winston Churchill, informed Commons late today that a military court of inquiry has summoned him to appear before it in uniform tomorrow, in his capacity of an officer of the territorial army.

Opposition Cheers.

He was instructed, he said angrily, to testify regarding the source of his recent House of Commons statement regarding British anti-aircraft weapons for home defense. He had described the guns minutely.

"The question is this," he shouted. "How far is it permissible to compel a member of Parliament to divulge the source of information used by him in discharge of his parliamentary duties?

"I submit to you that it is a gross breach of the privileges of this house that I should be summoned to give evidence before this military tribunal."

Government supporters sat in awkward silence as the speaker ruled that Sandys had "made out a prima facie case of breach of privilege."

"Parliament Supreme."

The privileges committee, including Chamberlain, opposition leader Clement R. Attlee, Churchill and Sir Archibald Sinclair, liberal leader, met an hour and then adjourned until tomorrow.

An early ruling for Sandys seemed likely. The military court would have to accept this decision.

Attlee said "this seems to be a very unusual case of breach of privilege; it appears to be a prima facie affront to the House."

Hore-Belisha Replies.

Hore-Belisha, made war minister in a cabinet reshuffled by Chamberlain, sat sphynxlike in the front benches during the debate until he was goaded by Laborite shouts and jumped up to defend his part in the incident.

"The army council reached the conclusion that an officer has been guilty of a breach of trust and it ordered an inquiry," he said. "That is the proper military procedure. There is no question of trespass-

CIO Opposition Makes AFL Aid Sen. Lonergan

Intra - Labor Strife Also Breaks Into Kentucky, Pa. Politics.

The political split in the ranks of labor, between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, reached such a state yesterday that the mere threat of C. I. O. opposition to Senator Augustine Lonegran (Democrat), of Connecticut, evoked warm A. F. of L. support for him.

Told C. I. O. "propaganda" was being spread against this foe of the President's Supreme Court and Government reorganization bills, William Green, A. F. of L. president and representatives of his allies, the railroad brotherhoods, indorsed Senator Lonergan for renomination and re-election, hailing him for "a 100 per cent record for American labor."

This was regarded in Washington as only another sign that the political division of organized labor has a Nation-wide scale.

Some time ago Mr. Green requested A. F. of L. members to have nothing to do with Labor's Non-partisan League, whose chairman is John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O. The league was considered an adjunct of the C. I. O., although at the time of its organization in 1936 it made connections with A. F. of L. unions and had George L. Berry, an A. F. of L. man, as president.

League Fights Senator Adams.

Severing of these connections has brought political labor fights all over the country.

In Colorado the local branch of Labor's Non-Partisan League has just indorsed Benjamin C. Hilliard, ardent New Dealer, to run against Senator Alva B. Adams, a Democrat who strayed from the White House on the court bill. The A. F. of L. is slated to back Senator Adams.

In New York two days ago the A. F. of L. publicly threw its support to Gov. Lehman in his candidacy for Democratic senatorial nomination. The American Labor Party, local affiliate of labor's Non-Partisan League, viewing the Governor suspiciously in this role, was pushing candidates of its own.

In Iowa the A. F. of L. enthusiastically indorsed Senator Guy M. Gillette, another Democratic foe of the court bill who was unsuccessfully opposed by the left-wing White House group in his primary. Not very strong in Iowa and therefore not very active, labor's Non-Partisan League was nevertheless fighting locally for Gillette's opponent, Representative Otha D. Wearin.

C. I. O. Backs Barkley.

In Pennsylvania a hot fight in the primaries found the A. F. of L. combating Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of Lewis' United Mine Workers and the C. I. O.'s losing candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The A. F. of L. went over to the Republican senatorial primary to fight the C. I. O. by backing Senator James J. Davis.

In Kentucky the C. I. O. jumped to the cause of renominating Senator Alben W. Barkley, Administration majority leader in the Senate. One result has been to cool the A. F. of L. into uncordial silence.

These and many other local intra-labor fights are taken to indicate no common labor front anywhere unless, as in the case of the Oregon gubernatorial Democratic primary, a candidate who is regarded as a common enemy bobs up.

'Son James' Sees Lawyer on Article About His Career

Rochester, Minn., June 29 (U.P.).—James Roosevelt, secretary-son of the President, commenting in a statement from St. Mary's Hospital tonight on an article in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post concerning his career as an insurance salesman, said that he was "naturally indignant over certain outright misrepresentations."

The statement, released by the hospital, said:

"At the repeated request of the press, the following statement has been prepared by Mr. Roosevelt at St. Mary's Hospital:

"Mr. Roosevelt has read the article. He naturally is indignant over certain outright misrepresentations. It is impossible to ascertain from the hospital and during the treatment exactly what further steps, if any, can be taken, but he has requested his attorneys to consider the matter for future reference."

"I still think the young man with wealth and everything handed to him has less chance to succed than the fellow who makes his own way, if he has the proper stuff in him," the dean of the Senate said earnestly to the Associated Press.

Times are pretty rough right now on young people, Borah went on, especially those who have training and can't find any kind of work. But he still believes those "with the right stuff" will do well.

"I hope to get in some kind of a vacation when details of the monopoly investigation are arranged," he said. This may include a visit with his namesake, William Edgar Borah, son of Judge and Mrs. Wayne Borah, of New Orleans. The judge is a nephew of the Senator.

Borah appears in perfect health, although he has a few more wrinkles than of old and his "lion's mane" is thinning. He still rides horseback for exercise and pleasure.

The New Deal has driven the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus to the wall, Republicans charged yesterday, in commenting on the close of the "big top" show. Through the Republican National Committee, Representative Bacon (Republican), of New York, issued a statement saying "the inevitable has happened" and adding:

"For 100 years the 'greatest show on earth' grew and prospered despite wars, droughts, fires and business depressions. Rain, storm, wrecks, even deaths, has never been able to stop the circus as the 'big tent' became an integral part of American life itself."

Then, telling of the closing he said:

His assertion brought a curt reply of "ridiculous" from Representative Dies (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the committee.

"We are not conducting a three-ring circus for publicity purposes," Dies told reporters. "Our investigators are in the field and when the proper groundwork has been laid, we will start hearings and not before."

Another approved measure will give widows and dependents of the 260 men who died 40 years ago in the sinking of the Maine increased pensions—$30 a month instead of $12. Congress passed the act after learning that the usual $30 pension was not permitted widows of Spanish War veterans who died in service prior to April 21, 1898, when diplomatic relations were broken off with Spain.

The Maine was sunk February 15, 1898, and these cases were ineligible for the usual pension.

Monopoly Quiz Meeting Called By O'Mahoney

Organization Slated Tomorrow; Sumners Due on Friday.

An organization meeting of the 12-man joint legislative-executive monopoly investigating committee, to outline the scope of the inquiry, was called for tomorrow afternoon by Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, yesterday.

O'Mahoney, expected to be named chairman of the investigating group, notified the five other Congressional members and the six executive department agents after Representative Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, telegraphed that he expects to be in Washington July 1 "ready for work," and expressing hope the full committee could meet at that time. Sumners, House Judiciary chairman, is facing re-election opposition in Texas from Thomas L. Love, former Democratic national committeeman.

Informal Talks Held.

"The meeting is called for purposes of organization and for the discussion of any matters which members may desire to present," said O'Mahoney. "The general tenor of the study and its scope will be discussed at the meeting."

Although informal conferences have been held between individual members since the six executive members were designated, tomorrow's meeting will be the first full committee conference. The first $100,000 appropriated for the inquiry will become available tomorrow. In addition the President is authorized to put another $400,000 at disposal of the six Government agencies participating in the investigation.

It was reported yesterday the Justice Department will lay before the committee information it has collected on alleged "identical" bids submitted on Government purchases by steel, rubber and cement industries.

Borah, King From Senate.

Besides O'Mahoney, Senate members of the joint committee are Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, and Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho. House members, besides Sumners, are Representative Eicher (Democrat), of Iowa, and Representative Reece (Republican), of Tennessee.

Representatives of the Government agencies designated by the President are Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, Chairman William O. Douglas of the Securities and Exchange Commission, General Counsel Herman Oliphant, of the Treasury; Isidor Lubin, chief of the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics; Chairman Garland Ferguson of the Federal Trade Commission and Assistant Secretary of Commerce Richard C. Patterson.

Envisions Broader Study.

O'Mahoney, in a recent interview, said the agenda is "a matter for the committee to decide," but declared he knew "of no reason why business should be alarmed" at the inquiry.

He said it is "much broader than a study of monopoly" and he saw the opportunity "for a constructive objective study of the entire economic system."

"This investigatoin," he said, "is an invitation to put our best thought together in order to develop a national rule."

O'Mahoney and Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, are joint authors of a bill providing for Federal licensing of all corporations, under standards set up in the proposed statute.

Broadened Income Tax Base Next Year Predicted by King

Senator Says Deficit Will Force Government to Lower Exemption Levels; Fiscal Year Ends Tonight, Debt at $37,125,000,000.

As the Government neared the close of its fiscal year with a public debt standing at $37,125,000,000, a ranking member of the Senate Finance Committee yesterday predicted Congress next year will have to dip into the lower income groups for more taxes.

"We will have to accept the La Follette view on income taxes," said Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, who in the absence of Chairman Pat Harrison, is acting head of the Finance Committee.

Senator LaFollette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, has sought to raise the normal rates in the lower income brackets and to cut individual exemptions from $1,000 to $800 and married exemptions from $2,500 to $2,000.

"Personally, I would hesitate to lower exemptions that much, but we may have to come to it," said King. "I think individual income taxes, not only in the lowest brackets, but particularly in the range between $25,000 and $50,000 may have to be raised."

New Bill "Inevitable."

King said a new tax bill next year is "inevitable," and he has been conferring with experts of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue in preliminary preparation.

Indications at the Treasury were that the Government will close its 1938 fiscal year books tonight with the eighth consecutive annual deficit, $1,400,000,000, for this year.

A $400,000,000 cut in spending under last year and a $1,000,000,000 increase in revenue, enabled the Government to cut the current deficit to about half of last year's. But with the new spending program just getting under way, some officials believe next year's deficit will more than double the present, and range between $3,000,000,000 and $4,000,000,000. That would raise the national debt to more than $40,000,000,000. Highest debt figure—$37,814,477,017—was reached March 12. The fiscal year will close with a figure $700,000,000 higher than a year ago.

Wants Economies.

Senator King said he was not advocating any sharp reduction in the debt by sudden application of steep taxes.

"The important thing now is not to increase the indebtedness, and to maintain our credit. We should pay current obligations and not borrow any more. And we should save money wherever possible by Federal economies.

"Corporations already are paying heavy taxes, and we should see how far recovery has progressed before we consider any additional taxes on business. We should not raise taxes so high as to damage business. The goal ought to be to retire the public debt as rapidly as we can, commensurate with business expansion."

No Aid From Moscow, Browder Says

New York, June 28 (AP).—Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist Party, today reviewed a series of charges which he said had been made against his party and replied to them.

It is not true, he said, that the Communists in this country receive instructions or financial aid from Moscow, or that they seek to stir up strikes and industrial disorders.

"Our party leadership," he said, "is educated in the spirit of democracy and the American tradition, and all the party's work is permeated throughout with this spirit."

Browder issued his statement prior to his scheduled appearance before a joint legislative committee holding hearings on law enforcement, where he said his party was "affiliated with an international organization"

Browder testified that his party does not dominate the Committee for Industrial Organization and said it has no more sympathy for it than for the American Federation of Labor.

Graphic Arts Guild Opens Conference In District Today

Registration for the seventeenth conference of printing education of the National Graphic Arts Education Guild, opening at the Washington Hotel today, neared completion last night, with approximately 300 delegates in attendance.

Last night, at an informal meeting of officers, Harold G. Crankshaw, instructor at Central High School, presided. Other officers include David Gustafson, of Chicago, vice president; Ferdy J. Tagle, of New York, secretary, and C. Harold Lauck, of Lexington, Va., treasurer.

Today at 10 a. m. the first business session will be opened by invocation by the Rev. A. P. Shirkey, pastor of Francis Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church South.

T. G. Parkman, president of the Washington Guild, will extend greetings, as will Gerald A. Walsh, manager of the Graphic Arts Association of Washington, and J. E. Zearfoss, head of the department of manual arts in Washington public schools.

George R. Keller, Washington manager of the American Type Founders Sales Corporation; Fred W. Hoch, New York supervisor of production management, United Typothetae of America, and George Welp, New York, of the International Printing Ink Corporation, will speak.

FSCC to Spend $79,000,000 To Bolster Prices, Feed Needy

By the Associated Press.

Officials said yesterday the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation would use the bulk of a $79,000,000 appropriation to buy fruits, vegetables and poultry and dairy products for distribution free to those on relief.

The money is available for removal of surplus farm products from regular market channels.

Government spokesmen said the decision to concentrate on buying fruits, vegetables and poultry and dairy products should prove beneficial to farmers not aided directly by production-control provisions of the new farm act, which apply mainly to staple crops like cotton and wheat.

A survey of food needs of approximately 2,500,000 families eligible to receive the commodities has disclosed a marked deficiency in their supplies of these products, it was declared.

Commodities bought this month include raisins, cheese, cane sirup, dry skim milk, grapefruit juice, prunes, flour, peaches and vegetables.

Foreign trade experts of the Agricultural Department said, meanwhile, that unsettled political conditions in Europe might open new and larger markets for surplus American wheat during the next year.

Prospects for larger sales in Europe were indicated, they said, by the recent decision of Great Britain and the Netherlands to accumulate reserve stocks of grain in preparation for a possible outbreak of war.

Authorities said other European powers were known to be considering similar action.

The Netherlands has begun the establishment of a system for maintaining at least two months' supply of wheat at all times. Grain importers and dealers would be held responsible for maintaining such stocks with subsidy assistance from the government. Little is known about the British plan.

Trade experts estimated that European wheat imports for consumption needs during the next year would be about 450,000,000 bushels, or about 50,000,000 more than during the last 12 months, with reserve stocks not included.

The Agriculture Department estimated yesterday the 1938 spring pig crop was 13 per cent greater than that of a year ago and that the number of sows farrow in the fall would be 9 per cent greater than last fall.

The spring pig production was estimated at 43,384,000 head, or 4,960,000 head more than last spring. Not since 1933 has the crop reached that figure, the department said.

'Russian Posters' Are Submitted as Harlan Evidence

London, Ky., June 29 (AP).—Brilliant-hued anti-religious and anti-capitalist posters, titled in Russian and bearing a "Printed in Moscow" mark, were placed in evidence by the defense in the anti-labor conspiracy trial here today in an effort to explain the attitude of Harlan County coal operators toward union activities.

Charles S. Guthrie, an operator defendant, identified them as having been seized in the U. M. W. A. office at Evarts, Ky., seven years ago after the "Battle of Evarts," in which two deputies, a mine commissary clerk and a miner were slain in a roadside fight.

Navy Allocates $23,000,000 For Auxiliaries

The United States yesterday fired the opening gun in its battle to keep its sea forces on a par with those of other maritime nations, as Acting Secretary Charles Edison allocated to four navy yards the construction of 10 auxiliary craft expected to cost approximately $23,000,000.

At the same time the Army received $48,000,000 of Public Works funds for barracks and other buildings at posts throughout the United States. Approximately $16,000,000 shortly will be made available from relief funds to defray labor costs of the military construction program, it also was learned.

The Navy is awaiting announcement by the Public Works Administration that $23,000,000 has been earmarked for building projects at naval stations on the East, West and Gulf Coasts. It is expected that an item of $1,500,000 for construction of officers' quarters at the Naval Academy will be included.

$3,000,000 Here.

Of the funds granted the Army yesterday about $7,500,000 will be spent in the National Capital or at military posts in nearby Maryland and Virginia. In line with the authorization of Congress included in the second deficiency bill, $3,000,000 was set aside for land and plans for a new War Department building, to be located in the area between C and D streets and Twenty-first and Twenty-third streets northwest.

Largest of the ships the Navy ordered was a 9,000-ton, $12,600,000 submarine tender, which was awarded to the Mare Island (Calif.) Navy Yard. A $1,746,000 contract for its Diesel machinery was given to the American Locomotive Co., Auburn, N. Y.

Two 700-ton minesweepers, costing approximately $2,500,000 each, and a 250-ton harbor tug, at about $500,000, will be built at the Norfolk (Va.) Navy Yard.

Seaplane Tenders.

At the Charleston (S. C.) Navy Yard, $1,000,000 will be spent in construction of two 250-ton harbor tugs. Two 1,650-ton seaplane tenders, costing $2,500,000 each, and two 250-ton harbor tugs, of an estimated value of $500,000 each, will be built at the Puget Sound (Wash.) Navy Yard.

Construction work to be undertaken at nearby military posts includes:

Maryland—Aberdeen Proving Ground, construction of barracks, noncommissioned officers' quarters and school, $848,000; Holabird Quartermaster Depot, construction of additional barracks, additional officers' and noncommissioned officers' quarters, $853,000, and Fort Meade, construction of additional barracks and cooks' school building, $900,000.

Virginia—Fort Monroe, construction of additional barracks, $335,000, and hospital modernization, $35,000; Fort Myer, construction of barracks and an addition to the hospital, $284,000, and Fort Belvoir construction of barracks, noncommissioned officers' quarters, garages and shops $985,100.

29 to Be Assigned.

Besides the ten naval auxiliaries allocated yesterday, 29 vessels, for which Congress provided funds, remain to be assigned to shipbuilders. Included are four $70,000,000 battleships, on which bids are to be asked next month.

Contracts are expected to be awarded shortly for the construction of four destroyers, three submarines and three fleet tugs. Bids on these small vessels were opened last week.

The 10 new auxiliary craft will increase to 67 the number of ships of all types under construction. This figure includes two 35,000-ton battleships. Thirty-two war vessels have been commissioned since last July 1.

In the next year the Navy expects to spend more than $200,000,000 on warship construction and enlargement of facilities of its own plants, expanding faster than at any time since the immediate post-war period.

The Army received its Public Works allotment despite the failure of Congress to authorize specifically a $107,000,000 list of projects, including many for which funds now have been assigned. The allocation was made with President Roosevelt's approval, PWA spokesmen said, under a section of the lending-spending act permitting the use of funds for "enlargement, extension or remodeling of existing Federal plants, institutions or facilities."

Mass for J. H. Bradley Sung at St. Joseph's

Requiem mass for John Henry Bradley, retired funeral director who died Sunday at his residence, 515 Seventh street northeast, were held yesterday at 9 a. m. at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. Burial was in the Mount Olivet Cemetery.

A native of Westminster, Md., Mr. Bradley came to this city at the age of 19 and later entered the undertaking business. He retired 11 years ago.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Annie B. O'Connell Bradley; a daughter, Mrs. Robert T. Creel, and three grandchildren.

Pink Lemonade, Clowns, Everything as Elks Fete Orphans

Roosevelt County Won't Ask PWA For Unneeded Aid

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 29.—The board of supervisors of Dutchess County turned a deaf ear today to prompting by the county's first citizen, President Roosevelt, to move fast if they wanted their share of PWA funds.

The President warned yesterday at his press conference that only 60 days remained before the deadline for filing applications for PWA allocations. He seemed surprised that his home county had not fallen in line with 3,100 others that have applied for a slice of the $750,000,000 appropriation.

The county supervisors, however, were disinclined to jump at the chance offered by the President. James D. McPhee, chairman of the board, said he didn't see why, "if we haven't got the projects, we should manufacture them," and Supervisor Clarence A. Bishop, of the town of La Grange, couldn't see "any good in just spending money."

U. S. Births Rise in '37 To 17 Per Thousand

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that there were 17 births per 1,000 population in the United States last year. In 1936, the figure was 16.7. Since 1915 the birthrate generally had been declining.

Thirty-two states and the District of Columbia had increased birthrates last year. New Mexico had the highest rate, 31.4, and New Jersey the lowest, 12.6.

Trio Held for Jury On NarcoticCounts

Three men were held to the grand jury yesterday on charges involving narcotics. All were arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

John E. Boyd, Silver Spring, Md., was held under $3,000 bail on seven charges of forgery and uttering involving prescription blanks for the purchase of morphine.

Nine "decks" of heroin were seized by agents with the capture of Chester A. Osborn in a downtown hotel. He was held under $3,000 bail on a charge of possessing the drug.

John J. Hannon, the third man, arrested at the same time as Osborn, was held under $500 bond. Federal investigators said they confiscated one-half "deck" of heroin from him.

FloristCorporation In D. C. Approved

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt approved yesterday an act to incorporate the American florists and ornamental horticulturists in the District of Columbia.

The bill provides that the organization will seek education of the public and members of the florist industry in scientific development of floriculture and horticulture.

The incorporators are florists and horticulturists of New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Indiana, District of Columbia, Illinois, Maine, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Iowa, Georgia, Louisiana, Michigan, Virginia, Ohio, Maryland, Connecticut and New Hampshire.

Race Track Bets Hinted as Motive In 'Coffin' Slaying

Northampton, Mass., June 29 (U.P.). Investigators hinted tonight they have discovered the "real motive" for South Hadley's "cement coffin" murder.

Although they declined to name the motive, they intimated that Charles Morris, the supposed victim, was not slain for his $755 bank savings and $700 automobile, which were obtained by John Paul Bathelt, jr., the alleged killer. It was reported unofficially the motive might involve race track bets.

While detectives strove to clinch identification of the wire-trussed, cement-encased skeleton as that of Morris, a 49-year-old, bush-bearded horse owner and race tipster, a New York automobile dealer was arraigned in district court and held in $500 personal recognizance as a material witness.

Junior Chamber Gives Boys Club $318 Check

The Boys Club of Washington was given a check for $318.65 by the Junior Chamber of Commerce last night as the two organization met at the headquarters of the southeast branch, Seventeenth and Pennsylvania avenue.

The check was presented to the boys' club secretary, Charles Fife, by Lyle O'Rourke, president of the chamber. The money represented the proceeds of the May benefit excursion that the chamber conducted. It will be used to send member of the Boys Club to summer camps.

Taxi Insurance Bill Is Signed By Roosevelt

Rate Increase Predicted Because of Liability Requirement.

President Roosevelt yesterday signed the District taxicab liability insurance bill which was passed in the closing hours of the Seventy-fifth Congress. The law becomes effective in 60 days.

The Public Utilities Commission announced Lloyd Harrison, assistant corporation counsel, would have ready shortly regulations to carry out the mandates of the bill.

The measure authorizes the commission to require all Washington cab operators, now close to 5,000, to file either bonds or insurance policies giving the operator liability up to $5,000 for physical injuries or death, and $1,000 property damages.

Local cab companies foresaw a rate increase as a result.

Personnel a Problem.

Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the commission, stated the added duties for the commission would produce a serious personnel problem and most likely would require the services of additional employes.

As enacted by Congress the new law permits a blanket policy, not to exceed $75,000, to cover any corporation or association of taxicabs. After the passage by Congress of the bill, the commission rescinded a year-old ban upon the formation of new taxicab companies.

Keech explained at the time the commission did not want to produce any hardship on the small companies and independent drivers, who would have to pay a rate estimated at $300 for insurance. Under the blanket policy plan any company having 100 members—and this is required by the commission in order to form an association—the fee would be reduced to approimately $75 per operator.

Ends Long Fight.

Passage of the taxi insurance bill culminated a campaign that has been fostered by the commission and organized motorists for several years. A year ago the drive achieved its first goal when the bill passed the House. Last March it passed the Senate and since then had been in conference.

Although some of the taxicab associations are heartily in favor of the blanket policy others claimed the individual policy regulation would have eliminated a number of undesirable drivers.

In some quarters it was predicted the taxicabs would ask for an increase of 5 cents to the zone, because of the increase in operating expenses. A hearing called by the commission would have to precede any increase. Riley E. Elgin, chairman of the commission, some time ago predicted a 5-cent increase would result following the passage of the law.

The commission has long maintained there are too many taxicabs on the Washington streets, and it is likely the number will be reduced substantially, relieving traffic congestion.

Deadline Extended.

Meanwhile taxicab operators were granted 15 days of grace beyond today to obtain their licenses to do business in the District, by order of the District Commissioners yesterday.

It was further ordered that each license, when issued, bear the notation:

"This license is issued upon condition that the licensee will conform to and comply with all orders of the Public Utilities Commission respecting uniform zones, rates and regulations applicable to the operation of taxicabs in the District of Columbia."

The extension of the deadline was recommended by the commission, which also recommended that no further extension be granted.

Palmisano Replies To Rival's Charge Of 'Numbers' Vote

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 29.—Representative Vincent L. Palmisano, chairman of the House District Committee, yesterday replied to charges by his opponent, City Councilman Thomas D'Alesandro, that Palmisano tried "to fasten the numbers racket on the city of Washington." He declared.

"Mr. D'Alesandro . . . apparently is referring to my opposition to a bill which would have permitted the police to obtain warrants in numbers cases without any other evidence than that obtained by observation . . . I opposed the bill . . . I would not have any home entered by officers who believed there might be lawbreaking going on there . . ."

"The home should be inviolate."

Palmisano said he was going out of the city for a "much needed" rest and that he was content to let his record stand as answers to other attacks by his foe.

Short-Weight Fines.

Fines in two short-weight cases were imposed yesterday in Police Court on market proprietors. Louis Miller, of the Do-Right Meat Market, 1004 First street northwest, was fined $25 on each of three charges, as was Jacob Teitelbaum, of Teitel's Market, 1014 First street northwest.

'Johnny Reb,' 'Yank' at Peace At Gettysburg

Gettysburg

forgettable battle scenes of their youth will be joined tomorrow by 1,000 more Confederate and Union veterans for an eight-day reunion.

First Reunion in 75 Years.

Many of the old men who fraternized here had not faced each other since those three bloody days that settled the course of the Nation. They reminisced, "kidded" about the prowess of "Johnny Reb" and "Yank," marched shoulder to shoulder beneath the Stars and Bars through streets lined with the Stars and Stripes.

Special trains every hour, buses and automobiles brought streams of veterans all day long and far into the night into the town that once trembled to the roar of their cannon and the rattle of their musketry.

State and local groups will hold informal get-togethers tomorrow for the veterans. Then, beginning Friday, the old soldiers, vanquished and victorious alike, will be saluted as heroes at the formal observance of the Battle of Gettysburg.

Feel "Right at Home."

In their tents and easy chairs, drinking deeply of bright sunshine and cooling breezes, the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans, meeting again and for the last time, said they felt "right at home."

A half dozen veterans suffering from the exertion of long journeys were taken to hospitals. For one of them the experience was almost a reenactment of his treatment 75 years ago.

He was James P. Hamaker, of Aledo, Tex., who went up against the Union lines with the Fiftieth Virginia Regiment in 1863 and was shot twice. Today, on the anniversary of that memorable occasion, he is in Annie Warren Hospital with a broken shoulder.

Falls From Pullman Berth.

Hamaker broke his shoulder when he fell from a berth in the Pullman car which brought him here from his home in Aledo, Tex. He is not the only veteran who has been beaten to his knees by time in the 75 years since the battle of Gettysburg was fought.

There is William H. Hendy, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who became sick and wants to go home. There is C. C. Ker, of Mangham, La., who fought through the battle here. He'd be ready for the reunion if he hadn't smoked two cigars which he was not accustomed to smoking, he said.

And there is Capt. Paul M. Sanguenette, a very small man from Montgomery, Ala., who was here when this battle was fought and who remembers all of it.

Unhappy From Comrades.

Doctors told Hamaker, who is 95 years old, that he might be able to ride over the field he fought for in a few days. In his bed at the hospital he he is not happy. He would like to be with the men who fought with him in 1863.

These veterans can tell you exactly how and why Gettysburg was won or lost. In the last 75 years they have fought the battle many times.

"Lee never should have fought here," said Capt. Sanguenette. "He didn't want to fight here, but he had to."

The Army is on hand for its demonstration July 4. Its tanks and armored cars and machine guns are waiting for their chance to show what Pickett might have done in his famous charge.

The Battle of Gettysburg is ready to begin again except for those old men who remember it with its smoke and its long charges and the shrill Rebel yells of the young men who walked up Cemetery Ridge 75 years ago.

Girl Scouts Start Busy Encampment

Norris Backs Sen. Pope In Idaho Primary Race

Boise, Idaho, June 29 (AP).—Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, urged today renomination of Senator Pope (Democrat), of Idaho, in the August 9 primary. In a letter to the Boise "Pope for Senator" Club, Norris said "his defeat would be a distinct loss to the cause of liberalism and good government."

Va. Suitor Blames Rage of Jealousy In Slaying of Girl

Fincastle, Va., June 29 (AP).—Sheriff John Noffsinger said he will make arrangements today for the removal to jail here of Fred Cary, 27, who was arrested at Iron Gate last night in connection with the death yesterday afternoon of Mrs. Thelma Wells, 22-year-old mother.

Sheriff Noffsinger said Cary told him that he fired two bullets into Mrs. Wells' body "because somebody was coming between us."

Cary is in a Clifton Forge hospital where he was taken last night for treatment of a bullet wound in the chest, which, according to police, was self-inflicted. At the hospital, it was said the wound was superficial.

Sheppard Calls Liberal Appeal 'Not Improper'

Relief

workers with gentle disapproval, Representative Eaton (Republican), of New Jersey, charged that the Administration's campaign motto is: "Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth."

Eaton, in a statement made public by the Republican National Committee, said "it certainly seems Dr. Kekyll and Mr. Hyde have become the patron saints of the New Deal."

Cites Wearin Case.

Eaton said WPA Administrator Hopkins in supporting Representative Wearin against Senator Gillette in Iowa claimed "the right to do as a citizen what he could never do as an official."

"Next," said Eaton, "Mr. Roosevelt, himself, after admitting that 'as President' he should not mix in primaries, turned about and said that 'as head of the Democratic party' he was obligated to purge its ranks.

"Then Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator for the WPA, addressing the Workers' Alliance of America, a left-wing organization dedicated to unionizing the unemployed, made a direct political appeal for New Deal support and urged the unemployed to 'keep your friends in power.' The next day he wrote the Senate Campaign Investigation Committee that 'There was nothing political in what I said.' It all is in accord with the New Deal pattern of striving to be all things to all men."

Will Study Transcript.

Senator Sheppard said the Workers' Alliance transcript of Williams' remarks will be laid before the Senate committee today. He said he did not expect the committee to change its statement of Tuesday calling the incident "unfortunate," but he pointed out that different members will be present. Senator Walsh, who drafted the committee's first sharp resolution warning Government bureaus to "keep hands off" politics, will attend in the place of Harrison, who has left town.

Sheppard yesterday wrote the secretaries of state in every State holding Senatorial elections to send the committee a list of candidates. The questionnaire now in tentative form will be immediately forwarded to all such candidates.

Hopkins "Debatable."

Sheppard was asked if he thought Hopkins' statement that had he been a voter in Iowa he would have voted for Wearin, came within the scope of possible committee censure. He said that was "debatable," that he regarded it as "close to the line."

Sheppard said he did not ask for the Williams letter yesterday explaining wage increases in certain States, beginning July 1.

"Oklahoma and Kentucky," Williams wrote, "were the two States that were farthest out of line. In Oklahoma we were giving an average of only 38 per cent of that given by industry and business in Oklahoma. In Kentucky we were paying only 41 per cent. In the case of Virginia and North Carolina, the Works Progress Administration was paying but 48 and 52 per cent, respectively, of what business and industry in these States were paying.

"In making the adjustment in schedule it seemed reasonable that a move should be made immediately to correct these obvious injustices. The security wage in these States has, therefore, been raised to a level more nearly in line with that paid in other States."

Williams said thorough analysis was made of wages paid by business and industry throughout the country, involving earnings of some 17,000,000 workers. The study showed, he said, that the average monthly WPA security scale in the United States was 57 per cent of that paid by business and industry.

Auditors to Be Queried.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley is running for re-election in Kentucky, one of the four States receiving the largest step-ups, and Senator Elmer Thomas has two-cornered opposition in Oklahoma.

The committee chairman indicated that on request of Senator Nye, North Dakota's county auditors will be queried on the extent to which absentee ballots were used in the primaries. A wire from Nye turned over to the committee suggested "the advantage that would come to the cause of clean elections if you were to have your committee write each county auditor in North Dakota this week, or wire them, asking that the report to the committee after the primary election next (last) Tuesday concerning the degree to which absent voters' ballots were used in the election, their use compared with the number voted in other years."

Sheppard said he would write absentee members of the campaign investigating committee to send him their proxies "in routine matters," but no effort to use proxies would be made on questions of policy.

New York WPA Lets All Over 65 Off Rolls

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, June 29.—The Works Progress Administration here is quietly dropping all employes over 65, it became known today. They are being transferred to the old-age assistance rolls of the department of welfare, which pays them per month less than half of what they received from the WPA.

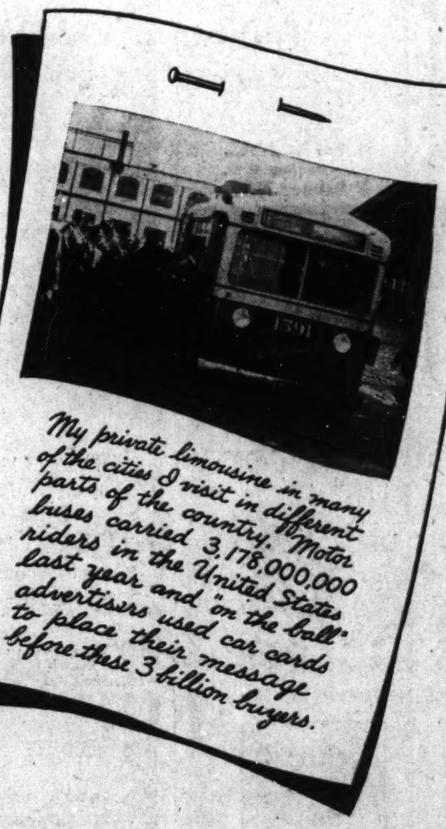
CAR ADVERTISING IN THE UNITED STATES, CANADA AND CUBA.

Cleveland, Ohio,

Dear Son:

I expect to spend the next three or four days right here in this up and coming territory and have come optimistically armed with a good supply of car card facts and figures. You are probably by now well on your handsome way to learn this business called advertising. So far I gather the agency that hired you seems to be standing up well under the strain because you haven't asked me for any extra financial aid so far. I'm sure you won't mind if a doting old-timer like your Dad offers you a bit of advice at this point in your career. This advice will stand you in good stead when your reward comes and you win your coveted job of account executive.

Then as a full fledged advertising man you will be required to think in terms of big figures and small fractions. Stripped of all fancy terms and phrases, advertising is basically the publicizing of a product or service to the greatest number of people for the lowest possible cost. Put on your sharpened-pencil thinking cap and let's consider right now that amazing medium of advertising whose cost per reader is the lowest known to this business of ours. Of course you know the answer....Car-Card Advertising.



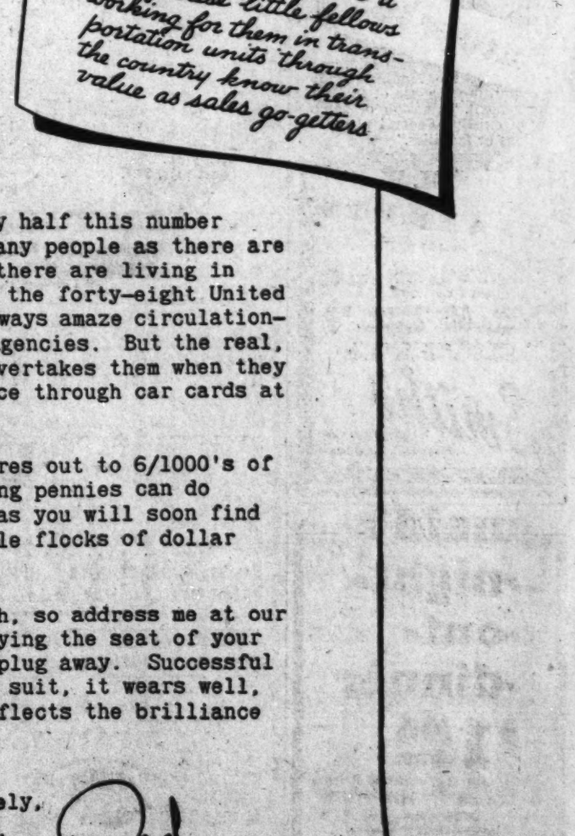
My private limousine in many of the cities I visit in different parts of the country. Motor buses carried 3,178,000,000 riders in the United States last year and "on the ball" advertisers used car cards to place their message before these 3 billion buyers.

There are approximately one billion, yes, I said billion, monthly riders on the surface cars, the subway and elevated trains, the buses, and the suburban trains of these ever fair United States. As a jog to your young and oft times porous memory may I remind you, my son, that there are only slightly more than 2 billion people on all of poor old Mother Earth's overtaxed face. Yet our country's transportation systems carry half this number every 30 days. This is almost twice as many people as there are in all of Europe, seven times as many as there are living in Africa, and eight times the population of the forty-eight United States. These powerful, gaunt figures, always amaze circulation-minded Advertisers and their Advertising Agencies. But the real, sign-on-the-dotted-line urge completely overtakes them when they find that they can reach this vast audience through car cards at an average cost of only 6¢ per thousand.

This super-fractional arithmetic figures out to 6/1000's of a cent per reader-rider. These Advertising pennies can do prodigious work in car card advertising, as you will soon find out, my son. Consequently they breed whole flocks of dollar profits in business almost over night.

Next week I expect to be in Pittsburgh, so address me at our office there. In the meantime, keep applying the seat of your pants to the seat of your desk chair and plug away. Successful advertising is somewhat like a blue serge suit, it wears well, is always correct and its shine really reflects the brilliance of long and faithful service.

Affectionately,
Your Dad



My artistic conception of the power of a penny spent in transportation advertising. Advertisers that have a few of these little fellows working for them in transportation units through the country know their value as sales go-getters.

President Signs Flood Measure 'Reluctantly'

Urges Better-Co-ordinated Program; Approves 54 Bills in Day.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 29.—President Roosevelt urged today in signing the $386,500,000 omnibus flood control bill that Congress provide "as nearly as possible" a better-co-ordinated waterways-soil program.

The program, embracing flood control, soil erosion, reclamation, reforestation and navigation, the President said "involves a wider survey and the examination of more national problems than any one bureau or department is qualified for."

He objected, therefore, to placing in the hands of Army engineers and the Agriculture Department the sole power to recommend such projects to Congress. He added he doubted the value of some of the projects provided.

The bill authorizes, but provides no money for, systems of flood control works on streams as far east as the Merrimac River and as far west as the Willamette and extending south to the lower Mississippi River basin. The construction program will cost $375,000,000; examinations and surveys of proposed projects by Army engineers and the Agriculture Department, $10,000,00, and surveys by the power commission, $1,500,000.

Mr. Roosevelt said he signed the bill "with some reluctance" because "it is not a step in the right direction in the set-up provided for general Government planning."

The flood control measure was one of 54 bills signed by the President during the day. He vetoed seven and signed two more last night.

The President will speak tomorrow in New York before the National Education Association convention. That address at the 1939 World's Fair Education Building at 2 p. m., E. S. T., will follow a brief speech at 1 p. m., E. S. T., dedicating the fair's Federal Building.

The President's one-day round trip will be by motor.

The President said he took great pleasure in signing another bill, to create the new Olympic National Park in Washington State. The park will be an expansion of the Mount Olympus National Monument, which the Chief Executive noted was established in the Administration of Theodore Roosevelt.

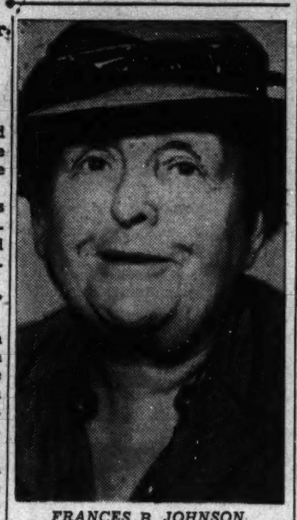
Frances Johnson Films Houses Of South, Culture of America

River Captain's Daughter Tries to Record, Preserve Traditions.



FRANCES B. JOHNSON.

A little flaxen-haired girl stood beside her father in the wheelhouse of a Mississippi River packet more than half-a-century ago.

She noticed the shadows the trees cast upon the water, the lacy reflection of the boughs, and she heard the Father of Waters in the semi-tropical night.

"I must somehow express myself," she said.

So yesterday the little girl, grown up and America's pioneer woman news photographer, returned once again to Washington, this time with a set of pictures taken in the Louisiana bayous for the Carnegie Foundation.

The mansions of the old French quarter of New Orleans which she had photographed were still securely locked in her grips. But the spirit which carried her up and down the world as a feminine follower of the great Civil War photographer Brady, and a feminine forerunner of the great Spanish War photographer Robert Capa, was evident as she puffed a cigarette at the Arts Club.

Only through the photographic lens can the traditions mankind has built, and seemingly set about to destroy, be preserved, she sighed.

The photographer was Miss Frances B. Johnson, past the half-century mark, but still youthful.

"There are houses in the bayou country," said she, "which only the camera can reproduce. They preserve culture of old France—and one of the finest of American traditions as well."

Junketing with camera and flash bulb are nothing new for this daughter of a river captain. She has taken pictures of every occupant of the White House from the days of President Harrison on. She has mocked time and clicked away, and yesterday she said she intended to do this forever, for that was the way to keep young and alive and vital.

Familiar with every corner of Europe in the era before the World War, Miss Johnston prefers her United States, and particularly those sections of the old South which reflect the culture of many lands.

Charleston, Savannah, New Orleans and Mobile are hallowed spots, where the temperament and psychology of the people, reflected by architecture, may be preserved by the camera.

"It is in the deep South that I have found some of the loveliest buildings in the world," she observed yesterday.

Miss Johnston, who snapped a picture of President McKinley shortly before he was shot, thinks that America should become a sort of "shangri-la" for civilization, now that Europe is bursting into flames.

"I never want to return to Spain, it would break my heart," said she yesterday.

"What Spain was once the camera has preserved. What it is today the camera has recorded. It is sad—as are so many things connected with the mad-house which has sprung up from Europe. "A Europe I knew in the days of gay Viennese waltzes."

De Gast Gives Objectives of Organization in WRC Program.

A description of the ideals and objectives of the local Young Men's Christian Association was given yesterday by Leonard W. De Gast, general secretary, in an address over radio station WRC on the eighty-sixth anniversary of the founding of the Y. M. C. A. in this city.

In 1852 the local Y. M. C. A. functioned with two rented rooms, the year following the establishment of the first American Y. M. C. A. in Boston. The world's first Y. M. C. A. was founded in London in 1844 by Sir George Williams, De Gast related.

De Gast told how the Y. M. C. A. here has grown until its central plant occupies "two and a half acres of floor space." Last year, De Gast pointed out, there was a total attendance of 213,000 in the health and physical departments and an additional 90,000 at religious meetings. Southeastern University, which had an enrollment of 1,228 students during the year, the Woodward School for Boys and the Washington Preparatory School, are run under supervision of the Y. M. C. A.

De Gast attributed the Y's popularity to "democratic ideals" that appeal to youths from all walks of life and to its helping men and boys to develop into good citizens.

Traffic Fatalities Fall 27 Per Cent For U. S. in May

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—The greatest reduction in traffic fatalities of the year—a 27 per cent drop in May—was reported yesterday by the National Safety Council.

Staticians figured 3,780 lives were saved in that period.

May deaths totalled 2,280, compared with 3,120 in the same month in 1937.

Indiana

pledged to support the New Deal with more regularity.

Thus it appears that the voters of Indiana next November will be able to make their choice among a 100 per cent anti-New Dealer, a conservative Democrat and a 100 per cent New Dealer.

Although several Republican papers in Indiana and a number of Republican leaders outside of the State had urged Republican support of Senator Van Nuys, the Senator's name was not even mentioned at the convention today.

Willis was nominated on the third ballot in a peaceful convention. He received 444 ballots of 1,760 on the first ballot, to lead the field of five. James E. Watson, white-haired veteran who has served as leader of both the House and the Senate in days of Republican dominance, ran second with 441 votes on the first ballot, but faded rapidly thereafter, receiving only 23 votes on the third ballot.

Delegates Released.

When the deadlock persisted in the second ballot, delegates pledged originally to Senator Watson and to Walter F. Bossert, former Klan chieftain, were released in favor of Willis. In the third and final ballot, Mr. Willis received 1,063 votes, a substantial margin above the 881 necessary for nomination. Other candidates trailed as follows: Oliver Starr, Gary attorney, 345; Clarence H. (Dick) Wills, Kokomo lawyer, 328; Watson, 23; Bossert, 1. On a motion from the floor, the delegates subsequently voted to make Willis' nomination unanimous.

Willis, a man with a physique resembling that of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York, said, smiling at the radio microphone in front of him: "Hello, Ma, it was a great battle royal—no hitting below the belt, no hitting in the clinches. I'll be home soon."

In an interview prior to his nomination, Willis said he believed it was the mission of the Republican Party to prevent a complete socialistic revolution in this country. He said he believed the late Dr. William Wirt, of Gary, had been right in saying that President Roosevelt was the unconscious Kerensky of an American counterpart to the Russian revolution.

In selecting him as its standard bearer, the Indiana Republican organization indicated it favored the more conservative type of Republican. Both Oliver Starr and "Dick" Willis were rated as more "progressive."

The party did, to be sure, reject clearly the comeback bid of Senator Watson, who may fairly be described as a member of the faculty of the old school of republicanism. It rejected even more rudely Bossert, who had sought the nomination with the aid of former members of the Ku Klux Klan.

The nomination of Willis was at least a partial rejection by the delegates of a demand placed before them this morning by the keynoter of the convention, Representative Bruce Barton, of New York.

"Give Us Men," Says Barton.

"We are water-logged in both branches of Congress with '100 per centers,'" said Barton. "You know the type. They run for office on the platform that they are '100 per cent New Deal,' or '100 per cent anti-New Deal'; '100 per cent capital' or '100 per cent labor.' A 100 per center is a man whose mind is on a sit-down strike. Give us Representatives who are men. Men who will support the President when he is right, and stand like a rock against him when he is wrong."

Willis, who advocates a return to all the traditional Republican policies, was nominated within two hours after Barton had said "We have purged ourselves of those who hoped that America could ever go back to the 'good old days.' We have put away the past, and our faces are toward the future."

The Democratic "Two Per Cent Club" and Indiana's political beer and liquor set-up were targets in the platform unanimously adopted and of a speech made to the delegates by Charles A. Halleck, sole Republican member of the House of Representatives from Indiana.

The platform included the following resolutions regarding the McNutt machine's fund-raising club.

"The last word in political audacity was spoken when the Two Per Cent Club secured passage of an amendment to the corrupt practices act in the 1937 Legislature legalizing the use of its fund for political purposes without reporting expenditures or contributions. That fund comes from the pay of public servants who, in turn, are paid by the taxpayers."

"The increase of public offices and bureaus, regardless of governmental necessity, has imposed upon our taxpayers the new office of patronage secretary. These many new jobs, requiring as they have several new State buildings, have also furnished more grist for the Two Per Cent Club mill. Such practices must, of course, result in waste of taxpayers' money. Our first tax problem is to stop that waste. For the sake of the good name of Indiana, the law legalizing the Two Per Cent Club and all that it implies must be repealed."

The resolution regarding the State liquor situation follows:

"We condemn the hypocrisy, the profiteering and the invisible government now existing in the beer and liquor traffic in this State. The liquor and beer laws have robbed the taxpayers in order to enrich a favored few politicians and to build up a corrupt political machine. Intemperance has been encouraged, bootlegging and crime have increased. The situation in Indiana has become a national disgrace. These abuses must be corrected."

The Democratic organization admits frankly that the liquor set-up in Indiana is run politically. Discussing the Indiana liquor licensing and tax system with the chairman of the excise tax commission yesterday, a reporter said: "I hear that there are only two Republicans among the 150 beer wholesalers licensed by the State."

"Oh, I think you're wrong about that," said the commissioner. "I think I know all of those wholesalers, and I'm pretty sure there isn't a single Republican in the lot. Why should we give anything to Republican?"

In addition to nominating a candidate for Senator, the Republican convention selected the following nominees for other State offices:

Secretary of State—James M. Tucker, Paoli.

Treasurer of State—Arthur H. Berndt, Bloomington.

Judge, Supreme Court, third district—Edgar M. Blessing, Danville.

Judge, Appellate Court, first division—Edgar Durre, Evansville.

Divorced So They Can Remarry

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Raymond Schulz and his wife, Blanche, are shown in a Chicago court as he was granted a divorce in order that Mrs. Schulz would be in a position to divorce her first husband. She thought her first husband was dead when she was married to Schulz in 1930. The Schulzes, who have three children, plan to remarry when the tangle is cleared up.

Teachers' Head Bars Doherty Answer to 'Fascism' Charges

Miss Woodruff and Givens explained that "tonight is the city's party" and for a long time has been advertised as an assembly devoted to LaGuardia's address and to a musical program by city school children, which preceded the mayor's speech.

The Kingdon-Doherty flare-up occurred at a symposium of the purposes of education, held at a hotel.

Kingdon said schools must take a full share of responsibility for developing men like Mayor Hague of Jersey City or for evil conditions that might exist in the legion.

He said, "its' no use for educators to damn Mayor Hague. Damn the things for which he stands if you don't like them. Hague is merely a symptom of what's going on in this country. Get at the causes, not the effect, if you would accomplish something. Why damn the legion? Attack the public schools and see what children are being taught if you don't like what's going on."

Doherty said the Legion always had co-operated with the N. E. A. in sponsoring summer camps and essay contests and had never attempted to control the organization's activities.

He asked Kingdon to "detail to me where corrective measures might be applied."

Kingdon replied: "I think the commander has misunderstood me. I feel the author of the document attacking the Legion is not, as an educator, in the strongest position when he analyzes the faults of the Legion and stops there."

Doherty broke in with, "I'm glad to know the doctor has no fault to find with the Legion," and Kingdon snapped back:

"Oh, no. I didn't say that."

The chairman of the symposium brought the exchange to a halt there with the remark that the two were "getting into deep water."

An assertion that the American school system is being used to perpetuate present institutions was made before the association by Dr. Kingdon.

He said that any discussion of change was immediately branded "unpatriotic and subversive," and that "if an idea should ever get into a school there would be an explosion."

Educators "should not waste their time" denouncing Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, he said, but should "examine themselves, realizing that the school system makes such men as Hague possible.

"We must remember that he has been elected mayor for 21 years, and the people who elect him are products of our American school system."

Reuben T. Shaw, head of the science department of Northeast High School, Philadelphia, tonight was elected president of the association.

Elected a State director was A. Grace Lind, of Washington, D. C.

New York, June 29.—Women will only gain a place of self-respect in the business world if they forget the "tragic pettiness" of women's rights and "revolts against men," Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, said today at a luncheon of the National Council of Administrative Women in Education, an organization allied with the National Education Association.

Mrs. Herrick told the delegates Government service offered women the richest field for useful employment. She also defended the Labor Board against charges of bias and partisanship.

Duce Will Ask Franco to Stop Raiding British

Rome

Count Galeazzo Ciano yesterday. Ciano replied that the armed forces of insurgent spain are entirely under Franco's orders. At the same time he said the Italian government would like to do everything in its power to stop the bombing of British ships and was prepared to exert whatever influence it possessed upon the Burgos authorities.

It is believed that Lord Perth gave Count Ciano a personal message from Chamberlain, asking Mussolini to use his influence to stop the bombing of British vessels. Furthermore, mutual friends are thought to have pointed out to Il Duce that if Chamberlain is unable to protect British shipping, he may be driven out of office and succeeded by someone not so friendly to Italy.

The British agent in Burgos, Sir Robert Hodgson, arrives in London tomorrow, bringing with him Franco's reply to the latest British protest against the bombing of British ships in Spanish waters. The reply is heralded as conciliatory in tone, although repeating what the British government has been unable to accept in several cases.—namely, that British ships have not been singled out for deliberate attacks.

The solution which Franco is expected to offer is the setting apart of one harbor in Republican territory, which would be accessible to international shipping and immune from attack by insurgent aircraft on condition the harbor would be used exclusively for commercial and noncontraband traffic. This is a solution which has not appealed to Downing Street under the conditions which Franco wants to impose.

The British government may prefer to rely on Italy's promise to intercede with Franco to abandon attacks on British shipping.

"Concessions" Listed.

Rome, June 29.—The concessions made by Gen. Franco to safeguard British shipping as far as possible from aerial attacks were relayed to the British ambassador, Lord Perth, by Count Galeazzo Ciano, during last night's interview, according to Virginia Gayda in the Giornale D'Italia today.

These are stated to be, first: No attack on British ships in navigation; secondly, avoidance of ships flying the British flag in Spanish ports as far as possible; thirdly, assignment of ports where ships "in honest trade" will not be attacked.

It is believed that these concessions are being conveyed directly to the British government by their chief agent in Spain, Sir Robert Hodgson, who has just returned to London, after visiting Burgos.

Insurgents Advance.

Hendaye, France, June 29 (AP).—With a deluge of bullets, hand grenades, bombs and shells, the Spanish insurgents attempted to crack the Valencia defense line today near its center, about 38 miles north of the seaport city.

Barcelona, June 29 (AP).—Insurgent air raiders killed nine persons in an attack on the Catalan seacoast town of Blanes today, machinegunned a railway train and bombed a French-owned textile mill midway between Barcelona and the French frontier.

The six raiding planes were identified by the government as Italian-made Savoias.

British Hang Jewish Terrorist In Palestine; 12 Hurt in Riots

police clashed in the streets of Tel-Aviv tonight. At 7 p. m. to 5 a. m. curfew was imposed there.

The British police force threw a cordon of steel-helmeted troops, armed with heavy cudgels, around the cemetery at Rodhpina, Jewish settlement in Galilee and home of Ben Joseph, when his funeral was held there late in the day.

Ben Joseph, one of three Jewish youths arrested in a roundup of terrorists, was hanged at the dawn of Rosh Hodesh, Jewish new moon festival day, for firing on an Arab bus and possessing two pistols and five bombs. Appeals from the Jewish community for a commutation of the death penalty were denied by British authorities a few hours before the hanging.

As he walked to the gallows Ben Joseph said:

"I die with the name of Jabotinsky (president of the Zion revisionist movement) on my lips, sacrificing my life and hoping Jews will learn the lesson of the harmfulness of the past two years and of self-restraint."

Whenever the British armed forces dispersed crowds of demonstrating Jews, some wailing, others shouting angrily, the demonstrators reassembled elsewhere.

Reserve detachments of armored cars were ready at all police stations.

The Jews hoisted black flags of mourning on their shops and homes. Police promptly hauled them down.

Many Jews hung flags of mourning from their second-story windows then locked their doors, and police were forced to use fire brigade ladders to remove the bunting.

The same scenes were evident in Tel-Aviv, Haifa and other communities.

The British high commissioner, Sir Harold MacMichael, was urged to extend clemency in last-minute petitions signed by Jewish citizens who have received honors from the British government. Other appeals for the youth were received from Jewish communities throughout the world.

All three youths were members of the Revisionist youth labor group. Abraham Aheen, 17, was sentenced to death with Ben Joseph, but his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. A third youth, Shalom Zurabin, was ordered confined as criminally insane.

ing on the privileges of the House."

Chamberlain previously had informed the House that he would name a committee of ten to inquire into Sandys' complaint and it was reported that he might aggravate the situation by attempting to strengthen the official secrets act and prevent a leakage of defense secrets.

Denies Accusations.

It was under this act that the war office instructed Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, chief of the Eastern army command, to summon a court of inquiry and investigate the circumstances in which defense secrets were "leaked" to Sandys.

The storm broke as Chamberlain, taking new hope from Premier Mussolini's word that Italy will ask the Spanish insurgents to use "moderation" to cease sinking British ships, sought stubbornly to protect his policy toward the Spanish war and his dealings with Il Duce.

He denied and quickly dismissed accusations, including those of the Duchess of Atholl, that German-type insurgent guns are pointed menacingly at Gibraltar at the western entrance to the Mediterranean.

The military information which Sandys obtained dealt with charges that the 3-inch aircraft guns with which the territorial home defense army is equipped are "duds," necessitating delivery of a new 3.7-inch gun.

If the army council inquiry showed that an officer in active service gave out military secrets a court-martial probably would be ordered, threatening Sandys with penalties ranging up to two years' imprisonment.

Trucker Cleared In Crash Death

Allen Jones, colored truck driver, of the 1500 block of Fifth street northwest, last night was exonerated of blame in the crash death of William Kemeys, of Garrett Park, Md., early last week.

Kemeys was killed when his automobile collided with a truck driven by Jones. An inquest was held last Friday night by Justice of the Peace Charles Webb, acting coroner, who did not announce his verdict until last night.

Chiang's Own Claim Advance At River Fort

Crack Troops Diverted to Attempt Recapture of Yangtze Barricade.

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Thursday), June 30.—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek threw his crack German-trained divisions into the battle of the Yangtze River barricades southeast of China's provisional capital in Hankow today.

The war office claimed that invading Japanese forces were crumbling in one of the greatest battles of the war.

Chiang called off plans to send most of his personal army to his new secondary headquarters in Hengchow, south of Hankow, and diverted them to the Yangtze River battle.

The Hankow war office said "furious fighting is continuing along a 15-mile front on the south bank of the Yangtze around Matang" where Chinese infantrymen were trying to retake the ruins of the forts blasted yesterday by the big guns of Japanese warships in the river.

Warships Shelled.

It appeared that the Matang barricade, first of the long series of Chinese obstructions across the Yangtze below Hankow, still was partly in possession of the Chinese, who were counterattacking despite a barrage by 50 Japanese warships in the river.

[Hankow heard later that Chinese had evacuated the Matang forts.]

The Japanese spokesman in Shanghai merely said that "the Yangtze River drive is progressing satisfactorily."

In Shantung Province, delayed dispatches reported, Japanese planes Saturday bombed the town of Tsimo, 15 miles from the big Japanese base in Tsingtao, after guerrillas halted railway and highway traffic.

U. S. Mission Bombed.

Two bombs hit in the grounds of the American Lutheran Mission and seriously damaged its schools. Several Chinese school children were wounded. Miss Elvira Strunk, of Allentown, Pa., escaped unhurt when a bomb fell within 20 feet of her home.

The mission was flying two large American flags when it was hit.

Chinese assassins killed two more alleged enemies of Gen. Chiang, bringing the total to seven in the past 10 days.

In Shanghai four terrorists disguised as beggars killed T. M. Chen, head of the shipping tax office of the pro-Japanese Pootung government.

The gunmen escaped.

In Hankow three assassins fatally wounded Miss Yu Wei-hua, 31, member of the new people's advisory council from Szechuan Province.

Diplomats here said that new Japanese efforts to induce Gen. Chiang to agree to a truce had failed.

French Threaten Action.

Paris, June 29 (U.P.).—French concern at reports that the Japanese navy may occupy Hainan Island, dominating sea approaches to French Indo-China, was increasing today and a campaign was under way in the press to obtain American assistance to restrain the Japanese.

It was reported several days ago, following a conference between the French ambassador to China and Chiang in Hankow, that France had informed Britain she was prepared to land forces in Hainan equal to those the Japanese might land, and was prepared to bring the necessary forces to the island on three French cruisers in China waters.

U.S. Attorney Off on Spy Hunt

France Will Shoot All Spies And Abolish 'Devil's Island'

By the United Press.

Paris, June 29.—The French government today established the death penalty for spies caught in peacetime and abolished the "Devil's Island" penal colony in sun-baked Guiana.

For 13 years efforts had been made in Parliament to re-establish peacetime execution of spies, abandoned in 1848 when espionage was made a political crime. The "National Defense" government of Premier Daladier took the step by decree without consulting Parliament.

A rapidly growing number of spy arrests, particularly in the area of the Maginot line adjoining Germany, and the stringent espionage measures taken by Germany, Italy and other nations was responsible for the decision.

Convicts already on Devils Island will serve out their terms, but when these are completed the island, off the South American coast, will be abandoned as a penal colony.

Abolition of the colony is a victory for the Salvation Army which for years has led the fight for its suppression and has done everything possible to help returned prisoners to take up normal life again.

The decree instituting peace-time death penalties for spies revises the penal code and authorizes the government to designate special courts for espionage cases.

U. S. Aide Sails To Investigate Spies Abroad

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, June 29.—Lamar Hardy, United States attorney, sailed for Europe today to investigate ramifications of the German spy case, while his assistants here argued in Federal court against a defense motion for a commission to take testimony from fugitive defendants in Germany.

The commission was asked by George C. Dix, attorney for Miss Johanna Hofmann, German hairdresser, who was among 18 persons indicted for espionage. Dix wanted testimony from Dr. Ignatz T. Griebl and Karl Schlueter, two other defendants, now in Germany. Judge Vincent L. Leibell reserved decision.

At the same time he took under advisement a Government motion to strike out Dix's argument and affidavit because they contained an attack on Leon G. Turrou, Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, who developed evidence against the ring.

Dix admitted that all that he had "at this time" as basis for his charges against Turrou were "surmises and suspicions."

"If all you have are surmises and suspicions, counselor," the court warned, "you should be very careful of what you say about an officer who has served his Government well during some 16 years."

Dix charged that Turrou connived with Griebl to flee this country and intimated that Turrou was bribed. Dix also said that, outside of money considerations, Griebl was allowed to flee so that a case could be made against Miss Hofmann.

In an affidavit, tourrou denied that he "permitted, aided facilitated or caused in any way, directly or indirectly, the departure" of Griebl.

"I most emphatically deny," Turrou continued, "the scandalous, unjust and unfounded charge that I had a monetary or other interest in Griebl's departure from the United States."

Turrou resigned from the F. B. I. on June 20, when the special Federal grand jury with which he had been working returned three indictments in the spy case. He is to write a series on the case for the New York Post.

Mrs. Kate Moog Busch, of New York, and Senta de Wanger, of Hempstead, Long Island, who for the past month were in voluntary protective custody, were released Tuesday. They are material witnesses. They are to remain guarded by F. B. I. agents and matrons, it was learned.

British Urge More Settlers In Dominions

Relaxed Rules Asked to Strengthen Defenses as Births Decline.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 29.—Speedy action to send immigrants to Britain's vast but sparsely white-populated empire both for economic and defense reasons was urged today in an official report to the British government.

A "serious situation" in the Dominions because of a falling birth-rate and a decline in population was pictured in a report of the overseas settlement board, set up in 1936 to advise the secretary of state for the Dominions. The Duke of Devonshire is chairman.

Departing from the old tenet that admission should be restricted virtually to persons of Anglo-Saxon stock, the board proposed a "carefully regulated flow" of immigrants from certain other unspecified countries.

It is said only that these foreign immigrants must be of assimilable types, preferably from those countries whose inhabitants "sprung originally from the same stock as ourselves and who share our outlook in many directions."

Informed quarters pointed out that the board envisaged no mass admissions of political refugees from Germany and central Europe. A limited number of these might be admitted, it was said, if they were able to guarantee their own livelihood.

The report significantly stated the empire has a white population of 70,000,000 and 40,000,000 of these are jammed in the United Kingdom.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Redhead Ends Sit-Down Strike In Man's Home

Still Demands Marriage, But Moves to Hotel, Buys Hot Dog.

By the Associated Press.

Irvington, N. Y., June 29.—Mrs. Hedi Heusser, the beautiful redhead who languished in an ivy-covered tower for nine days and ten ights waiting for her princec harming, decided to chuck it all today and went out to get a hot dog . . . with mustard.

The object of her affections, from accounts, was roughing it on his yacht some miles away.

"If he's a gentleman, he knows what he has to do," said the disillusioned (once-married) damsel.

She referred to Rollo K. Blanchard, middle-aged manufactured whose bedroom she usurped more than a week ago in a gentle effort to bring about a wedding.

Blanchard, who will neither affirm nor deny that he ever mentioned matrimony, immediately quit the premises and has not been home since.

Mrs. Heusser, divorced wife of a Swiss ski salesman, announced she would hold the bedroom until he came back and took her for his bride. Her only contact with the world has been through a window, beneath which a crowd of curious suburbanites gawked at her day and night.

"I've waited long enough in this house," she said today. "Now he's got to come to me."

"How do you feel?" asked her lawyer.

"I feel weak and very sad," said Mrs. Heusser.

On the way to White Plains, where she registered at a hotel, she stopped off at a hot-dog stand.

"Ah, it is fine to see the sunshine again," she said.

Husband Let Off As Wife Refuses to Tell of Tortures

The refusal of Mrs. Elizabeth Fix, of 1708 Minnesota avenue southeast, to testify against her husband, Fred M. Fix, in an assault case yesterday, led Judge Edward M. Curran to dismiss the charge.

Police asserted that Mrs. Fix, a Public Health Service stenographer, was tied to her bed for 24 hours, during which time her husband beat her, breaking her jaw and tortured her with lighted cigarettes. She was being treated in Casualty Hospital for severe burns and bruises after being rescued by police.

"You are getting off easy," Judge Curran commented, as he gave a directed verdict.

Fix was brougt to court from the District Jail, where he is serving a three-day sentence for drunkenness.

Frank D. Costenbader Elected Alumni Head

Frank D. Costenbader last night was elected president of the Hampton-Sidney Alumni Association, of Washington, in session at the home of Fred B. Rhodes.

Other officers chosen included Douglas Clark and Owen Jones, vice presidents; Dabney Jarman, secretary, and George L. Walper, alumni secretary.

Now He Must Come to Her, She Says

Mrs. Hedi Heusser, beautiful red-haired divorcee, finally walked out of the ivy-covered wing of wealthy Rollo K. Blanchard's residence at Irvington, N. Y., yesterday after waiting there for nine days for Blanchard to come home to marry her. She munched a hot dog meditatively and announced: "Now, he's got to come to me."

Ertel, Indicted In N.Y. Slaying, Arrested Here

"Little Benny" Ertel, 24, indicted in New York City for the holdup murder of Detective Michael Foley in April, 1937, was seized here yesterday by Detective Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon.

Ertel was arrested by Shimon and Detective John R. Gallagher, of New York, in a restaurant in the 1300 block L street northwest. Gallagher was a partner of the murdered Foley and was shot at five times by a man believed to be Ertel when the latter was escaping a Second avenue, New York, eating place, according to Gallagher.

Ertel made no effort to resist yesterday when the detectives arrested him. Married less than a month, Ertel was booked as a fugitive from justice. He refused to answer questions asked by Gallagher.

Gallagher came to Washington Monday, ready for the arrest on information furnished him by Detective Sergts. Guy Rone and Frank O. Brass, who originally located Ertel. Ertel, it was said, has been in the district about two months.

Ertel will be arraigned in Police Court for an extradition hearing, probably today, and will be returned to New York for trial. Five men seized in New York following the attempted robbery have already been sentenced to the electric chair.

Police yesterday shielded the name of Ertel's bride of only three weeks. They said she was a beauty-shop operator and that she lived in Maryland. She married him unaware of his background, Shimon said.

Police Killing Suspect Booked Here

Fish Stakes Endanger Seaplanes, Army Claims

Hampton, Va., June 29 (AP).—Arguments for and against the removal of fish stakes in Back River were heard by Lieut. Col. John H. Carruth, district engineer for the War Department, in county trial justice courtroom this morning.

The matter was brought before the War Department by the commanding officer at Langley Field, who pointed out that the presence of the stakes in the bay renders it unsafe for seaplanes.

No decision had been reached when the meeting adjourned.

2 Playmates See Boy, 10, Wading In River, Drown

Ten-year-old Eugene Jacobs was drowned yesterday when he stepped into a hole in the river bottom while wading at the foot of Thirty-seventh street. Two playmates, Charles Royce, 11, and Paul Donaldson, 6, tried vainly to save him.

Charles and Paul were watching from the bank when their friend disappeared. They waded out but found no trace of him, they ran for help. Harbor Policeman R. C. Ault recovered Eugene's body an hour later.

The dead boy was the youngest son of Mrs. Margaret Jacobs, of 3729 Canal road.

In North Dakota.

In defeating Gov. William Langer in the North Dakota Republican Senatorial primaries, Senator Gerald P. Nye has confounded a number of prophets and proved himself a vote-getter of no mean dimensions.

In Gov. Langer the Senator had a doughty opponent with whom he may still have to reckon, if past experience is any guide. Twice, during the past four years, Langer has demonstrated great political strength in North Dakota. The first occasion was in 1934. Then, despite a conviction hanging over him, he won the Republican renomination for Governor by an overwhelming vote, although later disqualified from running in the regular election.

As it happened, the Langer conviction was later set aside by the Circuit Court of Appeals and, at a retrial, a Federal jury completed the work of exoneration. His political vindication followed in due course. Defeated in the 1936 primaries, Langer ran as an independent and won. This action he may attempt to repeat this year.

Although no outstanding National issues were involved in the Nye-Langer race, it has not been without its national interest. Senator Nye has not always lived up to the promise he showed when he first entered the Senate in 1925. Not even with respect to the neutrality issue, with which he has become largely identified in the public mind, has he always followed a consistent or logical line. But on balance he has been a very useful public figure, willing, on occasion, to admit his mistakes if not verbally at least through his actions.

Just For Contrast.

Fairly located at a point on the Baltimore highway looking down on Annapolis, where he served so many years as Governor, a memorial will soon rise to honor the late Albert C. Ritchie. The plans call for a tastefully landscaped plot on the crest of a hill above the Severn. In its midst will be a simple stone block bearing a profile in bronze of the esteemed Free Stater. The cost will be some $30,000.

Of particular interest to Washingtonians will be a remark found in the announcement of the plan. The committee assigned to recommend a design for the memorial noted that it acted so as to "satisfy at least the larger number" of those who indicated any preference in the matter. No star chamber proceedings—no double-facing, no disregard of the public, no stubborn rejection of expert advice.

The result will be an appropriate, harmonious and democratically inexpensive memorial. Thomas Jefferson will be filled with envy.

Studium Vs. Stadium.

A small item stuck into obscure corners of the sports pages the other day stated that Byron (Whizzer) White will spend the next two months or so waiting on tables at Boulder, Colo., in order to earn traveling expenses to Oxford University, England. The point of the story is that his decision to go to England on his Rhodes Scholarship entailed the refusal of a $15,000 contract for a few weeks of professional football—a game which until now Mr. White has played cheerfully and most ably for glory alone.

In other words, Mr. White, a young man of very modest means, has been able to look an easy $15,000 in the face and to stare it down. It may be some time, of course, before Mr. White gets another opportunity to look at $15,000.

There seems a certain irony about all this. For a good many years it has been the fashion to reproach trustees and faculties for permitting college education to be submerged by intercollegiate football. It has been said that a good many college authorities have come to regard the building of stadia and the acquisition of players as a powerful and altogether indispensable kind of tail with which to wag the feeble dog of study. But here comes Mr. White, not only a football player but one of the very best, who, confronted with a choice between football and affluence, and education and poverty, chooses education.

This, however, raises the point of what we understand by "education." If the purpose of a college is mere technical training for a profitable profession, then it could easily be argued that modern football is quite as technical as almost anything else and more profitable than most things. From this standpoint it would be possible to say that Mr. White has wasted his years at college learning a trade he does not intend to follow. But if the purpose of a college is to train a man to see himself, not merely as a dentist or an engineer, or a stockbroker, or a second baseman, but as a whole human being, who must live a whole life, it puts Mr. White's decision in an altogether different light.

It could then be truly said that Mr. White has been a fine advertisement for the hitherto somewhat obscure University of Colorado—not Whizzer White, all-American back, but Byron White, educated man.

President And Mr. Roosevelt.

The human being who easily assumes that his morals are better than those of his neighbors is always vulnerable. By placing himself upon a pedestal of virtue he becomes exposed to criticisms which would not be voiced were his ethical assertions no loftier than those of the average man. And it is well that this is the case. Otherwise pompous self-righteousness, which is rare in American public life, would flourish to an intolerable degree.

It is primarily because President Roosevelt is habitually somewhat self-righteous, and somewhat unsparing in his castigation of those who are less saturated in idealism and liberality with the taxpayers' money, that an article in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post is certain to arouse Nation-wide comment. For in that article Mr. Alva Johnston applies a very dexterous scalpel to the assumption of unusual moral superiority in the Roosevelt family.

Mr. Johnston's subject is James Roosevelt, secretary and eldest son of the President. But, inferentially, father is criticized for certain aspects of son's spectacular success in "the business of political insurance." And the President is directly accused of "a violation of a famous Roosevelt doctrine" by "the covering up of Jimmy's earnings."

Estimates of these earnings, as quoted by Mr. Johnston, are placed as low as $250,000 a year and as high as $2,000,000 a year, even the lower figure may be greatly exaggerated. It is to be noted that Ambassador Kennedy has already denounced a section of the article referring to himself as "a complete, unadulterated lie." But there is much circumstantial smoke in Mr. Johnston's charges. And it is difficult to believe that no fire underlies such assertions as: "Some corporations which have given Jimmy insurance have been lucky; some corporations which have denied him insurance have been unlucky."

The President should take cognizance of this article. He should counter it by giving the same full publicity to the actual insurance income of his secretary-son as he habitually urges for economic royalists and reactionaries without special White House contacts. And he, together with son James, should counter the Johnston charges the more meticulously because there are many who will be disposed to take them at face value.

That is the case primarily because of the assumption of superior morality which the President has taken unto himself. Without the reiterated emphasis by Mr. Roosevelt on Mr. Roosevelt's rectitude there would not now be the very human disposition to believe that a younger Roosevelt foot has perhaps become entangled in some of the prolific creepers of human frailty.

In his last speech the President established a subtle differentiation between his function as President and his function as head of the Democratic Party. President Roosevelt, he said, would take no part in Democratic primaries. But Mr. Roosevelt, he explained, would probably do so, especially in issues involving "a clear misuse of my own name."

President Roosevelt might similarly ignore the Johnston article. But Franklin Delano Roosevelt cannot afford to do so. For the underlying argument of the article is that Mr. Roosevelt as President and Mr. Roosevelt as father of James, the amazingly successful insurance broker, cannot be differentiated.

The President should be able to show that this is specious. If he can so easily separate his high office from politics it should not be hard to prove that the White House has had no commercial implications whatsoever for any member of his immediate family.

Unbeautiful Potomac.

The fishermen of Greater Washington have embarked on a campaign to clean up the Potomac River and its tributaries. Their principal interest, naturally, is to improve the fresh-water fishing in this area. However, many others will be eager to join them in their efforts. Pure water, whether for swimming or merely for beholding from a clean shore, has been one of the city's most tantalizing dreams for a long time.

The Potomac has remarkable self-cleansing qualities. Where it broadens only a few miles below the District line and the sun plays full force upon it, the water is tolerably fresh. So, too, is the water above Washington. Washington, then, and its Virginia and Maryland neighbors have themselves principally to blame for the stream's unpleasant aspects as it passes the Capital. Raw sewage is the difficulty. For Washington's part, much of the city's waste is now properly treated at the new sewage plant, recently installed. But this does not affect sewage carried by the Anacostia River and by Rock Creek, the latter offending most obnoxiously following a heavy rain.

An exhaustive survey of the Rock Creek problem was made several years ago at the time when officials had it under consideration as a possible works project. The conclusion reached was that something like $3,500,000 would be needed to eliminate the pollution that pours into the creek notably at Piney Branch and Georgetown. Regarding the Anacostia and like sources of filth pouring into the Potomac, a committee comprising representatives from the several States bordering the river was named by the President some time ago to study means of control.

As yet no word has been heard from this body. Perhaps the fishermen can hasten the latter's long-awaited report. Combined with the Rock Creek study already available, such a report should point the program behind which the Izaak Waltoners could easily marshal virtually the unanimous sentiment of the region.

Easy To Talk About.

At a press conference at Hyde Park on Tuesday President Roosevelt commented approvingly upon Sweden's success in liquidating public works indebtedness by heavy taxation. He added that methods of eliminating the relief and recovery indebtedness incurred during his Administration are now being studied. Evidently the President's lively imagination has borne him away from the rather drab world of present deficits into a prosperous future where the American taxpayer will be helping the Government to clear away the mountainous national debt.

The studies will be eagerly awaited. For they will necessarily throw desirable light on the stupendous task involved in paying off the approximately $20,000,000,000 added to the public debt since 1933, plus the billions recently voted under the new spending-lending program. The Government experts will also doubtless point out that before there can be any debt reduction we have to balance the budget, which seems less likely now than five year ago.

Despite the President's optimism we seem far removed today from the time when debt accumulation will give way to debt reduction. The Treasury statement for June 25 shows expenditures to be approximately $1,400,000,000 in excess of receipts for the fiscal year. Revenues, chiefly from taxation, total $6,200,000,000—a figure which includes over $750,000,000 of pay-roll taxes collected under the social insurance and railway retirement acts. During the coming year tax revenues are expected to be lower, while outlays will be much higher. It would be more practical under such conditions for the President to speculate on the degree of retrenchment necessary to cover current expenditures out of the proceeds of taxation.

Taxpayers will have a heavy load to carry when the budget is finally balanced, even without making any provision for debt reduction. Herculean efforts would be required to eliminate the Roosevelt debt within the space of a few years. Certainly it could not be done by merely broadening the income-tax base, as some have suggested. That is a reform desirable in itself, but as a method of producing revenue it would be of limited efficacy. The amount that the low-income groups could in reason be asked to contribute to the cost of Government would not go far toward retiring $20,000,000,000 and more of public debt. And in the upper income-tax brackets, the rates of taxation already approach confiscation.

Under these circumstances, it looks as though the Roosevelt debt will be left as a legacy of the New Deal for future generations. Our children will be fortunate if the present generation is able to achieve even a modest percentage of debt reduction before they are called upon to pay for present extravagance.

The Big Top Folds.

The "greatest show on earth" has folded its tents but, unlike the Arabs, is far from silently stealing away. On the contrary, the Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey Circus is moving back to Florida winter quarters amid an angry antiphony of employers shouting "Strike!" and employes answering, "Lockout!" Performers and roustabouts having refused to accept a 25 per cent wage cut, owners of the circus have abruptly closed the show in mid-season.

Apparently the rest of the country was not so enthusiastic as Washington about the circus this year. During its stay here, it played to near-capacity audiences at every performance. And this is strange because trained seals and other creatures that fall into line at the crack of a whip are not so much a novelty here as in other sections remote from Capitol Hill. Again, this city—of all others—might have been expected to yawn at exhibitions of tight-rope walking and ridiculous false faces. Instead, Washingtonians turned out in droves to see the circus. It must have been the rare opportunity to see a healthy elephant that attracted the local crowds.

But whatever the cause of the circus' collapse, it is sad. The old "bread and circuses" formula has an undying appeal. Assuredly, the movies are the twentieth century's adaptation of Rome's gladiatorial diversions. But no amount of camera skill has yet equaled the thrill of three-dimensional open-air entertainment. Pity the child who grows up without ever having gasped at an aerialist in azure tights, without having cried when the clowns began their battle royal, without having seen a lion tamer in action or a bear ride a bicycle or a beautifully spangled lady twirl by her teeth on a rope high up under a yellow, billowing tent top.

Charge Of "Bungling."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

After reading in The Post of June 26 your editorial entitled "Out of Their Role," I feel that I should comment upon its remarkable temperateness and restraint.

Its subject was the sponsorship by certain highly placed Government officials of a meeting held on June 27 at which a prominent Mexican labor agitator, Vicente Lombardo Toledano, was the principal speaker. This gentleman, as you state, is considered to be the man behind President Cardenas' plan for the expropriation of American property. Another speaker on the program was John Brophy, director of the C. I. O. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Washington Branch of the American League for Peace and Democracy, and the sponsors included John Carmody, Fred Silcox, Mary Anderson, Robert Marshall, Dr. John Gray, Francis Gorman, Mordecai Ezekiel, Dr. Pedro de Alba, Stuart A. Rice and Isador Lubin.

As I was walking past the Department of Labor Building last Saturday, I noticed that at the main entrances of that imposing structure yellow hand-bills were being passed out. I meekly accepted one of them. It happened to be a warm sultry morning, and I had not slept well the night before. That may have been the reason why I reacted so violently to the information conveyed by the hand-bills, which were, in fact, announcements of the meeting referred to above. However that may be, when I saw that influential Government officials were taking a conspicuous part in the affair, I became flushed and apoplectic.

After a restless night of tossing and of troubled dreams, how soothing it was to read Sunday morning your dispassionate editorial analysis of the affair which had so perplexed and excited my poor brain! The Jovian calmness of your utterance was like a cooling touch upon my fevered brow. When, in my semi-delirium, I had thought of the actions of these Government officials, I had caught myself employing such extravagant terms as "dastardly" and "traitorous." How relieved I was to learn from your editorial that all they had been guilty of was "bungling!" I realize now that the activities which, in my distraught condition, I had thought of as being subversive and sinister were actually the honest, well-meaning efforts of loyal public servants striving to do their duty under the American Constitution.

When, some day, your journalistic ivory tower comes tumbling down and my jerry-built, very bourgeois two-story home goes up in flames, we shall be serene in the knowledge that it wasn't planned that way, but that somebody merely bungled. Thanks for the word!

Housing Needs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

According to the official figures quoted in the press, "an average of 3,500 homes are being financed each week under the FHA plan," or a total yearly volume of 175,000 dwellings. Conservative estimates placed the need from 1937 to 1950 each year at some 818,000 new homes for housing additional families and for replacements to take care of obsolescence, or a total of 10,634,000 dwelling units in the 13-year period.

At the rate mentioned, the FHA would only account for 2,275,000 new homes in the same period. Either this agency will have to accelerate its insurance commitments or a great amount of building financed in other ways must be undertaken in order to fill a yearly shortage of 643,000 units.

In Defense Of Peace Lobbyists.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

A correspondent, T. A. B. Barefoot, condemns "peace lobbyists" and claims that "most of our peace lobbyists are . . . cringing weaklings, absorbed with emotional propaganda about the horrors of war until unable to face the problem like men." Barefoot also accuses them of "cringing before the prospect of war, and rationalizing fear into silly slogans," and "peace societies can not fool all the people, can not convert all our he-men into cringing weaklings."

This writer is what one might call a he-man, and I saw horrors of war by military service. I am not a member of any peace organization nor a peace worker. As a former newspaperman, I had a lot of contact with peace societies and peace workers, and I was for a long time under the foolish impression that most of them were somewhat rattle-brained; until last year, when I decided to make an impartial study of the peace movement and see for myself what it was all about. I recommend that your correspondent do the same and it will clear up his (or her) muddled thinking. According to the records which I studied for several months I found an unusually large percentage of peace workers who know all about the horrors of war from having served in the last one. They learned a lot of things in the trenches which flag-waving propagandists in easy chairs back home had neglected to mention. The majority of peace-organization leaders are extremely well educated, unusually level-headed, sane thinkers and not at all inclined to be easily swayed by emotionalism. Their immunity to hysterical war propaganda makes them, in the eyes of avaricious propagandists for the warmongers, a deadly enemy who must be discredited at all costs.

Only a tiny percentage of the peace workers appear to be radicals or communistically inclined. Most peace-organization leaders are either noted educators, ministers, social workers, statesmen, former diplomats or mothers who realize that their children were born for nobler purposes than to be mangled on a battlefield. I met many leaders of peace societies (in my study) and found none of them emotionally inclined in their views, but their ability to see clearly on important issues in the face of rabble-rousing war propaganda seems only to make them better fighters for peace.

I found nothing of the "cringing weakling, incapable of facing problems like men" about these people. Most of them are strong-minded, of proven ability as leaders, and fully capable of meeting and conquering problems like real men. They appear to be fighters for right principles, because they certainly are not in the peace movement for any possible profit. They are probably the poorest paid class in any line calling for such a caliber of intelligence and leadership. As a whole the peace movement is extremely poor in money, but rich in spirit.

Correspondent Barefoot claims the peace movement shows signs of petering out (a fond hope of all warmongers). Baloney! There are nearly 600 peace groups in the United States, nearly 500 in England, and over 700 more in 63 other countries, including Japan, Italy, Germany, Spain and China. More peace agencies are being born all the time, and if the world is kept out of another crazy business like what happened a generation ago, it will only be because of the effective work of these 2,000 or more groups who are crusading with all of their physical, mental and moral strength for a victory of righteousness over viciousness.

Many of these organizations propose a great variety of methods for ending war, and a few are quite militant in their aims, but it cannot be truly said that any of them are motivated by a cringing weakness or a defeatist approach to the problem of war.

Because of the power for good which most of these peace groups are wielding and because that power is increasing, the opposition is driven to all forms of mud slinging, condemnation, lies and vicious propaganda against the peace societies which only a greedy-minded warmonger can generate. Your correspondent is only parroting some of their silly propaganda, and foolishly giving aid to those who profit from human butchery.

A Stockholder's View.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

As the possessor of a few shares of stock, common and preferred, of a large corporation, I assume that I am, theoretically at least, a part owner of the corporation. My participation in its management in the past has been confined to signing the proxies that are sent me and returning them to the business office.

In purchasing the stock, I was interested merely in an investment, and gave little thought to the nature of the industry or the uses to which its products might be put. Recently, however, I have felt concerned about these matters. I am wondering whether my absentee ownership involves any moral responsibility.

So complete is my ignorance of the activities of the corporation which I, with many others, am supposed in part to own, that I do not even know whether it is one of the American concerns that is supplying steel for the use of countries now engaged in waging wars of aggression in which all the decencies of international law are disregarded. I do know that steel is one of the essentials for munitions of war. I understand that it is being purchased in this country by or for belligerant powers. And I know that my corporation is one of the leading producers of steel in this country. There would, therefore, seem to be strong possibility of its participation.

Although corporations are soulless, responsibility for their actions must be lodged somewhere. Part of it rests with the management. In the last analysis, however, some of it must go back to the persons who purchase the stock, regardless of their ignorance. For myself, as one of these purchasers, I should much prefer to forego all dividends and profits and let the capital shrink to nothing rather than have any part of it come from such a tainted source.

Mr. Bahnsen Replies.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

For the lese majeste of New Deal agnosticism, I am accused by Mr. John Riggles of talking like a Liberty League affiliate of the "60 families." Plea: Not guilty, though in my "blast" with which he differs, he seemingly misses my point. It carried no mention of "watered utility stocks," only ready, available but reluctant capital.

However, it surely did refer to New Deal policies which have tended to keep depressed conditions permanent; and to the "watered stock" of public debt under control of squandermania, which has never been accused of knowing when to turn off a faucet.

What this means to future generations, even the present one, is evidenced in terms of door-haunting wolves whose profusion—together with the debt digits—symbolize whatever "greater abundance" is visible.

Industry only asks encouragement to carry the load—dislodge the wolves as steady guests. A few New Dealers, shedding their Napoleonic halos, have touched feet to earth. Vindictiveness as a utility policy is to be dropped; the "good neighbor" policy is to get more than lip service. These necessary adjuncts will resume place as recovery agents, on a par with building and railroads. We could use much more of this, less of what we have been getting.

WALTER BAHNSEN.

Washington, June 23.

One Suggestion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Jim Farley and other apologists for the New Deal state that the critics suggest nothing to bring back prosperity.

I am suggesting that all the economic and social security laws passed by the New Dealers be repealed and then assurance be given that no more will be enacted. Some few of these laws have partial merit, but former hard times, depressions, recessions, obsessions and repressions have been more quickly conquered without them.

The Post Impressionist

Time For Intermission.

MAYBE you spent the day out—driving in the mountains, or relaxing on the beach. But considering the number of cars with radios you may have noticed that last Sunday was quite a day for music on the air.

If I am more keenly aware of this than you, it's because we decided to seek cool and quiet in our own darkened living room, withdrawn from the heat and hurry of the outside world. Only the radio linked us.

It was quite a day, indeed. From mid-morning until bedtime there was such an outpouring of the classics—string quartets, symphonies and chorals—as should quench the thirst of the most insatiable music lover. Hardly an hour went by without its Mozart, Beethoven or Brahms. It all worked me up to a state of mind in which I wonder about the judgment of those malcontents who lament their receiving sets bring them nothing but drivel.

In fact, I wonder if I shouldn't line myself solidly against them with a protest of my own. I would like to write some one the following letter:

"Dear Sir:

"I like good music. Throughout last season I attended all the concerts I could. I listened to all the broadcasts I could—earned the dislike of visiting friends by clamping down on all conversation when concerts were on the air. I heard Bach, Beethoven and Brahms over and over again. When programs overlapped so that we heard the "Pastoral" three times in one week I said: 'Swell. Marvelous chance to compare Toscanini with Barbirolli.' I didn't keep a record of all the things I heard, but the list would undoubtedly be impressive—dozens of symphonies, dozens of string quartets, a long string of operas and countless operatic excerpts.

"So I like good music. But may I point out that we are nearing the end of June—way past the end of the music season. It's time for intermission."

I realize the letter will have to be rewritten. I don't want any one to get the impression I am asking for a music moratorium. I seek rather one of those between-season breathing spells—at least a change of diet, something light and airy like summer.

Now Sunday's programs read like a festival for the most arched of highbrows. I heard during the course of the day Schumann's "Quartet in D Minor," and his "Fourth Symphony;" the "Third Symphony" of Brahms; Beethoven's "Quartet Opus 18, No. 2;" madrigals by French composers of the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. At one time a program commentator came on to defend some of it. He gave assurances that you can make out of given music almost anything you want to—that you needn't see moonlight in the "Moonlight" sonata (as, indeed, Beethoven didn't), and so on. That was fair enough, but then he dove right into a discussion of the aims and functions of his art, and once I heard him mention "the deep philosophies of Strauss and Shostakovich." Now that, I submit, is too much of a problem for a day when the thermometer is cracking through the nineties. I hope, for his own sake, the speaker was enjoying an air-conditioned studio.

Orchestra conductors, and commentators, too, are taking their jobs too seriously, that's all. They've been working hard and long, and now they feel they have us hanging onto their every note and word, I suppose they consider it a mission to carry on. I wish we could make them understand that if they press their drive all summer they'll have our fine cultural arraignment, and our nerves, worn to a frazzle by the time the regular season rolls around

A real counterattack from the ranks of music lovers is in order. With summer concert seasons, not only on the radio, but in many of our large cities as well, more of a reality than ever, we are faced, friends, with a serious threat—the loss of a well-earned spiritual lull. Will we submit to perpetual culture priming? Or are we men?

We can rise up against the evil without any danger to our standing with those "who appreciate the finer things in life." We don't want revolution; we want rest.

I propose beginning our campaign right at home. Plans for another season of summer concerts at the Watergate are under way. Without questioning for a moment the intentions, wisdom and concern for our moral welfare of those who direct these plans, let us make our position clear:

"We want summer concerts. But, please, please, give us summer music."

Brahms on summer evenings frequented the beer gardens of Vienna and contributed some fine waltzes and songs for the appropriate enjoyment of those around the tables. He wouldn't pull out a symphony at such a time. Even the great Bach took off his wig once in a while to write a light, humorous piece. And to get to modern times, Richard Strauss—whose ability to pierce the depths of profound thought was recalled by Sunday's commentator—can offer music less ponderous and more romantic for a warm night under the moon and stars.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

What's Wrong With This Picture?

Nothing has disillusioned the world, particularly the youthful world, more this summer than all this news of labor trouble in the circus. We all thought circus workers were one big happy, carefree family, with no more use for money than an elephant has for pearls.

• • • •

Hasn't every boy had the urge to run away with the circus? And did he ever lay awake nights worrying over the money end of it?

• • • •

Could you ever imagine a kid reasoning it out this way: "Gee, I'd like to join the Barnum & Bailey show . . . but first I must satisfy my mind on the wages and hours schedule!"

• • • •

Not a chance. The circus seemed part of a dream world of tinsel, spangles, pink tights, clashing cymbals, steam calliopes, calcium lights, sawdust, clowns, wild animals and unrestrained "Ahs!" and "Ohs!" A boy thought of ever-changing sunrises in ever-changing cities; of crowds at the railroad yards; of staking out the lot with the dew still heavy on the grass; of pungent odors; of animal trainers, bare-back riders and brass bands. Oh, man!

• • • •

It seemed the one world where everybody was happy and nobody gave a serious thought to an item such as money. You always felt there was one place where wages were a minor matter.

• • • •

What if a circus worker got only $10 a week and board? He knew the elephant trainer by his first name, didn't he? He saw that clown act twice a day, didn't he? What if he had pretty long hours? He could drive those four white horses to and from the grounds, couldn't he? He knew all those trapeze performers, didn't he?

• • • •

There seemed as much chance of a strike in a circus as a walkout from a picnic. A labor speech in the big tent always struck us as incredible as a picket on a Ferris wheel.

• • • •

And now the world of dream stuff and illusion has been bashed amidships. Circus workers actually ACCEPT money for being with the show!

• • • •

They count their working hours like other people!

• • • •

They think of things like dollars and cents in a realm of lions, pink lemonade and baby elephants!

• • • •

It's a Dizzy Pace!

American Minorities.

OUR ASSURANCE of minority protection in America lies chiefly in the peculiar composition of American society itself. We are a Nation with no permanently preponderant group in religion, in nationality, in tradition, in interest, or in opinion. While we have rule by the will of the greater number, we have no dominating and persistent single group.

We have no majority at all except as it is made up from time to time, through a coalition of many minorities. Political majorities are transient, and are achieved through fusion of those of many races, creeds, occupations and economic positions. A political majority thus made up cannot oppress any minor division without frightening away the support of its own constituent parts. It can remain the greater number only so long as its doctrine and policy are just and acceptable in the eyes of many minorities. This may be a national weakness in terms of power. It is a strength in terms of liberty.

• • • •

EVERY AMERICAN of understanding, instead of being possessed by a power complex, is minority-conscious, for neither in faith, class nor party can he say that he is of an assured majority. Any overbearing party would offend all men who thus comprehend their positions in our society, and minority rights can only be invaded by a conspiracy among minorities themselves. This construction of our basic society distinguishes us from most nations of the world and has significant influence in making America a sanctuary for harassed liberty.

I do not overlook that local oppressions may occur. An organization of party, interest, creed or opinion may temporarily dominate a community and outrage its freedom. And it may disturb the peace of broader areas by inspiring imitations of its tyranny or, more likely, by provoking retaliatory oppressions in other localities where the proportionate strength is reversed. But these are transient and mild oppressions, compared with the tyranny of which a homogeneous and impassioned national majority is capable.

For this diversified society that protects liberty we owe thanks to many nations which have sent some of their sons and daughters, and equal thanks that no one has sent a preponderance over all others. We welcome the many such influences; we could not welcome such domination.

• • • •

NOT THE LEAST in our gratitude are those Scandinavian countries whose sturdy venturers founded a civilization here three centuries ago. The Scandinavian group of nations has sent us many honest, industrious and God-fearing people. Those who have sought riches and opportunity on these shores have brought from the lands of their birth self-reliance, thrift and solid character. They have brought a culture of sane living and social stability. They have brought us technical competence, craftsmen of many skills and arts that enrich life. They have brought us those same ideals of liberal and progressive government, of social security and economic justice which have been so conspicuously successful in their home lands. We who have gladly adopted them express to you of their native land the pride and satisfaction we take in your continued contributions to our national life, as well as in that initial emigration of 300 years ago which occasions our meeting today.

That first settlement the people of Finland are commemorating today by giving to the people of the United States this beautiful and impressive monument. It depicts on one side the departure from Finland, and on the reverse side the arrival here of those sturdy first settlers. It is a fitting symbol. It is of Finnish granite as solid as Finnish integrity; it was wrought by Finnish skill and has a symmetry and harmony that reminds us of the poise and balance of Scandinavian life. And, as if to symbolize the friendship between the Finnish and the American peoples, it is imperishable, as nearly as the hand of man can fashion.

• • • •

THIS GIFT which the people of the Republic of Finland offer through their distinguished Minister of Foreign Affairs, I have been commissioned by President Roosevelt to accept for a grateful American people.

Perhaps the representatives of no two governments could meet in a common commemoration with less reservation than do the representatives of Finland and of the United States. When an ancient country like your own successfully set up in the twentieth century a democratic government, you sustained and strengthened our own faith in democracy. And you have been generous in crediting our pioneering in democratic theory and practice as an inspiration to your effort. Both nations love peace and are devoted to liberty. The success of each sustains the faith of the other. In history we cannot cite, and in the future we cannot anticipate, any occasion or cause for strain or uneasy relations in our diplomacy or commerce.

Last of Temporary Structures Doomed to Come Down

This is "Temporary No. 2," the last of seven wartime emergency buildings erected in Washington, which will be razed within two years.

Last 'Temporary'

'No. 2,' Marked For Demolition To Make Room For Interior Annex, Is Squat, Ugly Reminder Of Wartime Days.

By Edward T. Folliard

It stands on the triangle bounded by Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, D street and New York avenue northwest—a squat, firetrap of a building designed as "Temporary No. 2."

It is the last of the "temporary" buildings that were slapped together during the World War, an ugly souvenir of those days when Washington was transformed from a sleepy Southern town into a humming world capital; of the days when the cry went up for more space for a bloated War Department, and the number of Government employes here rocketed from 39,000 to 117,760.

Built at a time when America was observing meatless days and trying in other ways to cut down on food consumption, "Temporary No. 2" today houses the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, which buys up farm products that otherwise might rot on the ground.

However, the days of this architectural relic are numbered. It is expected to come down within two years, perhaps to make room for an annex to the new Interior Department Building.

Originally there were seven temporary buildings in this area. No. 1, which once housed the Food Administration, came down to make way for the new Interior Building. No. 7, once south of the new building, was headquarters for a company of soldiers that guarded the White House in 1917-18.

One of the temporary buildings, No. 4, was destroyed by fire. It used to house the Federal Trade Commission.

There was another group of temporary war-time buildings in the area bounded by Sixth and Seventh streets and stretching southward from what is now Constitution avenue. They were designated by letters ranging from A to F.

With one exception, they have been leveled to make way for the Mall development, L'Enfant's "Grand Park," and for the magnificent art gallery given to the Nation by the late Andrew Mellon.

Building E, only structure remaining of this group, is not strictly a temporary building, according to Hubert L. Wooten, of the National Park Service. He said it might better be described as "semi-permanent," since it was more thoroughly constructed than the others. It now houses the World War records of the Adjutant General's office of the War Department.

Also classed as "semi-permanent" are the Navy Building and Munitions Building on Constitution avenue, between Nineteenth and Twenty-first streets northwest. They were built to last for 15 years, according to Mr. Wooten, whereas buildings like "Temporary No. 2" were strictly duration-of-the-war structures.

Besides the two groups of temporary buildings mentioned, there was a third group known as the Government Dormitories. These were erected to house women war workers and were located between the Capitol and Union Station.

Notwithstanding the many Government office buildings erected in the Federal Triangle and along Constitution avenue west of Seventh street, Uncle Sam remains a tenant on a large scale, his annual rent bill totaling between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000, an all-time peak.

A start will be made this year on new buildings for the War Department, the Social Security Administration and the Railway Retirement Board. These buildings will make a considerable dent in the Government's rent bill, but the prospect is that it will be a long time before Uncle Sam gets away from landlords altogether.

Campfire Program, Lecture Tomorrow

A campfire program with a "Hawaii Night" illustrated lecture will be held tomorrow night at 8 p. m. in Rock Creek Park, it was announced yesterday by C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent, National Capital Parks. The program will take place at Pierce Mill picnic grove, Rock Creek Park at Beach Drive and Tilden street.

The lecture will be given by Merle S. Sager, of the National Park Service. The public may reach the picnic grove on a special bus which will leave Sixteenth street and Park road northwest, between 7:30 and 8 p. m. In case of rain, the program will be transferred to the auditorium of the North Interior Building, F street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets northwest, and will begin at 8:30 p. m.

Questions and Answers.

Q. How many excepted positions are there in the Federal Trade Commission?

A. Forty-seven; 312 are civil service employes.

Q. Are any of the positions in HOLC under the civil service?

A. No.

Q. Are any of the Reconstruction Finance Corcopration employes subject to civil service laws and regulations?

A. No, by act of Congress.

Q. There seems to be confusion as to whether the veteran loses military preference under the executive orders. Please explain.

A. The executive order restates almost word for word the existing laws, viz—the executive order of March 3, 1923, pertaining to military preference. It is quite likely that this provision was repeated to assure the veterans that military preference had not been waived. To allay any fears, it is extremely doubtful whether an executive order could ever waive military preference. There is still on the books and act of Congress (37 Stat., 413, August 23, 1912) which provides for military preference.

• • • •

Q. Explain Rule 15 of the Civil Service Rules and show amendments of rules by the executive order.

A. This is Section 7 of the Civil Service act and provides for withholding any salary of any employe occupying a position by original appointment in violation of the Civil Service act. This provision, rarely invoked, provides for notification to appointing officer to dismiss the employe holding the job illegally. If no action be taken in ten days, the commission is authorized to notify the disbursing officer to stop pay. The executive order has extended Rule 15 to include those holding positions contrary to civil service regulations, whether by original appointment, promotion, assignment, transfer or reinstatement. The executive order has increased the power and prestige of the commission by at least 50 per cent.

Q. Suppose the examination is not a written test and is accomplished by Form 375— is it possible for another Administration to take me out of the classified service?

A. It is doubtful whether another executive order could remove you out of classified service—but it is possible that an attempt might be made. You may recall the Alcohol Unit workers whom Senator McKellar attempted to unseat by showing that they did not stand a written examination.

• • • •

Q. Will the examination be a written test?

A. It would seem that filling out Form 375 showing qualifications, education and experience would be sufficient. It is pertinent that the commission scarcely has the funds and time and personnel to give various written examinations.

• • • •

The Federal Personnel Association rushes in this note: "Unnoticed behind the executive order extending the civil service to many emergency employes, the President promulgated a completely revised set of civil service rules. The changes involved, visible only to the eye of one who expertly compares the new rules with the old, are much more extensive than at first supposed." In consequence, the association will meet at 8 o'clock this evening in 908 G street to take up the new rules paragraph by paragraph for study. This address is the McGill Building. Members and nonmembers are invited to participate in the dissection.

Walter Henry Beal will retire today from the Department of Agriculture, where he served the Office of Experiment Stations for over 47 years. His retirement status was as a principal experiment station administrator. A native of Virginia and graduate of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, he was appointed in the department on February 27, 1891, about three years after the Office of Experiment Stations was established. For several years, he was the only man on the staff of the office who served with the original organization. Throughout the entire period he was in charge of the editorial supervision of most publications of the office, was a member of the editorial staff of Experiment Station Records and a contributor to many encyclopedias, year books and other works of reference. His co-workers will wish him a happy retirement today and present him an easy chair.

Stern Warning

By Barnet Nover

Hainan Enters The Picture.

THE SOUTHERNMOST region in China is the mountainous island of Hainan. Separated from Kwangtung Province by a narrow channel, it fronts the South China Sea on the east and the Gulf of Tongking on the west.

The island's economic resources are said to be considerable but largely untapped and there is probably room on it for far more than the two to three million inhabitants who occupy its 1,300 square miles.

But these are not the considerations which have recently impelled Japan to cast longing eyes on Hainan and to make plans to add the region to the already extensive area under Japanese occupation.

Japan is only incidentally interested, if at all, in Hainan's vast and almost untouched supplies of tropical woods, its potential rubber-growing area, its tropical fruits. Nor do the authorities in Tokyo envisage the South China island as a place which can help drain Japan of part of its surplus population. Japan's interest in Hainan is, at the moment, almost entirely strategic, direct product of the undeclared war now almost a year old.

• • • •

IN JAPAN'S hands Hainan can be an extremely useful air base enabling the Mikado's fliers to continue the bombardment of South China cities, such as Canton, while keeping a watchful eye on the railroad which connects French Indo-China with the Chinese Province of Yunnan.

This railroad is and for some time has been one of the subsidiary routes by which military and other supplies from the outside world have reached Chiang Kai-shek's armies. And should the Japanese succeed in effectively shutting off Canton from Hankow, and thus closing the main channel of war supplies to the Chinese armies as they have tried so desperately to do, the Yunnanfu Railroad would increase in importance to China.

It would be a mistake, however, to suppose that the covetous eyes which Japan is now casting in the direction of Hainan is simply and solely an incident of the present war. It is more than that. It represents as well an expression of one of the dominant trends in Japan's thinking on foreign affairs, and one which antedates the present war by many years.

• • • •

IN JAPAN both the army and navy have favored imperialist expansion. But, generally speaking, while the army's eyes have been turned to the west, i.e., the mainland, those of the navy have looked to the south.

Thus while the generals have regarded Russia as the enemy who must sooner or later be fought and overcome, the admirals have tended to single out Great Britain as Japan's major foe. In the opinion of some of them Japan's manifest destiny necessarily involves a continuance of the southward movement that began with the occupation of the Ryukyu Islands in the 1870s, that continued with the annexation of Formosa in 1895 and that reached a temporay climax with the establishment after the World War of a Japanese mandate over the German islands north of the equator.

The more ambitious among them anticipate the day when the Rising Sun flag will fly over Hongkong, the Philippines and the oil-saturated and rubber-rich Dutch East Indies. In the achievement of such a program Japanese control of Hainan would have its great strategic value.

With Japan established at Hainan the French might find themselves in a precarious position so far as Indo-China is concerned. Hainan is on the other side of the Gulf of Tongking from Indo-China. On the other hand Hongkong would be placed in a vise with Japanese bases north and south of it and Singapore would also be threatened.

• • • •

NO WONDER, then, that the reaction both in Paris and London to Japan's threatened occupation of Hainan has been singularly sharp and drastic. Tokyo has been warned that any landing of Japanese troops on that island would result in "undesirable complications," with Great Britain and France prepared to take "whatever action the circumstances demanded."

Apparently there is a limit beyond which the London and Paris governments will not permit Japan to go in disregard of their interests. That which not even an attack on the person of a British ambassador failed to provoke, a threat to occupy the island of Hainan apparently has done.

The reasons for British and French alarm have already been cited. But the drastic nature of their warning to Tokyo is also explainable on one other ground. That is the circumstance that, after 12 months of war, Japan is obviously weaker than it was when the fighting in China began and weaker not only in manpower and material resources but also in prestige.

The likelihood that Japan will ignore stern warnings by other powers, particularly when these warnings are accompanied by an unmistakable determination to take strong action, if necessary, to prevent Japanese encroachments, is no longer as great as was deemed probable some time ago.

Thus, while in Europe Great Britain and France continued to be the prey of fears and hesitations, self-deluded victims of the bluff and bluster of aggressive powers, in Asia their policies are striking a more rugged note as the aggressor's weakness is made manifest.

Turns With A Bookworm

IN REGARD to "Free Land," though we have not asked the author for an authoritative interpretation, it appears to us that nobody has mentioned the main point of the book, the note of irony in the title. . . .

The implication, as we understand it, is that "free land" cost the settler as much as if he had paid for the same acreage in developed country . . . If he put a good deal of cash capital into it, and 10 years of hard work, then it might some day be worth something . . . At least, there was a chance.

• • • •

WITH THIS THESIS, it does expose the falsity of the perennial statement of amateur economists that "the frontier" and free land was formerly the remedy which pulled us out of depressions, and therefore, since that recourse no longer exists, we have to have a totalitarian state . . . The frontier did nothing at all for depressions, because an unemployed man without some money and goods couldn't settle on wild land . . . He'd have starved to death immediately, if he didn't freeze first . . . The economic use of the frontier was quite the reverse; it absorbed surplus capital in good times; it was a long-term investment, if it was an investment . . . During depressions people came back from the frontier instead of going there . . . However, this fallacy about the frontier is only one of a million nonsensical theories now floating about . . . No doubt if our amateur economists didn't believe that they'd think up something else just as erroneous. . . . They've got the knack . . .

• • • •

LINCOLN COLCORD remarked to us recently that human beings can stand hardships which are incredible and appalling to hear about . . . How could men work a sailing ship around the Horn, when the luck happened to run against them? . . . One might almost say they couldn't, but they did. Now we hope and wish that the necessity for such endurance may be more and more avoided in the future; but there is a curious danger in this safety, for human beings grow more afraid the less they are called upon to face . . . The imagination defeats them in simple enterprises, because they have never learned what they really can do . . . That is one thing that is depressing the spirits of mankind today . . . They are burdened by fear of things other men have gone through . . . It is a reasonable dread, but produces irrational huddling and paralysis of the will, so that they submit to dictatorships and herd impulses, which in the end will make them suffer more than any free courageous action could. . . .

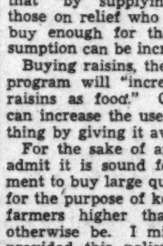
Columnist Scores Wallace And AAA For Buying Relief Foodstuffs At High Prices, Thus Kiting Food Costs Everywhere.

SECRETARY WALLACE and the AAA are buying large quantities of foodstuffs with Government money. Apparently the AAA buys these foodstuffs at a price slightly above the market, or in such a way as to prevent the price of food from going down. Putting it that way is to say that Secretary Wallace and the AAA are keeping the cost of living up. But the AAA doesn't put it that way—that would be politically harmful. They would probably say, if questioned, that their purpose is to keep the prices of farm crops up. But they don't put it that way either. The AAA has a variety of mild and indirect phrases they use.



SULLIVAN.

Announcing purchases of potatoes, the AAA says the purpose is "to support farm prices of potatoes" . . . buying apples, the AAA says the purpose is "to stabilize the apple market and improve returns to producers" . . . buying vegetables—carrots, beets, cabbages, and snap beans—the AAA says the purpose is "to buy surplus fresh vegetables during periods of market glut" . . . buying flour, the AAA says the purpose is to "divert a substantial supply of surplus wheat from normal trade channels" . . . buying canned peas, the AAA says the purpose is to "remove from regular commercial channels a quantity of surplus peas" . . . buying raisins, the AAA says the purpose is to "remove part of the surplus from normal trade channels."

In one or two of its announcements, the AAA almost lets the cat out of the bag:

Buying cheese, the AAA says the purpose is "to assist producers." Well, it certainly is not to assist consumers.

Buying cane sirup, the AAA says "the program was requested by the sirup industry." We can safely assume it was not requested by consumers.

Buying peas, the AAA says the purpose is "to assist the industry in expanding the consumption of peas." Certainly, anybody can expand consumption of anything if he has millions of Government money with which to buy it.

Buying potatoes, the AAA says that "by supplying potatoes to those on relief who are not able to buy enough for their needs, consumption can be increased.

Buying raisins, the AAA says the program will "increase the use of raisins as food." Certainly. You can increase the use of almost anything by giving it away.

For the sake of argument, let us admit it is sound for the Government to buy large quantities of food for the purpose of keeping prices to farmers higher than they would otherwise be. I might admit this provided this policy were accompanied by certain policies. Most certainly I would not admit it when, at the same time, the Government follows various other policies it now practices. Nevertheless, for the sake of argument, let's admit it and turn to another phase of the process.

Mr. Wallace and AAA, after buying this food at prices higher than they need to pay, give it to persons on relief. But if persons on relief are to be supported by the Government, ought not the Government buy the food for them at as low prices as good food can be bought? There is something wrong about Mr. Wallace acting in two capacities with two contradictory purposes—to buy food for persons on relief and to keep the prices of food up.

What Mr. Wallace is doing leads to strange consequences. He makes the price of some kinds of food so high that persons of small means or small income cannot buy as much as they would like, or at all. At the same time persons on relief get it for nothing. I quote a letter from a puzzled citizen of Seward, Nebr.

"Early last winter, in buying butter for my family, I discovered the price was rising. In fact it was approaching the limit of my ability to buy. I told myself that if the price went above 40 cents per pound I would be compelled, in the interest of economy, to quit eating butter and go over to oleomargarine, though I had never purchased a pound of oleo.

"Well, it happened. When the price of butter reached 42 cents, I bought oleo instead. Subsequently the price of butter went down, but I continued to buy oleo because I want to save—since buying that first pound of oleo we have had no butter in the house. The oleo is not bad. But I ask, who is eating the butter while I have to be content with oleo?

Officer Argued Before Killing, Witness Avers

dead man was guilty of speeding, driving after drinking, resisting arrest and trying to run down the arresting officers. Defense witnesses, he said, would tell of a wild chase during which Daugherty reached a speed of 80 miles an hour before being stopped on the Lee Highway.

Douglas implied he would not ask a verdict of first degree murder for the young defendant. Defining the terms first and second degree and voluntary and involuntary homicide, he said, "The State asks that you find the defendant guilty of homicide in the degree you will set."

Urging the jurors to "keep your eyes on the ball," he declared the central issue to be "the killing of Theodore B. Daugherty, although other issues may be brought in—and I suspect some red herring will be dragged across the trail, some effort made to impeach the dead man."

Subsequently Ball protested Douglas' description of Daugherty as "a peaceful musician with many accomplishments," declaring he would like to show "the occupation this man had been engaged in for some time." A sustained objection prevented him from continuing.

Widow Is Puzzled.

Questioned during the next recess, Mrs. Daugherty said she could not interpret Ball's reference to her late husband's occupation. "He was an engineer, of course, and had just finished supervising the building of a new house," she explained. "But I can't think what Mr. Ball was getting at. We had just returned here after being in California, you know."

She revealed that only that morning she had received a letter addressed to her husband containing an offer of a Government job as Diesel engineer. His trip to California had been for the purpose of taking a course in Diesel engineering, she said.

Harry Fraziert's testimony, combined with that of James Bennett, proprietor of a Falls Church night club, furnished the following account of Daugherty's last evening on earth

He had dinner about 8 o'clock March 19 at his Kenyon street home with his wife, Frazier, a sister-in-law and two friends. Afterward he and Frazier drove to Four Corners, where he had a bottle of beer; then to a Georgia avenue restaurant, where each had a beer; thence to a Georgetown liquor store, where Frazier bought a half-pint bottle, and finally Chimney Villa, Bennett's establishment, where they spent the rest of the evening.

Deny He Drank.

Daugherty had with him his piano accordion and spent the time between 10 p. m. and shortly after 1 a. m. playing with the orchestra. As an old friend of Bennett ("He called me "Daddy," Bennett testified), Daugherty contributed the performance voluntarily. Witnesses denied under cross-examination, that he took anything to drink, having complained of feeling ill.

When the establishment closed, Daugherty rejoined Frazier, who had been sitting outside in the automobile, and they drove to the Frazier home. After pulling up in the side yard of the house, they opened the bottle and each took a drink. Frazier left the car to go to the bathroom. When he returned, he said, Daugherty was talking with a man in a policeman's uniform. After the man had left, Daugherty told his brother-in-law the man was Scheid.

Frazier then told the jury of seeing Daugherty's car followed down the Leesburg pike. "And that's the last I saw until they woke me up about 5 o'clock and told me Ted Daugherty was dead," he concluded.

Driver Last Witness.

J. F. Bean, Hazel's Dairy driver, was the last witness to testify before Judge Walter T. McCarthy recessed the court at 5:30 p. m. Shortly after 2 a. m. the day of the shooting, Bean said, he approached the intersection of Seventeenth street and Glebe road, Falls Church, in his milk truck.

"I saw a machine go by on Glebe road without lights at 45 or 50 miles an hour," he said. "I saw lettering on the car but couldn't make it out. I heard a siren about ten minutes after the machine went by."

He explained that the unlighted car was the only automobile in sight, and that his range of vision extended one block up Glebe road and two blocks in the other direction.

County Coroner W. C. Welburn, the first Government witness, testified that Daugherty's death resulted from "a gunshot injury to the brain." Using Jailer Leland Gaines' h ad for demonstration purposes, he showed the jury how the fatal bullet split after entering the skull. One portion plowed through the brain, causing a hemorrhage and lodging in the skull above the left eyebrow.

Ballistics Expert Testifies.

Two hours of the afternoon session were occupied by an intensive cross-examination of Lieut. John Fowler, ballistics expert with the Metropolitan Police, on whose testimony the government bases its claim that Scheid, and not Knox, fired the fatal bullet.

At Judge McCarthy's request, Lieut. Fowler returned to Washington for the comparison microscope he used in identifying the bullet. He set up the complete mechanism on the court clerk's desk, and the jurors left their box to peer into the eyepiece.

Ball attempted to bring out that Fowler's findings "are based on probabilities rather than on hard facts," claiming that a bullet which penetrated the shatter-proof glass of an automobile window and the surface of a human skull would be battered beyond identification. Fowler countered with the contention that ballistics is an exact science and that despite the distorted condition of the bullet he is "positively certain" it was fired from Scheid's gun.

Judge McCarthy recessed court until 10 a. m. today, urging counsel to speed up the case. "I don't want the jury tied up over the Fourth of July week-end."

Douglas said last night he expected to rest his case today, after calling "about half a dozen" more witnesses

Li Hung-Chang probably was the most famous Chinese of the latter nineteenth century, practically dictating the foreign policy of the country under the empress dowager.

Printer Is Sought After Police Find Note Near River

Park police last night were search for a 40-year-old printer in the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, after discovering a suicide note on the bank of the Potomac near the tourist camp.

Officers said the man's wife reported he had left his home early last night, driving his car. The car has not been located.

The note found in the pocket of a gray jacket, lying on the bank. It read: "I am sorry for all the trouble I have caused you." The note was unaddressed and unsigned. Police found an insurance policy in another pocket, made out for Harry E. Meeks, 40, of 243 Twelfth street northeast.

Labor Racketeers Indicted in Killing Of Union Leader

New York, June 29.—Four of New York City's busiest labor racketeers were indicted today on charges of first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of William Snyder, president of a teamsters' local.

The indictment completed a promise made by Thomas E. Dewey when he was campaigning for the office of District Attorney of New York County last fall to clear up the unsolved murder.

The defendants are Max Silverman, confidante of the late Dutch Schultz, William (Wolfie) Goldis, who succeeded Snyder as president of the union; Samuel Schorr, business agent of the union, and Morris Goldis, younger brother of "Wolfie."

The arraignment is set for Friday.

REPARTEE AT THE EMBASSY.

(An imaginary conversation between Senator Pete Succotash, of Calvania, who has wandered into a Beer Abend by mistake, and Hans Dieckhoff, the German Ambassador.)

PETE: How are your spies doing, Your Excellency?

HANS: Not so good—ha, ha, you mean our tourists?

Herr Dieckhoff. . . . explains

PETE: Whatever became of the old-fashioned Germans we liked so much?

* * * *

HANS: Oh, Herr Hitler has them under control.

PETE: By the way, will Hitler let Austria pay us what she owes us?

HANS: That's an embarrassing question. Have some pretzels and another stein of beer.

* * * *

PETE: But why do you pay England and let us down?

HANS: They're a nation of shopkeepers, but you Americans are idealists.

PETE: You don't say! And did you ever collect any insurance on the Reichstag fire?

"—gemutlichkeit under control."

HANS: No, that was merely for good will.

PETE: Have you ever seen a beheading? Tell me about it.

HANS: Just a love of pageantry.

* * * *

HANS: You mean Rothschild and Freud? Sort of a luxury-export tax. Oh, not bad, not good.

PETE: Is your submarine hero, Pastor Niemoeller, still in prison?

* * * *

HANS: Yes, he got stubborn about worshiping Woden.

PETE: Is it true, as they say in Washington, that you jumped on your non-Aryans this month because the Czechs outbluffed you?

HANS: Well, our heroic Nazis must have some victories.

* * * *

PETE: We let your Nazi Bund propagandize here like child's play. Could we start a Civil Liberties Union in Berlin?

HANS: Ach, what an idea! Goebbels would have a tantrum!

PETE: Have you burned any good books lately?

* * * *

PETE: Please explain to me that slick idea of trying Schuschnigg and Archduke Otto of Austria for treason against Germany committed before Germany grabbed Austria.

HANS: That's retroactive metaphysics which only a Nazi could understand.

"—burned any good books lately?"

PETE: You've certainly got logik on your side when you protest against one Czech plane flying four miles over German territory when 37 German planes fly as far as 50 miles over Czechoslovakia, on the same day.

HANS: Yes, we thought that was pretty cute, too.

PETE: And how do you make a patriotic American of German ancestry love Hitler?

* * * *

HANS: We remind him that he has relatives in Germany with sensitive skins.

PETE: But why do you mistreat Catholics who are good Aryans?

HANS: Because we can't convince them that Hitler is the true Pope.

* * * *

PETE: Is it true that you have 20 or 25 spies right here in Washington?

HANS: Oh, our curiosity knows no bounds . . . Some of them, of course, earn their money saying nice things about Nazis; some of your nicest people.

* * * *

PETE: And do you think you'll have better luck in the next war than you had in the last one?

HANS: Oh, Herr Hitler is a dove of peace; and we know that you Americans don't want war, either, and you wouldn't mix into any war; and with you on the sidelines, we could win.

PETE: You mean exactly as in 1917 and 1918, eh?

*The German Embassy in Washington frequently entertains American lawmakers and officials at a "beer abend," when the prevailing motif is that the Nazi regime has inherited all the lovableness and reasonableness of the German people.

At Sultan Testimonial Dinner

Commissioner Sultan Receives Elaborate Tribute at Dinner

Snow White (in person), ten spokesmen for Washington business and social life, 740 guests and a man named Schlepperman last night joined to honor Commissioner Dan I. Sultan, who retires as District Engineer Commissioner on September 6.

After hearing himself praised by representatives of labor, capital, industry, politics and the engineering profession, and after Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen had announced "I love this man . . . I just love him," the retiring Engineer Commissioner said:

"I am choked with emotion, my eyes are full of tears, my forehead is covered with perspiration and my voice trembles. But my heart is full of joy."

Just previously, Charles H. Tompkins, general chairman of the dinner held at the Willard Hotel, had presented Col. Sultan with a silver bowl and serving tray. On it is engraved:

"Presented to Col. Dan I. Sultan in recognition of his inspiring leadership and untiring efforts in the service rendered by him to the people of the District of Columbia during his term as Engineer Commissioner, August 22, 1934—September 6, 1938. Sultan Testimonial Dinner, June 29, 1938.

The elaborate program lasted a full four hours. Included among the entertainers were Miss Adriana Caselotti, who was the voice of Snow White in the motion picture; Sam Hearn, known as "Schlepperman" on a radio program; the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. Glee Club, led by Robert N. Davidson; songs by William Raymond and Leon Brusiloff's orchestra.

Allen Unable to Attend.

The audience included representatives of all sections of Washington, politically and economically. Only Commissioner George E. Allen, who is out of town, was missing.

Commissioner Hazen offered the first tribute. He remarked that "If I have such a good crowd at my funeral, I'll be doing well." He said that the District never had "a Commissioner to compare with this man," and called him "a counselor, a help and a support."

The audience listened intently as Hazen remarked, "I'm going to retire myself pretty soon," but he made no further reference to the off-hand statement.

Senator William A. King (Republican), of Utah, described Sultan as a "distinguished and able public servant," and said he had "the soul of a poet," as expressed in the permanency of his engineering projects. "The city is very much better for his having been here," Dr. William McClellan, president of the Potomac Electric Power Co., told the guests. Addressing himself also to a radio audience that tuned in for a half-hour broadcast, Dr. McClellan said:

"Col. Sultan, you have measured up to our greatest hopes. You are an example of a gentleman unafraid."

John Locher Boom.

Similar tributes came from Francis G. Addison, jr., president of the Board of Trade; Robert V. Fleming, banker; Col. Don H. Sawyer, toastmaster, and John Locher, president of the Washington Central Labor Union.

As Locher was introduced, a voice from the audience cried, "Hello, Mr. Commissioner." Earlier, when Toastmaster Sawyer referred to the vacancies on the Board of Commissioners caused by Sultan's and Allen's resignations, an unidentified guest cried: "You've got John Locher, haven't you?"

Sawyer's only comment was, "That's an idea. Any other candidates here?"

In his response, Col. Sultan said: "I've got to pinch myself. Is it I or someone else? Is it a mirage or reality?"

"There are no finer people in the world than you'll find in Washington," he said with evident emotion. Then, after describing the various projects necessitated by Washington's being the Capital, he said. "It is not fair to the people living in Washington that their taxes support entirely this grandeur." Sustained applause welcomed his last statement.

He referred to Lieut. Col. David McCoach, jr., who will replace Sultan in September when the latter is transferred to Fort Logan, Colo. He said he feared his successor may be too able, and his own record suffer by comparison.

WPA Critics Excoriated By Williams

Deputy Administrator, Praising Hopkins, Says 'People Approve.'

By Scott Hart.

Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator, last night made an emotional recommendation of the WPA and denounced its "carping political critics," before Federal employes who came to the Interior Department auditorium to hear a discussion of the Executive Order that extends civil service provisions in the Federal Government.

Arthur Stein, chairman of the meeting, sponsored by the United Federal Workers of America, introduced Williams with the observation that "we have respect for him because of his character in sticking to his opinions regardless of criticism from whatever source."

Williams replied that after certain occurences of the last few days, he had been advised against speaking. And his remarks thereafter centered on the career of the WPA, with few references to any politics but much praise for the unions in his organization.

"Majority Are Glad."

The WPA, he stated, has spent billions and billions, and outside of the carping "of obviously political opponents" the people have given the WPA a stamp of approval.

"I have this comforting belief: that the great majority of the American people are glad that we have succeeded so well; and there are only a selfish few who believe that these people should be stigmatized, that they should be forced to receive what they receive on bended knees and with prayer," he said.

"I believe that the great majority of Americans have at last accepted in form if not yet totally in spirit that work and good work at a fair wage is a right that anybody may expect under any and all conditions, and that only a few are still denying that right to the American people."

He said he wished that every one of the 25,000 or 30,000 employes could know Harry Hopkins as intimately "as some of us, to know the great heart, the great honesty, and to me, the brilliant leadership that he has given to us. I consider it the great experience of my life to have been associated with him."

Ordway Won't Talk.

Civil Service Commissioner Samuel H. Ordway was invited to discuss the executive order, but said that he came to the meeting to be educated himself. He reiterated his previous statements that so much of the order is subject to interpretation that he could not, in justice to the audience, attempt to clarify its involvements at the moment.

Swamped by the telephone calls of Federal employes who are anxious to know what the executive orders of June 25 mean to them individually, the Civil Service Commission officials yesterday appealed for abatement until they have time to study how the involved orders can most effectively be applied.

This study, the officials say, will require several weeks and in the meantime no precise information can be given. They point out that much in the new orders must be left to interpretation and scarcely enough time has elapsed since the issuance of the orders to permit of more than casual study. Following the studies, the commission will release an official report on the exact application of the orders which it is thought, will bring approximately 130,000 additional Federal employes under civil service provisions.

The Federal Personnel Association, with offices at 908 G street northwest, says that "unnoticed behind the executive order, the President promulgated a completely revised set of civil service rules." E. Claude Babcock, an official of the association announced a meeting for tonight at 8 o'clock in the association offices to study the new rules paragraph by paragraph.

Ritner Makes Point.

Among the dozen of calls The Post receives daily from Federal workers who want information on the orders, there came a letter from Harry G. Ritner pointing out one aspect involving the old-line civil service employe.

"In a letter to The Post several weeks ago, I made a plea for the emergency employes to be placed in the classified service. Since this has been largely done by the executive order of June 24, I would like to stress the importance of not overlooking the backbone of Government—the many faithful employes of years of service," he wrote.

From time to time, he said, reductions in force are bound to occur. "I will predict that there will be many amending executive orders to the order of June 24. It seems to me that the first under consideration should be the re-establishment of full longevity credits. This can only be accomplished by executive order," he concluded.

Coroner Rules Man Drowned; Family Unsure

Although a Calvert County coroner's jury returned a verdict of drowning, relatives of Frederick Stanley McIntire, 45, of 753 Twelfth street southeast, were trying to learn yesterday in what manner the man met death.

McIntire's body was found floating in Chesapeake Bay on Tuesday. It was pulled ashore by Capt. William R. Lusby, District fireman.

Capt. Lusby, an expert fisherman, caught the body with a 100-foot cast of his surf-fishing tackle. He was fishing from the end of a pier at Seaside Park. His calls to boatmen ignored, he cast twice, and on his second attempt succeeded in fixing a hook in the dead man's coat.

Capt. Lusby, who heads No. 14 Engine Company, lives within two blocks of the dead man's home, but the two were unacquainted. Lusby's home was at 1226 Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

According to Dr. Page C. Jett, of Prince Frederick, there were no marks of violence on the body. It seemed to have been in the water for about 24 hours.

McIntire, an employe of the District Developing Co., leaves his estranged wife, two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Miller and Miss Rose McIntire; his mother, Mrs. Barbara McIntire, now seriously ill in Gallinger Hospital, and two brothers, David McIntire, of 4209 Alabama avenue southeast, and Louis McIntire, of Hyattsville, Md.

State's Attorney Arthur W. Dowell, of Calvert County, said last night that he was withholding any investigation until relatives of the dead man found his companions on the trip or presented any evidence that would show he had met with foul play.

Office Thief Implicated In 50 Cases

But New Yorker Denies He Stole $280 From the District Building.

Held as a suspect in the theft of $280 from the cashier's cage in the tax collector's office in the District Building last December, a 38-year-old New Yorker last night was identified as Washington's notorious "office thief."

The prisoner was arrested two days ago, and last night at the police line-up more than a score of workers in Government offices identified pocketbooks and valuables found in his Baltimore room as theirs. Police said the man had admitted the thefts, although he denied he had taken part in the District Building job. He has confessed to taking more than 50 pocketbooks from various office buildings, detectives said.

After police apprehended the man, he is said to have told them he had a room in a Baltimore hotel. Police went there and found the wallets, which were on display at the lineup.

In his room, they said, they also found three pages, listing Government offices, torn from a telephone book, and a map of the downtown district of Washington.

"I know what you want to question me about," police quoted the suspect as saying.

"You want to ask me about that $300 District building job, well, I was in St. Petersburg, Fla., when that was pulled."

Circus Calls Off Summer's Tour In Labor Fight

Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus last night was en route to winter quarters at Sarasota, Fla., its summer tour called off in mid-season for the first time in its history.

John Ringling North, 24-year-old circus president, and his executives, conferred here all of Tuesday night and early yesterday in a frantic, last-minute effort to compose labor differences which were mainly responsible for the show's closing.

Private Study Of D.C. Taxes Is Authorized

By James D. Secrest.

The authorized $10,000 study of District revenue will be made by a private investigator under direction of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, announced yesterday. A District advisory committee will be set up to aid him.

The decision was reached at a conference called by Senator King with the permission of Senator Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman of the joint committee.

Colin F. Stam, chief of the research staff of the committee, asked to be relieved of the task of making the study but agreed to retain supervision of it.

The $10,000 was inserted in the 1939 District supply bill by the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations after the House District Committee had failed for the second time to put a local income tax bill through the House.

"All possible sources of revenue will be included in the study," Senator King said. "When it is completed we hope to have a bill that will form the basis of a permanent system of taxation for the Capital."

The advisory committee, Senator King said, will consist of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, president of the board; Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, and a group of civic and trade and labor spokesmen, to be appointed by the Commissioners.

No limit was placed on the size of the advisory committee.

New Films Will Feature Bills For Next Week

Freddie Bartholomew, Mickey Rooney, little Terry Kilburn, Charles Coburn, Emma Dunn, Herbert Mundin, Gale Sondergaard and George Zucco are the foremost members of the cast of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Lord Jeff," to be presented for the first time in Washington as chief feature of the bill at Loew's Palace Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The story concerns the training of youths for the British merchant marine in one of the Bernardo homes in England. A pair of adult jewel thieves enter into the plot and lend the picture its melodramatic interest. In this story of juvenile character building there is no "love interest." The picture is unusual and is exceedingly well acted. It will be augmented by the usual short subjects and new issue of the "News of the Day."

"Cocoanut Grove," the new Paramount filmmusical, with one of Hollywood's most famous play places as its background, will come to the screen at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, with Fred MacMurray and Harriet Hilliard in the costellar roles. They will be supported by Ben Blue, Rufe Davis, the Yacht Club Boys, Billy Lee, Harry Owens and his Royal Hawaiian Orchestra and many others. On the stage, the Earle will present "July Jamboree," one of Harry Anger's colorful vaudeville revues, featuring Will and Gladys Ahearn in the headline spot; the Biltmorettes, Max and His Gang, canine entertainers; Lucille Johnson, rhythm singer, and the 16 Dancing Divorcees.

Loew's Capitol Theater announces as its major screen attraction for the Fourth of July week, beginning tomorrow, the Twentieth Century-Fox production of "Josette," starring Simone Simon, with Don Ameche and Robert Young in the principal male roles. There is music in this film, as well as romance and comedy, with Joan Davis and Bert Lahr heading the supporting cast. The stage entertainment for the holiday week will be provided by Maj. Bowes' "Collegiate Revue," peopled by a long list of youthful specialists who furnish a wide diversity of acts. The master of ceremonies for this engagement will be a personable young man by the name of Ted Mack. The bill will be completed by the Fox Movietone News and Phil Lampkin's overture.

Merle Oberon will return to the local screen at RKO-Keith's Theater for the week beginning tomorrow in "The Divorce of Lady X." Alexander Korda's first production in Technicolor. In this subject Miss Oberon is said to abandon her usual exotic type of role for one of sheer comedy. The supporting cast is led by Laurence Olivier and Binnie Barnes, who has just scored a substantial comedy hit in "Three Blind Mice." The story of the play is an adaptation of a Lajos Biro stage hit in which a London fog compels a group of gay persons to spend the night at a fancy dress ball in the Park Lane Hotel.

"Crime School," the current attraction, featuring the "Dead End" kids, Humphrey Bogart and Gale Page, will be continued on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater through Sunday. Beginning on Monday, July 4, the chief screen feature at the Met. will be "White Banners," the Warner picturization of the novel of the same name by Lloyd C. Douglas, in which the most prominent roles are impersonated by Fay Bainter, Claude Rains, Bonita Granville, Jackie Cooper and Kay Johnson. The scene of the story is laid in a small Indiana town and the drama unfolded is gripping, amusing and inspirational.

At the Columbia Theater next week, beginning tomorrow, the chief feature of the screen bill will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Erich Maria Remarque's "Three Comrades," the story of a group of young people trying to reorient themselves after the Great War. The principal roles are played by Robert Taylor, Margaret Sullavan, Franchot Tone and Robert Young.

"Friendly Neighbors," a Canadian travelogue; "The Ship That Died," an historical mystery; "Win, Place or Show," devoted to the racetracks and bangtails, and Walt Disney's cartoon comedy of "Donald's Better Self," are the short features announced for the new bill, beginning tomorrow, at the Trans-Lux Theater. The program, as usual, will be based on newsreel coverage of world events.

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, the screen's greatest dancing combination, will occupy the featured place on the bill beginning Sunday, at the Little Theater, in a revival of "Top Hat," one of their most successful vehicles. The mistaken identity motif is employed in this sprightly and tuneful romance. Edward Everett Horton, Helen Broderick, Eric Blore and Erik Rhodes lead the supporting comedy cast.

Larry Funk and his "Band of a Thousand Melodies" continues in high favor at the Spanish Garden Ballroom in Glen Echo Park. The Crystal Pool also is coming in for its full share of patronage these summer days. All of the other 50-odd amusement devices, of course, remain in full mid-season operation. Special plans have been made to accommodate record crowds over the Fourth of July week-end and holiday period.

The Wilson Line steamer, City of Washington, continues its regular schedule of trips to Mount Vernon daily, with moonlight cruises down the Potomac every night. A stop is made at Marshall Hall Park, which recently has added a theater to its other new amusements this summer. Ample picnic grounds are available to those who wish to utilize these facilities for al fresco outings.

The Potomac River Line's S. S. Potomac will make special 140-mile holiday cruises to Colonial Beach on both Sunday, July 3, and Monday, July 4. The boat will leave its dock at 9 a. m. on both days, returning to the Capital at 7:30. All manner of salt water sports will be available to "trippers" on these cruises. The privilege of an overnight stopover is to be granted, with side trips to Wakefield.

New Manager Comes to Capitol; Kurtzman Gets Pittsburgh Post

Promotions Shift Managers of Two Loew Theaters in East; Shirley Temple Has Busy Day; Arch Cracks Ankle; Nice Bookings Ahead; Notes of the Theater.

CHARLES KURTZMAN, for the past 10 months manager of Loew's Capitol Theater, where he succeeded Gene Ford, yesterday was notified by Joseph R. Vogel, general manager of all Loew's theaters, of his promotion to the managing directorship of Loew's Theater in Pittsburgh, Pa. He will be succeeded on F street by Howard Burkhardt, present manager of the Loew theater in Providence, R. I. Announcement of both transfers came through the office of Carter Barron, Eastern division manager for Loew's, Inc., with headquarters in this city.

BELL.

Charlie Kurtzman will be missed by his many friends in Washington, to a great number of whom he was personally known before taking up his residence in the National Capital. Born in San Francisco and graduated from the campus of the University of California into the newspaper game, as a starter, Mr. Kurtzman, despite his comparative youth, is a veteran showman. It is an easy step from newspaper work to press agentry and quite as easy a one from press agentry into "show business." Having associated himself with the West Coast Paramount theaters, Charlie within a short time was division manager in charge of them all. He then became divisional manager of Fox theaters in the East, which is the affiliation that brought him to Washington when the present Capitol Theater still was operated as the Fox. Later he returned to Paramount and after one of its frequent reorganizations founded a company that operated a string of Fanchon and Marco houses in St. Louis. He came here from there. His new post comes to him in recognition of the capable work he has done at the Capitol.

There is also something of the savor of the old showman in the theatrical career of Mr. Kurtzman's successor. Howard Burkhardt, nearing 40, also is a veteran of the motion picture industry. A native of Baltimore, he acquired his education there and for many years has been identified with the theater.

When Carter Barron assumed direction of the Loew Eastern division, some three years ago, Mr. Burkhardt was assistant manager of the Century Theater in Baltimore, under William K. Saxton, at present city manager of the Loew Baltimore interests. He was promoted to the Providence house and has compiled an enviable record during his three-year tenure in the home town of George M. Cohan.

Mr. Burkhardt is expected to arrive in Washington tomorrow to assume his new duties. Mrs. Burkhardt and a third member of the family will arrive later. Mr. and Mrs. Kurtzman—she being the charming lady who is known as "Mickey"—will remain in the Capital for another week before taking up their residence in Pittsburgh.

This column exceedingly regrets the departure of Charlie Kurtzman from Washington for reasons that are purely personal. Back in the old days of his association with Fox, Charlie came to town on a certain occasion when circumstances were such that he and I found it difficult to see eye to eye on a few specific matters. So, in the impetuosity of the moment, we tore at each others throats across the back alley between the Fox and The Post. There was the basis of a fine mess of animosities in that initial clash, but they never came off. Instead, we huddled over one of Freddie Buchholz' luncheon tables and smoothed the whole angry business out with an omelet and some ice cream, or something. Stanch friendship sometimes begins like that. Charlie's and mine did and I hate to see him go—which, of course, is not by any means to say that we won't have a friendly welcome for Mr. Burkhardt when he gets here.

It was remarked here the other day that Shirley Temple probably would remember Washington as the place where she was kept busiest on her "vacation" tour of these United States. That still goes.

All Shirley had to do yesterday was to greet a party of friends in the Mayflower at noon, lunch at 1, visit the Washington Monument at 2, the Smithsonian Institution at 3 and Mount Vernon at 5, after the last crowd of the day had departed. Last night she spent a "quiet evening at home."

Today, Mr. and Mrs. Temple and their interested and indefatigable daughter will journey to Williamsburg, where they will remain over night, returning to Washington tomorrow. Saturday they will leave for New York and after that will proceed to New England, with two or three weeks of real Maine vacation in prospect. The party will not return home to California until late August or early September.

It must be sort of nice being a juvenile film star—especially if you can contrive to be the greatest one in the world.

That was a real accident that befell Arch McDonald on his way to appear in the title role of "The Old Soak" at the Cross Roads Theater Tuesday night. He not only injured his ankle; he broke it and now is propped up in bed at Georgetown Hospital. In view of this unfortunate development, "The Old Soak" has been shelved by the Cross Roaders. Their next production will be a repeat week of "Petticoat Fever," the Mark Reed comedy in which they already have scored a resounding success this season. This engagement will open next Tuesday night, July 5. In the meantime, I hope generous dosages of Korn Kix will speedily put Arch back on both feet.

Unless some of those press agents have been kidding us, there are some nice pictures in imminent prospect on the downtown screens.

For instance, for the week beginning a week from tomorrow, which is by way of being July 8—and how this summer is scooting by!—the Capitol will have Sylvia Sidney and George Raft in "You and Me;" RKO-Keith's will bring in Ginger Rogers and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., in "Having Wonderful Time," slightly revamped and deracialized; the Earle will break out "Men Are Such Fools," with Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane, and at the Palace will be "Shopworn Angel," costarring Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart.

These are touted as among the most likely entertainments that may be expected to come along during the summer months. It is a little early to bring the matter up, perhaps, but if you are looking for something to paste in your hat, there it is.

And if you think American pictures do not rate too well abroad, listen. The American Commercial attache at Stockholm, Sweden, reports to the Department of Commerce in Washington that American motion pictures were voted the first five places among all foreign films shown in Sweden during the past season. The pictures were judged by the Committee of Swedish Film Reviewers at its annual meeting, recently held in Stockholm. The meeting was held under auspices of the Swedish Motion Picture Journal, and 21 members of the reviewers committee were present and voting. A total of 16 pictures were voted upon, giving the American output not only top rating but a healthy batting average of .333, which is pretty good in any man's league.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., June 29.—Stopped in to see Adrian, who has practically nothing to do outside of designing clothes for Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford and Jeanette MacDonald. Between jumps, he is designing the costumes for "The Wizard of Oz." For the commander of the army, in "Wizard," which will no doubt be played by a dwarf, Adrian has a rose on his spurs and a bird cage on his head. And for the head of the navy daisies decorate his beard and sit on the points of his waxed mustache. Then there's a gown made entirely of wings. Another of colored fans, made from starched, pleated organdie. He's having more fun over "Wizard" than a trip to Europe. It was the favorite story of his youth.

HEDDA HOPPER

Jeanettte, in "Sweethearts," is wearing a long evening coat of pink lame, hoop skirt effect, puffed out by a crinoline lining, wing-shaped fur collar of white fox dyed pink. It made me think of peach ice cream. Another honey is a brown three-quarter length coat, standing collar, long sleeves, embroidered in French knots. Fitted at waist. Fastened down the front with hooks and eyes. With that a flat muff of beige monkey fur, turban hat with fur—a scarf under the chin of thinnest jersey. I'd like to get my hands on that for my fall wardrobe.

In Adrian's relaxed moments he opened his new shop on Sunset Strip. Perfectly lovely. Rococo entrance hall, going into modern drawing room, which has a Venitian feeling, all done in soft blue and gray. Six people tried to buy a twelfth century Chinese lady. But nothing in that room is for sale.

Upstairs, sitting opposite an unusual mirrored mantel, is a Chippendale chair, completely covered—even its legs—in black and white printed silk. Golly, how that will show off a red dress! A nice place for Scarlett O'Hara to squat.

Paul Flato bought a pair of carved wooden hands. Incidentally, Flato is enlarging his shop. We're all enlarging—my addition runs to hips, due to sitting instead of running.

Myrna Loy and Walter Huston supported Max Baer a few years ago in "The Prize Fighter and the Lady." Now Max has finished a short at the same studio.

Elaine Barrie tied Jack Barrymore before she became a coed. Now she's playing one.

John Lodge, of the Boston clan, engaged because he was a gentleman. We made him a heavy. He went to England and now plays gentlemen.

Kit Guard plays an extra on Clark Gable's set. Clark used to do the same for him.

Bob Benchley got $5,000 for a day's work.

Dorothy Haas, fine actress, has been making $1,250 a week for 18 months, and has yet to make a picture here. Even though two other studios wanted to borrow her. Her studio won't lend her.

And all Heywood Broun's wife got was a case of poison ivy, while Heywood tried to teach her the simple life in the wilds of Connecticut. She'd better have stayed in the canyons of Manhattan.

Bill Rogers' story, in his own paper, incidents he saw in spain, is so real it bears repeating. He wrote: "I saw blood drip from a half open door of a parked automobile. Watched relief crews dig out people who were buried alive. Saw a man fish out a shoe with a leg attached, but nothing else. Many more scenes I hope to forget. These are not tall tales, but things I saw, and every day occurrences in Spain. Franco has sown hate and will reap the Hatred of Spain for many generations."

Will Rogers would have been very proud of his son. Our biggest magazine wanted these stories, but you'll find them only in his weekly paper, which gives a homey, small town feeling to beautiful, bouncing, boosted Beverly Hills.

Tennis Tourney.

Phyllis Welch has taken a home at Malibu for the summer. The actress is planning to organize a film colony tennis tournament extending through the months of June, July and August.

Wheat Loans May Average Little Over 60c

Crop Reports Indicate Low Figure in 59-85 Cent Range Possible.

Crop loan on wheat ranging from 59¼ to 85½ cents a bushel were indicated yesterday on the basis of the mid-June price index for farmers announced by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Bureau officials computed the June 15 parity price for wheat at $1.14 a bushel, but reported the average price received by wheat farmers was only 69 cents.

Legislation authorized wheat loans from 52 to 75 per cent of the parity price. Several weeks ago Secretary of Agriculture Wallace indicated the bumper crop has forced prices so low that the loans will be made, but indications are the announcement will follow the middle of July crop report. Rust is expected to sharply cut the June crop estimate.

Although loans under the $1.14 parity price could range as high as 85½ cents, expectations are they will average only slightly over 60 cents a bushel.

The general index of prices received by farmers in mid-June was unchanged from a month earlier, the bureau said, as moderate increases in meat animal and poultry prices were offset by declines in other groups.

The mid-June general farm price index was 92 per cent of pre-war—32 points under that of June, 1937, and the lowest recorded for June since 1934.

The Agriculture Department announced that price adjustment payments on cotton produced in 1937 will be distributed to farmers who certify that they have not knowingly overplanted their 1938 cotton acreage allotments, "as soon as forms and instructions can be prepared and issued and producers make application for payment." Congress authorized a flat rate of 3 cents a pound on cotton eligible for payment which was not sold prior to September 10, 1937.

Conservationists Plan Drive on River Poisons

Izaak Walton League Trying To Make Rock Creek Cleaner

Meeting in Maryland Sees 'Spot Map' of Sources of Pollution; Prince Georges Situation Is Described as 'Rotten.'

Full strength of the Izaak Walton League was thrown last night into efforts to clean up Rock Creek and eliminate sewage dumping in the Anacostia River at a regional council meeting in Forest Glen, Md.

Sponsored by the Washington chapter, the feature of the meeting was a "spot map," first of its kind ever to be drafted, depicting sources of pollution in the Potomac drainage area. It was drafted and presented by Abner L. Roe, of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Chapter.

John F. Stowell, of Washington, chairman of the anti-pollution activities for the regional council (Maryland, Virginia and the District), praised Arlington County for its stream purification program, but pointed out that Alexandria is still emptying raw waste into the Potomac and that the Prince Georges County situation is "rotten."

"If anyone doubts that the Potomac and Anacostia are filthy, let him ponder the fact that there is not a single river bathing beach in this area," he asserted.

Stowell emphasized that, among upstream Potomac cities and towns, Cumberland alone empties 13,500,000 gallons of industrial waste into the river daily.

Other speakers pointed out that the District is doing all it can to cleanse Rock Creek, principally by installation of dual system sewerage to prevent overflow of pollution into the creek at times of rainstorms.

Among others present were representatives of the District and Montgomery health departments, the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and DeWitt Harry, president of the Washington chapter of the league, who presided.

The meeting adopted a resoultion commending President Roosevelt for vetoing the Vinson pure streams bill because it is "merely another spending bill for investigation and research at a cost of $1,000,000 annually."

Regional chapters represented at the meeting, held at the farm of Dr. Joseph Cox on the grounds of National Park College, were Falls Church, Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Rockville, Brunswick, Silver Spring and Washington.

Youth Is Charged With Hit-Run as Man, 72, Is Hurt

A youth of 19 was charged with four traffic violations yesterday after he was arrested in connection with a hit-run accident in which a 72-year-old man was injured in Mount Rainier, Md.

According to police, the injured man, H. E. Soper, employe of the town of Mount Rainier, was struck by a speeding car containing five youths as he attempted to cross the street. Police said the occupants of the car saw the victim, but refused to stop.

Soper was treated by a private physician for cuts and bruises and returned home.

Arrested at his home shortly after the accident by Chief of Police Eugene Plumer, John Redmond, of Colmar Manor, Md., was charged with leaving the scene of an accident without attempting to render assistance to an injured person, operating a car with defective brakes, driving without a permit and operating a car without registration card.

Creek Killing Case Report Set Today

State's Attorney Arthur W. Dowell, of Calvert County, said yesterday that he expected results of the chemist's analysis of the vital organs of Mrs. Esther Lewis would be sent to him today.

The chemical analysis, it is expected, will go far toward determining in what manner the 31-year-old Washington woman met her death. Her body was found in Lyons Creek, near Prince Frederick, Md., ten days ago, but an autopsy showed that the woman, an expectant mother, did not die from drowning. An Arlington County streetcar conductor is still being held in Calvert County Jail without charge in connection with the case.

July 4 Field Day At Charlottesville

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottetsville, Va., June 29.—A Fourth of July field day celebration for city and county adults and children has been planned by the city recreation department. The event will be staged on Lambeth Field, at the University of Virginia, beginning at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and continuing until 8:30.

The program will include many track and field events, and prizes will be awarded the winners, with a blue ribbon for first place. As a climax to the day's activities a fireworks display will be given.

Week of 21 Hours Is Envisioned by Morrison, of AFL

A future work-week of 21 hours for American labor was forecast last night by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, in an address before members of the Retail Automotive Salesmen's Union.

Speaking before more than 100 union members at 921 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, Morrison called for a slogan of "Increased wages and reduced hours."

"During the period from 1896 to 1929," the speaker declared, "the International Typographical Union has, through proper organization, reduced their working hours from 59 to a 40-hour week, and increased wages from an $18 minimum to $57.

"In another 20 or 30 years I anticipate an average working week of 21 hours for all labor and a substantial increase in all wages," he said.

Congratulating the union on its recent organization, Morrison told members he believed retail automotive salesmen could soon secure "a uniform commission and salary that will eliminate all unfair competition and assist the employer as well as the employe."

Peace Group Asks U. S. 'Strengthen' Cardenas Regime

Leaders of 42 peace and labor groups asked President Roosevelt in an open letter yesterday to "strengthen the hands" of the Mexican government against internal rebellion and foreign interference.

The letter was made public by the Keep America Out of War Congress.

The signers said they noted with growing concern the predictions of qualified observers that "Mexico may become the New World Spain; that foreign propaganda and foreign funds are aiding efforts to overthrow the regularly elected Cardenas government."

The signers asked if it were true that "pressure from the British Empire" caused withdrawal of proposals they implied had been made to lend Mexico $200,000,000 to build roads and fund indebtedness and to purchase $10,000,000 of Mexican oil for the United States Navy.

Granite Co. Safe Looted By Amateur Cracksmen

Safecrackers early yesterday forced a safe in the office of the Falvey Granite Co., 109 Upshur street northwest, and escaped with $58.34 and a signet ring.

Jesse B. Baggett, manager of the place, reported the robbery when he opened the shop for business. Police said the job apparently was done by amateurs.

Nice Is Asked To Force Police Head to Resign

Baltimore, June 29.—The Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission called for the resignation of Police Commissioner William P. Lawson today, in a formal statement placing responsibility for what it termed "serious matters" in the police department "in the hands of the Governor of Maryland."

Lawson received the commission's report with the terse comment:

"It will have to be a colder day than this before I get out. I have no intention of resigning."

Criticizing the commissioner's handling of the police department, the commission stated, in part:

"In its dealing with Mr. Lawson, the criminal justice commission and its representatives have found his attitude to be such that they are convinced that, irrespective of what his abilities in other lines may be, he has no real comprehension of the duties and responsibilities of a police commissioner and is not qualified by his background, experience, temperament or personality to cope with the problems which that difficult position involves."

A copy of the statement was ordered sent to Gov. Harry W. Nice, who a few days ago issued a public statement expressing his "full confidence" in Lawson.

Army and Navy Union Re-elects C. E. Smithson

Charles E. Smithson was re-elected commander of the District Department of the Army and Navy Union at the department convention last night.

Man, 23, Admits Holdups, Fearing Pal May Murder

To clear his own conscience and because he feared his companions in crime eventually might kill a victim, a 23-year-old man walked into police headquarters yesterday and confessed three holdups.

Hoyle D. Secrest, clerk in the detective bureau, said the man admitted robbing an aged woman at the rear of the District building, a grocery store proprietor and a man sitting on a downtown park bench. The robberies occurred about a week ago. Detectives said they found the young man's stories of the holdups to be consistent with facts in the crime reports.

The young man, a resident of northeast Washington, was held for investigation.

Skull Fractured, Child Victim of Traffic Identified

A 4-year-old boy, suffering from a fractured skull and fractures of both legs, was identified in Casualty Hospital late last night as Jack Tyler, of 216 E street northeast. He had been brought to the hospital yesterday by a taxi driver, who found him lying in the street. Unable to tell police his name, he kept repeating "I'm Jackie, I'm Jackie."

Officers said he was hit by a motorcycle as he chased a dog into the street. They said the operator was Harold R. Brunch, 22, of 806 K street northeast. The boy's identity was not learned until his mother, Mrs. Parl Tyler reported her son missing from home.

Capital View Athletes Plan Fireworks Monday

The activities, which also include a ball game during the afternoon, will take place near Fifty-third and Ames streets northeast.

Doctors Hospital Plans An $800,000 Building

Doctors Hospital, Inc., applied at the District Building yesterday for a permit to erect a ten-story and basement, reinforced concrete hospital building at 1815 I street northwest, at an estimated cost of $800,000. The structure will be 179 feet wide, 145¼ deep and 107¼ feet in height. Lee Paschall, of Richmond, Va., is listed as the builder, and Francisco & Jacobus, of New York, are the architects.

Receivers Are Named For Kearnesville Firm

Charles Town, W. Va., June 29.—Milton W. Burr, former State Senator, and John Y. McDonald, former president of the West Virginia Horticultural Society, were named by Judge Devatur H. Rodgers yesterday as receivers for the Jefferson Fruit Products Co. at Kearneysville, near here.

Erwin Hiffman Renamed Head Of Display Men

J. B. McCann, of District, Made Vice President as Meeting Ends.

Re-election of Erwin Hiffman, of St. Louis, for a second term as president of the International Association of Display Men was announced last night to 2,000 men and women attending a banquet at the Shoreham Hotel, which closed the organization's forty-first convention.

J. B. McCann, of S. Kann & Sons, Washington, was named first vice president. Successful candidates for other offices were Ray Parks, Manchester, N. H., second vice president; Donald A. Ferguson, Detroit, third vice president; Richard A. Staines, Tulsa, Okla., treasurer, and the following district governors:

John McCarthy, Boston; Walter Fagan, New York City; Sanford R. Wilson, Miami, third district; Everett W. Quintrell, Dayton, Ohio, fourth district; J. W. Campbell, Chicago, sixth district; George Wagner, Omaha, seventh district; Harold Kneelanc, St. Paul, eigth district; L. L. Wilkins, Oklahoma City, ninth district; Edward Sherwood, Cody, Wyo., tenth district, and John Flotten, Los Angeles, eleventh district.

Karl Kneis, of St. Louis, was named winner of the window display competition and was awarded a sterling silver trophy.

72, He Gets 6 Years For Killing Bride, 22, and Her Sister

Reading, Pa., June 29 (AP).—Frank P. Kleckner, 72, who said he shot his 22-year-old bride and her sister, 18, because they "pestered" him for money, was sentenced today to a minimum of six years.

"It is truly a tragedy to have to close a career in such a fashion. I would like to be very lenient with this man," Judge H. Robert Mays said.

93-Year-Old Terrapin Is Found on Va. Farm

Leesburg, Va., June 29.—A terrapin over 93 years of age was found on the Shry farm, near Lucketts. Marshall F. Shry, 9, found the veteran in his father's wheat field. The year 1845 was carved on the bottom shell and the initials "R. R."

Children's Play Must Not Annoy The Neighbors

Parents Should Teach Them the Difference Between Shouts and Screams.

By Margaret Wallace

MOTHERS who allow their children to be neighborhood nuisances, not only fail in their duties, but in the prime essentials of good breeding. Their only equals are the intolerant neighbors who try to regulate all the neighborhood to suit themselves.

Sensible mothers realize that to play and shout and enjoy the sunshine and the cool of the evening is a prerogative of youth as well as factors in developing boys and girls. But the sensible mother who wishes her sons and daughters to grow up to be courteous and companionable men and women will insist that screams and shouts are two different things and that the children can have just as much fun without doing all their talking at the top of their lungs. They should be allowed to play as hard as they want provided the limitation of what is good for their health is regarded. but this hard play should be conducted within the confines of their home grounds. There is no reason for boys or girls to intrude on neighbors' sidewalks and front steps, gardens or yards without invitations any more than they would enter a neighbor's house.

Children who play baseball on the corner lot should limit their game to the confines of their baseball grounds or to the areas of those neighbors who do not object to their climbing fences, running across lawns, opening gates or going into gardens to retrieve their ball. It is inexcusably rude of these juvenile ball players to dash into yards and gardens after their balls as a matter of course. They should ask permission, express thanks for it, if it is granted, or play a less active game if the neighbors object to any trespassing on their property.

The mother or father who stands meekly by or does not investigate whether the children's play is annoying the neighbor is failing in neighborhood courtesy. In the summer it is not an unusual sight to see father and mother cooling themselves on the veranda while their boys and girls romp over the neighbors' lawn, use the neighbors' steps as an assembly place and shout with derision when the neighbors tell them to go away.

The parents who take umbrage at neighbors' requesting their children to refrain from intrusion on property and privacy also are guilty of breach of good form. If a neighbor asks little Johnny not to swing on the gate or leave candy paper about the lawn. the well-mannered and careful parents will see that Johnny apologizes and promises not to commit the annoyance again.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, June 29.

I DON'T KNOW whether our rice bowl party for the benefit of suffering Chinese was the biggest in the country, but I'll back it against the other 1,999 for noise and chi-chi. Show our night-life society a party and they turn out en masse and a la fuss—and a good cause brings out the rest. As a result the narrow and smelly little streets of our Chinatown were jammed with pale faces helping to fill the rice bowl, and by this time there should be plenty of the Oriental staff of life in a lot of bowls.

ALICE HUGHES.

Twenty restaurants served a special table d'hote to the throng. I saw Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt rassling chopsticks, and doing well, since the heir of Teddy served his country long ago in the Far East. On a platform at Mott and Pell streets the angelic Vera Zorina, Jane Froman, Phil Baker and Morton Downey sang songs and told jokes for all who had paid their $6 to get in. Thirty beauteous Chinese maidens acted as guides, and did a thriving business among tail-coated gents. The Chinese public school was turned into a theater for the night, and did a play called "Beat the Drums," said to be 900 years old, or approximately the age of "Abie's Irish Rose." Col. Roosevelt was elected to read an eloquent message from Mme. Chiang Kai-shek—after which the assembled occidentals rushed off to make the acquaintance of birds'-nest soup.

• • • •

The Chinese Ambassador, the Hon. C. T. Wang, honored Chinatown with his presence, and my best Chinese pal, honorable Lum Fong, told me that Chinatown had seen many exciting nights, but that this one was tops. And I believe it, with 6,500 visitors thronging the little alleys. Hollywood arc-lights turned the amazing scene into day—and I wouldn't have missed it for all the pralines in New Orleans. Neither, I learned, would the Chinese—brave, patriotic!

Remember when shops and things used to run "Win a trip to Hollywood" contest? Well, a sign of the times is the current "Modeling for Money" now being promoted by a fine Fifty-seventh street store in conjunction with a theater chain—inasmuch as thousands of girls now dream of a modeling career. And it is well known that all the most popular and loveliest models marry millionaires, drip sables or even condescend to lend their beauty to the movies! Yes, they do!

Bedtime Stories

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Peter Does Some Fast Stepping.

She had collected nectar and pollen to make honey and bee-bread.

No welfare problem ever irks
—Queen Bumble.

Peter Rabbit is like some people whom we all know, the ones who are forever poking their noses into other people's business. Peter is one of those who is always putting his foot in it, as the saying is. If trouble doesn't come to him he goes hunting for it. It isn't that he wants trouble. He doesn't intentionally go looking for it. It is just that he cannot mind his own business all the time. There are many people just like him.

Peter had led Queen Bumble of the Bee folk to the underground home of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse, not knowing that Danny and Nanny were no longer living there. Queen Bumble had remained in there so long that Peter feared that something had happened to her. When she had come buzzing out she didn't stop to say a word. He had chased her about while she gathered nectar and pollen from the flower and finally back to that Mouse nest without finding out what it was all about. Then something else had caught his attention and he had forgotten all about Queen Bumble. Now it was a long time since he had been in the neighborhood.

Mea..while Queen Bumble had been one of the busiest persons on all the Green Meadows. She had collected nectar and pollen to make honey and bee-bread, not only for her own needs but to furnish food for the babies that presently hatched from the eggs she had laid. She had made wax for comb, been mother, nurse and housekeeper and somehow found time to collect more nectar and pollen. For a while those little white grubs, which were her babies, had done nothing but eat. Then they had spun silken cocoons around themselves and so far as they were concerned Queen Bumble's work was finished. When they came out of those cocoons they would no longer be grubs but very like their mother, Queen Bumble.

How glad Queen Bumble was to see them when at last they came out, each in a handsome coat of black and yellow. They were smaller than Queen Bumble, but otherwise looked very much like her. Any one of them seen alone might have been mistaken for her. I suspect that if a Bee could sigh Queen Bumble would have sighed when they appeared, sighed with relief. You see, these daughters of hers were workers. Yes, sir, they were workers. They started in right away. They didn't have to be told what to do, or how to do it. They somehow knew and started in at once to take over much of the work. They collected pollen and nectar to make bee-bread and honey. They kept the house clean and helped prepare for the arrival of more children, for now Queen Bumble could devote herself to raising a family. The old home of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse was a busy place. Yes, sir, it was so.

Now of all this Peter Rabbit knew nothing. When at last he happened around in that neighborhood again he had quite forgotten ever having seen Queen Bumble go in there.

"I wonder if Danny or Nanny is at home," thought Peter. "It is long since I have seen either of them. Just for fun I will give them a scare if they are home."

He hopped over to where he thought he was right over the nest, on the roof, as it were. You know, that nest was in the ground, but only a little way under the surface. Peter's eyes were filled with mischief as he prepared to thump the ground with his stout hind feet.

"I hope both are at home," thought he. "It would be fun to see both running in fright and then tell them that there really was nothing to run from."

Thump! Peter hit the ground hard. Thump! He hit it again. And then things happened so fast that Peter hardly knew just what was happening. There was some fast running but the runner was neither Danny nor Nanny Meadow Mouse. It was Peter himself, and Peter was stepping fast and high. Yes, sir, he was so. He had long ago learned that there is just one thing to do when angry Bees are about, and that is to show them his long heels. He did now, and how!

Perfume Is Made From Turpentine

By the Associated Press.

Baton Rouge, La.—Science has found a way to make an essence for milady's perfume from malodorous turpentine.

The substance is turpineol, a faint touch of which gives a whole jar of cold cream, bottle of lotion or perfume an attractive lilac odor.

Turpineol has been manufactured abroad almost exclusively, but a discovery by Dr. Paul M. Horton and his associates in chemistry at Louisiana State University may change all that.

The Louisianans found a quick and inexpensive way to extract turpineol from cheap turpentine while they were looking for a way to utilize wastage from pine pulp and paper mills.

Dr. Horton says his co-workers have developed 40 by-products of wood pulp and they believe that paper mills eventually will profit almost as much from materials hitherto regarded as waste as they do from their normal products.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Youth Asks Character Estimate of Girl He Loves, Who Is Reckless, Outspoken and 'Talked About.'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a boy of 21 and I am going with a girl the same age. This girl is very attractive and has a wonderful personality which attracts many men. But most of them only go with her a few times, as they either quit her or she won't let them come back again. I know she cares for me and I like her very much. But my question is this: Can she be the kind of girl a man should marry when she will go out with a married man on a party and stay out until 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning?

• • • •

She knows this man's family and he works for her uncle. She only went with him once that I know of and I think it was all in fun. Her parents don't say anything to her for staying out at night. Her father is a drunkard and some of the girls with good reputations will not associate with her, so she runs around with girls of bad repute. Associating with such a crowd, she smokes, drinks some, and tells off-color jokes and stories.

• • • •

Since I have been going with her, though, she has stopped smoking (since I do not drink or smoke), she does not drink any more and she does not talk coarsely in my presence, as she knows I do not like it. I treat her with the respect a man shows a lady, but I have heard lots of boys say, "There is a wild girl." I have asked a good many of them what they actually know against her, and they say they don't know anything except what they've heard.

• • • •

She is very outspoken, talks with any of the boys and men and they may get a wrong impression just from her words and actions. But is it possible that a girl who is outspoken and wild is straight at heart? I like her enough to continue going with her, and have thought of marrying her (if she would have me, but how is a man to know whether such a girl is bad at heart, or whether she would go straight after marriage, or whether he should be willing to overlook her past, supposing it has not been all it should be? The right answers to these questions may mean my future happiness. Yours truly, PUZZLED.

What Contemporaries Say.

DEAR PUZZLED: I have discussed your questions with two girls of more or less contemporary age (girls in their twenties, that is) because I believe that young persons are at once the "best friends and severest critics" of those in their own age group. One girl's opinion was this: "Lots of girls are wild—in the sense of doing reckless and foolish, but not particularly 'bad' things—before marriage; and after marriage they settle down and make the best sort of wives." Here the other girl interjected: "Why doesn't he introduce her to people of his own kind and see how she reacts to them? Maybe her 'wild' actions have been the result, simply, of trying to adjust herself to the ways of this unsavory crowd she runs around with because she had no choice; sort of a case of 'when in Rome, do as the Romans do.'"

• • • •

Incidentally, both these girls are college graduates and professional women, who have been "on their own" in the business world for several years. The first speaker is a social gadabout, a favorite in exclusive circles, discriminating in her choice of friends, and fastidious in principle and conduct. The other is less interested in purely social diversions than she is in work and study, but both are definitely the type of whom we say: "She has a good head."

• • • •

The first girl continued: "Naturally, nobody advocates breaking up homes or going steadily with a married man, but as for going out once, or even once in a while, particularly in a party, with a married man who is an old acquaintance—why, everybody has done that!" Her tone of voice and facial expression conveyed honestly indignant rebuke to those who could—or would—read anything wrong into such an incident.

• • • •

So there you have the opinion of clean-living, clean-thinking youth concerning the ethical validity of your girl friend's conduct. I believe you can do no better, under the circumstances, than to follow the advice implicit in the second speaker's suggestion—namely, to give the girl a chance to associate with an entirely different crowd for a while, through introducing her to all your friends and keeping her so "dated up" that she is constantly in contact with them.

• • • •

Incidentally, you are falling definitely below gentlemanly standards of conduct in giving ear or heed to derogatory remarks of a hearsay nature which other men make about the girl you profess to love. As a matter of fact, you are not mature enough to marry until you are able to make sound judgments of character based on first-hand knowledge and experience. You would be a mighty poor champion, counselor, guide or friend to a sweetheart or wife, so long as you are of such uncertain mind as to revise your opinion of her with every passing rumor or viciously spiteful comment that came to your ears.

• • • •

If, given a chance, the girl shows a willing disposition to adapt herself to a more conservative social pattern (as, indeed, she seems already to have done, through giving up smoking, drinking and risque comment in order to please you), it would seem logical to suppose that she has been, in the past, more sinned against than sinning; that she has been the hapless victim of parental neglect and cruelly cynical social snobbery; and that her critics, particularly those predatory and prurient-minded males who speak out of hearsay and superficial evidence to call her "wild," are much more to be despised than she.

• • • •

I can only suggest that you let her know, quite honestly, how much she means to you; and that you invite her confidence, by stalwart, sympathetic and tender championship, to the extent that she is willing to make a clean breast of her past life, her present philosophy and future aspirations. That is the only way you can hope to arrive at the accurate answer to your many questions concerning her essential worth. M. H.

Filmy Black Takes Lead for Midsummer Nights

THE best formula for social success in midsummer is a diaphanous black grown. As a reaction from the too naive and frilly-frilly party frocks, the thin black evening ensemble is now having a vogue. This type of gown is not only flattering and feminine, but also sophisticated and distinctive. You can have billowing skirts and floating scarfs and be as helpless looking and feminine as you wish, and at the same time no one will ever regard you as a dressed-up village belle. Black chiffon net, tulle, and organdie are among the favorite material for evening gowns, though lace and even linen are used. The thin black materials are especially becoming to white skins and are also flattering to those that have been sun-tanned. The thin black dress also gives an effect of coolness, especially when it is complemented with white accessories. Heavier materals, such as velvet and taffeta, may be combined with the filmy chiffons and tulles. Taffeta skirts worn under the black summer materials supply the rustle suggestive of romantic eras. The styling of your black gown may be along sophisticated lines, the material being draped to the figure, as is frequently done with lace, or it may be romantic with nipped-in waist, spreading skirts and drop shoulders. The gown shown above illustrates the striking use of white angora lace and embroidery appliqued on black net. The wide spreading skirt is held out by a slip of taffeta. Long transparent sleeves and low decollete add an unexpected note of formality. A large white flower is set in the hair at a modern angle.

Pique in Waffle Weave Makes Dinner Dress

Paris (U.P.).—Pique, in a "waffle" weave and in a pale peach color, makes Lucien Lelong's summer dinner dress with trim front revers and short, cuffed sleeves. One of several summer offerings to revive the scallop, this particular model has scallops around its ankle-length cuffs, its revers and its patch-pocket tops.

Still another recognition is accorded pique by Patou, who uses white pique for appliqued motifs around the top of a sophisticated night-blue silk crepe evening dress. The same authority steps out of the cotton pique ranks and chooses white silk pique for an evening dress.

Eat Bulky Food To Avoid Hunger On Diet Regime

Raw Vegetables and Salads Are Good Standbys.

By Ida Jean Kain.

HUNGER IS NOT the sign of immediate starvation, though you probably think so the first week on a diet. Perhaps it is small comfort, but hunger pangs are the first sign of reducing.

You are taking a smaller amount of food, but you still have an abnormally large food capacity. The capacious tummy and the ravenous appetite are the direct result of a habitually large food intake. The stomach is a muscular organ which gradually expands or contracts to accommodate the amount of food eaten. As soon as your food capacity is lessened, as it is after you have been on a diet for a week, you will be just as well satisfied with less food. In the meantime, however, you must deal with those hunger pangs.

Eat Bulky Foods.

There are several dietary tricks which will keep you from thinking you are starving. A sense of fullness is part of the normal satisfaction of hunger. For this reason it is an excellent plan to include in the menu bulky vegetables and salads, foods which require much chewing, and a hot bouillon or beverage. For example, coleslaw is much more filling than cooked cabbage for the simple reason that it must be more thoroughly chewed. And you can eat for 30 minutes on a big salad of chopped apples and celery without getting too many calories. The dietary trick of eating half a head of lettuce before luncheon and dinner is merely to give you this sense of fullness so that you do not want so much food, and you can lose a couple of pounds a week on this plan.

While those foods fill you up quickly, however, they do not stay by you and you would feel hungry long before the next meal unless you also have some of the foods which are digested slowly. Meat, eggs and cheese not only have a high satiety value, but they supply the necessary protein. While soft-boiled eggs and hard-boiled eggs have exactly the same caloric value, the hard-boiled eggs are digested more slowly and therefore are much more valuable to the reducer. Cheese is an excellent food of this type. There is no more satisfying dessert than 150 calories of cheese and crackers with a hot beverage.

Some Fat Needed.

You also need some fat in your diet for satiety and vitamin A. One and one-half pats of butter and a small amount of cream in the reducing diet are a great help in controlling hunger pangs, and this limited amount also provides sufficient vitamin A for the average person.

You do not feel hungry on a reducing menu combining some foods which give an immediate sense of fullness, a few high satiety foods, and a hot beverage or soup to round out the meal.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

Daughter's Day.

"Mother! Are you going to wear THAT dress?"

"What's the matter with it?"

"It's so funny . . . and long. Why don't you wear your new dress?"

"But I'm just going downtown——"

"Well I don't care, you might see somebody . . . like Esther or Carolyn. Anyway I wouldn't wear THAT dress to a dog fight."

"Yes, but this was a good dress last summer. Just look at that material——"

"Material! Oh gosh! Anyway, you might have it shortened. It makes you look like an old woman."

"I am an old woman."

"Mother PLEASE! I do wish you wouldn't keep going around saying you're an old woman. If you'd only try to dress up and look young . . . like . . . like Mrs. Clipper . . . or Mrs. Marsh . . ."

"Well if you're not satisfied with your mother——"

"Well all I mean is you could look a lot niftier. Why don't you take off that old mangy flower. I think flowers are SO tacky."

"All right then. Does this suit you?"

"It's a lot better. Wait, your hat's not on right. Here, I'll fix it."

"Say I can't wear it down over one eye that way. I can't see."

"Well that's such a dumb hat anyway——"

"I can't wear those kinds of hats. They're not becoming."

"Mother PLEASE! Say, haven't you got any better gloves?"

"I'll rub it off on the way. Anyway I won't see anybody."

"You'll have to go past the tennis courts where they're all playing."

"Who's all playing?"

"All the kinds—Esther and Carolyn . . . and everybody."

"Well they're not going to look at me."

"Well, I don't care, their mothers always look so nice. Look at Mrs. Perky. . . ."

"It's not so important how you LOOK. It's how you——"

"Mother PLEASE——"

"Well you know what Browning says, 'I judge people——'"

"Mother please will you do something for me?"

"What is it?"

"Will you please not mention Browning before people?"

"What's the matter with Browning?"

"He's a joke now. Nobody reads him."

"All right. I'll try to remember. Goodby."

"Goodby—say, mother! Wait! There's some little ends of hair hanging down in the back. Here, I'll fix 'em. I can't see why they're always coming down . . ."

"You can't go out looking this way. What would they all think?"

"Who would think?"

"Oh, Esther, and Carolyn, and everybody. Now—hold your head up—like that. No, hold your chin in. There! That's a lot better."

"All right then, goodby."

"Goodby—Mother! Are you going to carry that package?"

"Why not? I've got to exchange it."

"Nobody else ever carries packages. Why can't you make the store come for it? It looks so tacky to be always carrying a package——"

"I can't help how it looks. Furthermore, I don't care. Goodby."

"Goodby. Only——"

"Only what?"

"I can't imagine what on earth you've got in that bag to make it stick out that way. Mrs. Clipper's pocketbook's always so nice and flat."

"Well, I'm not Mrs. Clipper. Goodby."

"Goodby, mother."

• • • •

"Mother! Mother! Wait! Say, will you do just one thing for me?"

"Yes; what is it?"

"Will you please, please stand up straight and hold your stomach in . . . especially when you walk past the tennis courts."

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Surgeons divide burns into a classification of degrees—first, second and third degree—depending on how deep the burn is, how much of the skin is destroyed. A sunburn is usually named as the typical example of a first degree burn. But it can be worse, and every doctor has seen severe prostration and real illness from prolonged and badly advised exposure. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that sun bathing is beneficial only when done gradually, until the body is used to it.

Treatment of Sunburn.

The treatment of sunburn is just like the treatment of any burn. Oils in which a cooling chemical has bene dissolved are the most gratifying for a mild burn. Carron oil (equal parts of linseed oil and lime water) in which a little thymol or menthol or camphor has been added for the cooling effect, is an excellent preparation of this class.

A household remedy always at hand is vinegar. Dilute it with water. Many think it the best. Baking soda made into a paste and applied on antiseptic gauze is good.

Best of all the household remedies if the burn is deep and oozing and painful, is cold tea. Or tea leaves. The ingredient in tea which does the work is tannic acid, which can be obtained from the drugstore in pure form with instructions how to use.

For an application to put on the skin the first few days of exposure to prevent severe burning, try:

Quinine sulphate	2 parts
Alcohol	20 parts
Olive oil	32 parts
Peanut oil	100 parts

Any druggist can make this up.

Capital Society Throngs St. Matthew's Church to See Lavish Wedding of Miss Garrett and Senor Zuberbuhler

'White and Green' Color Motif Carried Out on Altar, in Aisle and in Costumes; Many Come From Out of Town for Fete.

By Dudley Harmon

In a swirl of white net and lace, Miss Margot Garrett, daughter of George Angus Garrett, became the bride yesterday afternoon of Luis Mariano Zuberbuhler, second secretary of the Argentine Embassy.

Smartest wedding of the summer, it drew hundreds from Washington's diplomatic and residential circles, many of whom remained in town especially for the marriage and the festivities which preceded it.

Mr. Zuberbuhler and his bride have taken a house on Leroy place and will occupy it on their return from a wedding trip.

White and green was the color motif of the marriage, from altar decorations to costumes of the bridesmaids. Sheafs of white gladioli were tied to the entrance of every fourth pew of St. Matthews Church, and the main aisle was lined with cedars, palms and cymbodium ferns. Ferns and more gladioli were banked around the altar, on which a hundred white tapers burned.

The bridal party arrived at the church a good 15 minutes before the ceremony was to begin, despite the fact they had attended a luncheon given earlier by Mrs. Robert Livingston Clarkson, of New York, sister of Mrs. Garrett, and Mr. Clarkson, at the 1925 F street club.

Mr. Garrett gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown was white net with a white tulle veil over which was a lace veil. Ruchings on the skirt extended into a circular train three yards long, and a string of pearls completed the costume. The bride carried a white prayer book from which fell white satin ribbons tied with white orchids.

Senora Estella de Acebal, of Buenos Aires, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, and Miss Elaine Darlington, daughter of Mrs. Garrett, was maid of honor. They were gowned in white organza with full skirts and short cap sleeves. Around bodice and skirt were green ribbons. Tiny white hats of Watteau type, tied on with green ribbons and crowned with tiny wreaths of ferns, completed the ensemble. They carried ferns tied with white satin.

Her Bridesmaids Number Seven

Bridesmaids were Mrs. dePeyster Brown, of Sewickley, Pa., and the Misses Jessica Peabody Butler, of Lake Forest, Ill.; Beatrice Gray, Martha Phyllis Whitney and Catherine Mellick, of New York, and Angelica Lloyd, Martha Bacon and Emily Davis, of Washington. Their white organza frocks were trimmed with white flowers and belted with green ribbon. Their hats were similar to those worn by the matron and maid of honor, and they carried cascades of ferns.

The Argentine Ambassador, Felipe Espil, was best man, and ushers were Ricardo J. Siri and Miguel E. Quirno-Lavalle, of the Argentine Embassy; C. Manuel Pereira, of the Chilean Embassy; Decio de Moura, of the Brazilian Embassy; Angel S. Elia, of New York, and John Victor, Samuel Biddle, George Wheeler, George Mahoney and William Russell, of Washington.

Serving as "supervisory ushers" were Ralph Snowden Hill, John Caswell, Spottswood White and Tinsley Garnett.

After the ceremony, at which Mgr. Edward Buckey officiated, there was a large reception at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett, 1627 New Hampshire avenue. Tables had been set in the garden.

The newly married couple led the dancing at the reception, and when they left for the honeymoon the orchestra played, "We're Sorry to See You Go." Miss Elaine Darlington, the bride's young stepsister, caught the bouquet.

One of the smartest women present was Mme. Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, who wore a blue and white print with a navy redingote and a broad-brimmed white straw hat with a narrow navy blue ribbon. Others present from the Diplomatic Corps included the French Ambassador, Count Rene Doynel de Saint Quentin; Fulvio Suvich, Italian Ambassador; the German Ambassador and Frau Dieckhoff, the Polish Envoy, Count Jerzy Potocki, who sails next week to spend the remainder of the summer abroad; Jacques Dumaine, of the French Embassy, and the Netherlands Minister and Mme. van Haersma de With, with Mlle. Nora van Haersma de With. The de Withs sail Saturday for Holland.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis, down from Southampton for the occasion, were being greeted on all sides. Mrs. Davis was chic as always in a brown and white print with a peaked leghorn hat and shoes of yellow. They entered the church with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Bliss, like the bridemaids, being attired in a white and green ensemble.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, one of whose daughters was a member of the wedding party, was accompanied to the wedding by her other daughter, Miss Virginia Bacon. Both wore white chiffon frocks printed with tiny colored figures.

Mrs. John Williams With Group of Friends

Mrs. John R. Williams came accompanied by Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, in black chiffon, and several others. Also in black was Mme. Wadsted, wife of the Danish Minister, whose sophisticated, trailing dress had a large white chiffon rose at the belt. There was another rose to match on her broadbrimmed black hat.

Mrs. Dean Acheson had chosen navy blue. All in white was Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins. Others there included chic and lovely Countess Roberti, in white and black chiffon with a dashing black straw hat; Frau Edgar Prochnik and her daughter, Mrs. Jean de Sibour, Miss Kathleen Knox, who came with Mrs. Corcoran Thom, jr.; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. William MacCracken, Mrs. Bowler Hull, in black crepe, cleverly draped, with a sable scarf and dark red hat; Mrs. Pearsons Rust, Mrs. Phillip Coffin in a print; Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Noyes, Mrs. William Mason Wright, Mrs. Harry Grant Meem with Miss Eleanor Meem and Miss Mary Wilson, William McAvoy, Mrs. William T. Mann and many others.

Mrs. Garrett wore a street length frock of jade green, with an accordion pleated skirt and waist length cape, mustard yellow shoes, bag and gloves, broad-brimmed hat and a corsage of orchids at the waist.

Senora de Zuberbuhler is the daughter of Mrs. George Gordon, whose husband is United States Minister to the Netherlands. She attended school in England and was presented to society here in November, 1936, at a large tea at her father's home and later at a ball at the Sulgrave Club.

Senor Zuberbuhler is the son of the late Senor and Senora Luis Zuberbuhler, and a nephew of Carols S. Lamas, former Secretary of State for Argentina and winner of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1937. The bridegroom's late father was at one time president of the Bank of the Argentine and the Argentine Stock Exchange.

When she left for her wedding trip, the bride was wearing an ensemble of dark blue trimmed with dusty pink.

Muriel Webb Becomes Bride

The Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral was the scene yesterday afternoon of the wedding of Miss Muriel Gill Webb and John W. Thompson, jr. The Rev. Howard S. Wilkinson, of St. Thomas Church, performed the ceremony at 5 o'clock. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rives D. Webb. Mr. Thompson is the son of John W. Thompson and Mrs. Smith Hempstone, and is the grandson of Theodore W. Noyes.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Webb wore a dress of white lace with the traditional veil. She had as her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. Clyde W. Young. Two other sisters, Miss Dorothy Webb and Miss Jonabel Webb, were bridesmaids. Also in the group of bridesmaids were Miss Mary Dora Thompson, a sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Hughes.

Rudolph Kauffmann 2d, was best man, and ushers were I. William Hill, Charles A. McKenney, jr.; S. Keene Mitchell, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., a classmate of Mr. Thompson at Princeton, and Thomas Hardman.

Following the ceremony a reception took place at the home of the bride's parents.

Binghams Leave For N. C. Today

Leaving Washington today, former Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham will head for Mount Pisgah, N. C., where they will stay at Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry's lodge, which she has turned over to them for the summer.

Accompanying them are Mrs. Bingham's daughters—Miss Elize Hill, who is due to be a debutante next winter, and Miss Catherine Hill. Later in the season Mrs. Phillips Clarke, the former Miss Suzanne Hill, will join them for a visit.

The Binghams will remain "rural" until early in September and during their vacation Mr. Bingham will get in some work on a biography he is writing of Eli Yale.

Mr. Mott is the son of Mrs. Arthur Barton Cross, of New York, and Dr. Raymond L. Mott, of Rockaway, N. J. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1933.

The marriage will take place in the fall.

Mary Marlow Wed in Capital

The Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral was the scene at noon yesterday of the wedding of Miss Mary Marlow and George Sutherland Elmore. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Everett Marlow, of this city. Mr. Elmore is the son of Mrs. Walter A. Bloedorn, also of Washington, and the grandson of former Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. George Sutherland. The Rev. William R. Moody officiated before an altar decorated with gladioli and lilies of the valley, and illuminated by candles in seven branched candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Marlow was attired in White mousseline de soie over taffeta, and fashioned with a fitted bodice, full skirt and short train. She also wore a short tulle veil. With a shower bouquet of white orchids and lillies of the valley, she carried a prayer book.

Miss Ruth Marlow, who served as maid of honor, wore a gown of hyacinth blue embroidered organdy, with a draped bodice and full skirt. Her arm bouquet was of delphinium, yellow gladioli and shasta daisies. John A. Yzuaga was best man.

Following the wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents the couple left on a Western trip. They will make their home, after September 1, in Ithaca, N. Y. The bride's traveling costume was a redingote of royal blue printed georgette with white accessories. She is a graduate of National Cathedral School and the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts. Mr. Elmore who is an alumnus of Dartmouth, is now attending the law school of Cornell University.

Bernice Harris Wed to D.C. Man

Miss Bernice Harriet Harris and Joel Swope Kaufmann were married last evening in Pittsburgh. Miss Harris is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris, of Pittsburgh. Mr. Kaufman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund I. Kaufman, of Washington. The ceremony, which was witnessed by about 75 members of the two families and a few intimate friends, was performed by Dr. Jacob Rothschild at 6:30 p. m. in the French room of the Schenley Hotel. A dinner followed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin. Her veil fell from a Juliet cap of heirloom lace, worn previously by the bridegroom's mother, and she carried an arm bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Lorraine Harris who was attired in a gown of flesh-colored lace with a full pleated skirt. Her flowers were orchids and blue delphinium. Robert D. Kaufmann, of Washington, served as his brother's best man.

The couple will sail from New York tomorrow on the Queen of Bermuda for a trip to Bermuda, and on their return will live in Washington.

The former Miss Harris was graduated from Goucher College in Baltimore several weeks ago and received her secondary school education in London, England. Mr. Kaufmann attended George Washington University.

Among guests from Washington who attended the wedding in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Edmund I. Kaufmann and Aaron Kaufman, were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Kaufmann, Miss Jean Kaufmann, Mr. and Mrs. Marc Goldnamer, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Ross, Miss Alice West and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kaufmann.

Picturesque St. John's Church in Beltsville was the scene of the wedding last evening at 8:30 o'clock of Miss Rebecca Charlotte Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvine La Van Miller of Eleven Cedars, Beltsville, to John Taylor Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ora S. Fisher, of Washington. The Rev. Reginald Hall performed the ceremony in a setting of boxwood and garden flowers.

Harris & Ewing.

MRS. JOHN TAYLOR FISHER.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her sister's wedding gown of moire brocade, with a tightly fitted bodice, square neck and long fan-shaped train. Her tulle veil was attached to a small cap of heirloom lace, held in place by orange blossoms, and she carried a muff of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Jean Miller, who served as her sister's maid of honor, wore a peach-colored frock of embroidered net trimmed with aqua ribbon. Her short circular veil was held in place with a coronet of flowers and she carried a muff of gladioli with a center of [illegible].

Other attendants were Mrs. Wayne Philip Ellis, jr., and Miss Suzanne Dewhirst Miller, the bride's other sisters. Their aqua frocks trimmed with peach-colored ribbon were made like that of the maid of honor's and their veils were held in place by a coronet of aqua flowers. They carried muffs of pansies.

Richard Lewis Lutz, of Riverdale, Md., was best man and the ushers were Joshua Miller, brother of the bride; Wayne Philip Ellis, Charles Berry and Donald Kneesi.

Among out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs Wilbur B. Blakeslee, Mr. and Mrs. James Hooper Dorsey and Mr. and Mrs. William E. Northam, of Baltimore; Miss Betty Ellis, of Fort Thomas, Ky., and Mrs. Rebecca Stoner, of Fishertown, Pa., the bride's grandmother.

On their return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Fisher will reside at 1860 Clydesdale place. The bride attended Sidwell Friends School here and the University of Maryland, where she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi and the International Relations Club.

The bridegroom also graduated from the University of Maryland, and received his master's degree at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta and Tau Beta Pi.

Mrs. Tuckerman And Daughter Go To Philadelphia

Mrs. Walter Tuckerman and her daughter, Miss Alice Tuckerman, went to Philadelphia late yesterday to attend the candlelight ball given by Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Cresson for their debutante daughter, Miss Emily Cresson. Mrs. Tuckerman and her daughter are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Cresson at Oaklands.

Mrs. Tuckerman and Miss Tuckerman will return to Washington this afternoon.

Son to Substitute For Prince Gustaf At Reception Here

Washington will not be able to shake the royal hand of Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, of Sweden, at the reception to be given by the Swedish Minister and Mme. W. Bostrom on July 3.

Curly-haired, 26-year-old Prince Bertil will step into his father's shoes for the event on Sunday, while the latter is forced to remain in a New York hospital.

Miss McMullen, John Glick Wed

The Church of the Holy Name was the scene of the wedding yesterday morning at 9 o'clock of Miss Katherine McMullen, of Cumberland, Md., daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. McMullen, to John H. Glick, also of Cumberland. The Rev. John W. Bowling officiated.

The bride, who wore a smart beige ensemble and a corsage of gardenias, had as her only attendant, Mrs. Anna Russell. John H. Glick, jr., son of the bridegroom, was best man.

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. David H. Baldwin, who were married June 25 in Woodstock, Vt., at the bride's residence, will make their home in Washington after August.

The bride is the former Mrs. Charles E. MacDonald, widow of Maj. C. E. MacDonald, U. S. A. Mr. Baldwin, who is connected with the Geological Survey, is a member of the Society of American Military Engineers and the Washington Society of Engineers.

Capt. T. B. Thompson, Navy chaplain and brother-in-law of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Herbert H. Hines. A reception and luncheon followed.

Return From Europe.

Col. and Mrs. Ralph H. Hallett have returned from a trip to France, Germany, Belgium and England.

North, South Join Study Of 'John Brown's Body'

Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith Leads Scanning of Poem Here as Veterans of Blue and Gray Reunite in Gettysburg.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

As the Blue and Gray are now meeting in reunion at Gettysburg, so the North and South are joining in a review of Civil War days at the American Association of University Women, in a study of "John Brown's Body." The group, started the end of May, at the suggestion of Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith, a member of the Martha MacLear Poetry group of the local branch of the A. A. U. W., meets every Wednesday night in the clubhouse lounge.

Preliminary to the study of the poem, Dr. Smith introduced material she had collected, extending back further than the war and tracing the psychology which led up to it.

Dr. Smith is one of those in the study group representing the South. Her family for seven generations have been residents of Georgia and South Carolina and her great uncle was Bishop James O. Andrew, whose insistence on keeping his slaves was partly responsible for the controversy which caused a split in the Methodist Episcopal Church, dividing it into North and South conferences.

One of the members of the group, with as staunch a Yankee background, is Mrs. Louis A. Bauer, the former Adelia Doolittle. She has contributed to the discussions many interesting facts regarding her mother, Mrs. Lucy S. Doolittle, who came to Washington during the war as a volunteer nurse and later was employed in the Sanitary Commission as a hospital visitor. She nursed at the old Armory Square Hospital, a picture of the interior of which is among Mrs. Bauer's relics, and also at the Demaress Hospital, which stood on the present site of the National City Christian Church.

Relics on Exhibit At Red Cross

Most of the relics relating to her work with the commission have been given by Mrs. Bauer, and her sister, Mrs. Mary Doolittle Dawson, of Linden, Md., to the museum of the American Red Cross.

Following the war, when there was a great influx of former slaves into the Capital from the South, Mrs. Doolittle organized a school where she taught sewing, knitting and weaving to women who had been field workers and had no knowledge of any other occupation. She carried on similar classes in the jail.

Her work there convinced her of the need for a court where persons charged with minor offenses could have speedy trial instead of being incarcerated for weeks. Equipped with statistics she went to members of Congress and the first Police Court of the District was established soon after.

Mrs. Doolittle, whose husband was unable to enlist in the Army because of ill health, was joined by him here following the war, when he took a Government position. He had been a professor at Antioch College and then took post graduate work at Harvard. She was one of the first members of the board of the Children's Guardians; president of the Home for Colored Children for 9 years; on the board of the Industrial School for White Women; treasurer of the Columbia Kindergarten Association, one of the first women trustees of All Souls Unitarian Church and a founder and charter member of the Twentieth Century Club. She and her husband were also among the founders of the associated charities.

Lincoln Campaign 'Songster' in Collection

A Lincoln Campaign Songster, "for the use of clubs—containing all of the most popular songs" was among the interesting relics brought to last night's meeting of the "John Brown Study Group" by Dr. Smith. It was published in 1864 and stirring lines, written to popular tunes, were signed "By an Invincible" and "By and Occasional."

She also had with her a copy of the New York Herald for April 15, 1865, carrying the bulletins of the shooting of Lincoln and of his death. She also had a military chart, evidently used by officers of the Confederate Army, and the last issue of the Liberator, published by William Lloyd Garrison, after emancipation had been won. On an inside page was a message from Elizabeth Cady Stanton, calling attention to the fact that, now that the colored race had been freed, it was time women should be given the vote.

In the Daily Morning Chronicle was an advertisement for bids for Army supplies, including grim implements of war with those less formidable, "40,000 black ostrich feathers and 40,000 brass eagles."

Members of the study group include Dr. and Mrs. Edward A. Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence T. Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Oldham, Mrs. Perry Suttonfield, Mrs. Gilbert Bell, Mrs. Kate Treholm, Mrs. W. H. McKinney, Mrs. Birge, Miss Ella Vinton, Miss Mabel Hiatt, Mrs. Thomas W. Heitz, Mrs. Horace G. Torbert and Miss Isabella Grove, of Walter Reed Hospital. Miss Grove is the musician of the assembly and accompanies for the singing of old songs to which there is reference in the poem.

Mrs. Stewart Andrews Heads Starmont Aid

Starmont Aid for Consumptives has elected as its president for the coming year Mrs. Andrew Stewart. Other officers include Mrs. Appleton P. Clark, jr., vice president; Mrs. William F. Roberts, second vice president; Mrs. William Ramsay, treasurer; Mrs. DeWitt Chadwick, recording secretary; Mrs. G. C. Hammond, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. M. McLachlen; Miss Julia A. Marr, Mrs. Andrew Wilson, members of the executive committee.

"MADAME CHAIRMAN"

By Suzanne.

REPORTS of the convention recently held at Atlantic City comprised the program at the Soroptimist Club of Washington, meeting yesterday at the Willard.

Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, new second vice president of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, gave a resume of the international convention which followed the sessions of the American Federation. A peace week observance was advocated for every Soroptimist Club, she said, pointing out that solidarity among women of the world was imperative for the prevention of war.

Mrs. Agnes Newman, club president, told of the plan adopted by the international board for establishment of an International Venture Council, including all Venture clubs here and abroad, and also set Salt Lake City for the next convention of the American Federation in 1940.

Others who reviewed convention activities were Mrs. Lorraine Good, Miss Mary Bourke, chairman of the international luncheon given by the South Atlantic Region during the convention, and Miss Emma Buechele, chairman of publicity, who described the publicity exhibit in which Washington tied with Los Angeles for second prize.

New members of the club who attended the luncheon yesterday were Jean Ambrose, Anna Hay Nichols, Augusta Ahl and Ray Epstein.

THE ARTS CLUB plans an unusual program for its dinner this evening—accordion music, not by one accordionist but by a band. The Homer L. Kitt Accordion Octette, a group of girls who sing, dance and play, and the Accordion Band, under the direction of Sylvia Kaplowitz, will present the entertainment, assisted by other singers and dancers.

The program will be in the garden, providing the weather is fair and inside if it rains. Mr. and Mrs. James Earle Miller are hosts for the club dinner.

AND speaking of the A. A. U. W., the clubhouse itself is taking a vacation this summer. There will be no tea next Monday afternoon, not only because of the holiday on the Fourth, but because from July 4 to July 18 the club will be closed for repairs and redecoration. Miss Margaret Lunn, secretary of Pi Upsilon Omicron, professional home economics fraternity, and manager of the clubhouse, will supervise operations.

Everything will be spic and span when the summer teas are resumed July 18 and a special program is being arranged for the official "opening."

IF there is ever a time when the efficient business woman needs either a husband or a chauffeur to drive her car it's when she goes out to a banquet to a country club in a pouring rain—a dinner just for the women members of her organization, with no helpful man along to let her out at the door and then park the car. Evening slippers and fluffy flounces mixed with mud puddles bedraggle the spirits of even the most self-sufficient.

Grant Circle, No. 1, To Visit Gettysburg

Many of the members and friends of U. S. Grant Circle No. 1, Department of the Potomac, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, of which Mrs. Alice M. Burke is president, will go by bus to the final reunion of the Blue and Gray at Gettysburg on Saturday.

Among those taking the trip will be the president of the department, Mrs. Susanna V. Myers, with the following members of her staff: Miss Rebecca L. Blaine, Mrs. Lucille C. Tamm, Mrs. Anna Hausman, Mrs. Mary H. Fortier, Mrs. Bess Stiles Pearce, Mrs. Cora Dorsey, Mrs. Jessie F. Thomas, Mrs. C. Winklemann and Mrs. Adah A. Bock.

Phi Delta Delta Stages Banquet

Three charter members of Beta Chapter, Phi Delta Delta Sorority, were present last night at the banquet and initiation held at the Sulgrave Club, celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization. Also new officers were installed, with Miss Nora O. Rentz succeeding Mrs. Edith Spaulding Petersilla as president.

Miss Grace B. Knoeller, past president of Beta and former international president of the sorority, presented a history of the chapter from the time of its organization at the Washington College of Law 25 years ago. Miss Knoeller was one of the six charter members. The other two present last evening were Miss Corinne Quarles, who spoke on the "Honorary Members," and Miss Margaret Kelly, although still a resident of Washington, was unable to attend the dinner. The other charter members, Lillian Bass Byers and Helen Considine, have moved from the city.

Honorary members included in the list given by Miss Quarles were: Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, past national president and honorary international president; Judge Annabel Matthews, president of the D. C. Women's Bar Association; Miss Pearl McCall, former assistant U. S. district attorney for the District of Columbia; Judge Mary O'Toole, of the Municipal Court; Miss Olive Jack, law librarian at the Library of Congress; Miss Delia Jackson, one of the first women to attend the Washington College of Law; Miss Anna A. O'Neill, instructor in International Law at the college; Miss Nila S. Allen, and Miss Emily Spilman.

The tables were decorated in pink and lavender, the sorority colors. Mrs. Petersilla presided and Mrs. Julia Benton Hopkins, the chaplain, conducted the installation ceremony for the new officers. These included, in addition to Miss Rentz, Mrs. Hopkins as priestess; Miss Edwin Joe Mayhall, registrar; Miss Elizabeth Espey, chancellor, and Mrs. Virginia E. Wood, chaplain.

A toast to the sorority was given by Miss Marion Goshorn.

Mrs. Laura Wallace Presides at Opening Session at Wardman Park.

The Grand Guardian Council of Washington, Order of Job's Daughters, last night held its first annual session at the Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. Laura S. Wallace, grand guardian, presided, assisted by W. J. Dunham, associate grand guardian.

There are 18 adult officers in the council which is the advisory body for the six Bethels of Job's Daughters in the District. Membership in the order is comprised of daughters of Masons, girls between the ages of 13 and 20.

The officers include, in addition to the grand and associate grand guardian, the vice grand guardian, Mrs. Mary E. Teachum, who was the organizer of Job's Daughters here 15 years ago; vice associate grand guardian, Herbert B. Nevius; grand guide, Miss Mary C. Benser; grand marshal, Mrs. Mary Reed; grand secretary, Mrs. Frances Robinson; grand treasurer, Mrs. Aimee Schmidt; grand director of music, Mrs. Sallie Wilson; grand chaplain, Miss Dorothy Vernon; grand librarian, Mrs. Elizabeth Newsom; grand first messenger, Mrs. Mary Moody; grand second messenger, Mrs. Roberta Stewart; grand third messenger, Mrs. Nellie Brattain; grand fourth messenger, Mrs. Ella Mae Hughes; grand fifth messenger, Mrs. Sue Vernon; grand senior custodian pro-tem, Mrs. Ruth Speake; grand junior custodian pro-tem, Miss Helen Hepp; grand inner guard, William G. Newman; grand outer guard, William H. Fox.

Harry J. Schmidt, grand patron of the Order of the Eastern Star and past associate supreme guardian of Job's Daughters, opened the meeting and the Celestial Chorus led the processional, singing "Open the Gates of the Temple." The members were from the choirs of the six Bethels, all dressed in white Grecian robes, and sang under the direction of Mrs. Wilson. The grand officers followed the chorus, accompanied by the honor queens and princesses of the Bethels.

The honor queens are: Miss Marjorie Stein, Bethel 1; Miss Virginia Haight, Bethel 2; Miss Lucille MacDowell, Bethel 3; Miss Virginia Riley, Bethel 4; Miss Gertrude Thomas, Bethel 5, and Miss Mary Ellen Bowden, Bethel 6.

The Bethel officers wore white satin robes with purple velvet capes and gold crowns. The opening of the grand chapter session by the grand guardian followed their entrance. The invocation was given by Miss Dorothy Vernon, as chaplain, and Miss Elaine Kohler, of Bethel No. 3, sang "Ave Maria" as the officers of the Bethels formed a cross before the altar.

The presentation of the national emblem was made by the grand marshal, Mrs. Mary Reed, a tribute to the national emblem was given by Miss Marie Louise Ralph, of Bethel 2, and a tribute to the Bethel flag by Miss Dorothy Johnson, Bethel 1. The deputy grand master of the Masonic Lodge of the District of Columbia, Eugene E. Thompson, brought greetings from the Masons, to which Mr. Dunham responded. Greetings from the Order of the Eastern Star were brought by the grand matron, Mrs. Helen Robbins, and the response by Mrs. Teachum.

WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, JUNE 30, 1938 — 21

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Boston, June 29.—There was cause for pause today when the Suffolk Downs announcefs proudly broadcast at the finish of the afternoon that the 66,000 customers had wagered $793,821 in the mutuel machines. Nearly an $800,000 "handle," he called it.

And we wondered if this was the New England thrift we had been hearing and reading about since we were knee high to a semicolon. At some time, of course, these must have been thrifty parts else how could they have dug up nearly four-fifths of a million dollars in these depression-ridden times. There is only one explanation. Boston has gone hog-wild over its racing.

POVICH.

Track promoters in Boston, in nearby Providence and nearby Rockingham have reaped fortunes—are still wallowing in velvet. The Boston fancy now is horse betting . . . And dog betting. For the city has gone for the dogs as well as the horses. Conservative Boston, which had looked down its nose at the communities which compromised with morals and legalized horse gambling, has swerved from the primrose path.

There are wails from the merchants and bleats from the clergy, but racing is here to stay in Boston, apparently. Because legalized racing was a political gold-mine in Massachusetts in the first place and no party with any regard for its campaign fund would dare to turn its back on the track promoters.

* * * *

Boston's racing is a product of the Hoover Administration depression and repeal. The folks then were ready to turn to anything on the theory that conditions could be no worse. Legislators were told how racing taxes and racing licenses and the State's "take" from the mutuels would relieve the pressure on State funds. Other States, notably Maryland, Illinois and Kentucky were getting millions in State funds from their race tracks.

It was the era, too, of repeal, and folks were aware of their new-found liberties. Racing was swept into the statutes on the rising tide of liberal legislation. Certainly, those had been bad times without racing and with prohibition. They were ready to try anything.

The track promoters had seen that Boston would go for racing. Boston fans were supporting the profitable tracks at Rockingham in New Hampshire and at Narragansett, in Providence. Walter O'Hara's Narragansett track had paid off its entire indebtedness with the profits of one year's operation. At Rockingham, the promoters were able to outbid New York, Maryland and Chicago for the best horseflesh by offering fabulous purses.

And so, when a State-wide referendum, generously prodded with funds for all parties, produced legalized racing for Massahcusetts in 1935, the gents who launched the Suffolk Downs track, 20 minutes from Scollay Square, did not hesitate to spend.

* * * *

Out of the marshland near here they constructed a beauteous mile course at a cost of $2,500,000 with $750,000 expended for leveling alone. They knew that they would get their money back pronto, and they have. Today the $50,000 added Massachusetts Handicap is the big summer time race of the year.

Racing was new to Boston folks and particularly the Massachusetts Legislature. Boston's racing commission was easy prey for the promoters. Maryland's tracks are restricted to 30 racing days per year, but here the promoters were able to get a stretch of 59 racing days for Suffolk alone. Counting Narragansett and Rockingham, Boston has steady racing from May through November.

The track promoters say frankly they don't know where the money that goes into the machines is coming from. Boston has been hit as hard as most cities by the Roosevelt depression, but Suffolk's "handle" this year has exceeded all records.

* * * *

The gambling fever has Boston securely in its grip, that's certain. In downtown office buildings, a bookmaking clique operates like a high-pressure sales organization with its runners making regular appearances for bet taking and pay-offs. And with bookmaking still illegal, that means, of course, more graft for the politicians.

Three more years, business men give Boston tracks to operate as paying propositions. Then decadence will set in, they are positive. Because by that time the betting public will have been milked of its ready money. Track operators and the State will have it all. Boston folks will have learned that you can't beat the races. But meanwhile they are having a high old time trying it.

Lawrin Wins $50,000 Feature Race and 3-Year-Old Honors

Owner Dupont Scratches Dauber at Last Minute in Hollywood Park Classic.

By the Associated Press.

Inglewood, Calif., June 29.—Herbert M. Woolf's Lawrin picked up the easiest money he'll ever win today when he won the $50,000 American 3-year-old championship stake at Hollywood Park.

With William duPont's Dauber, his chief rival, scratched from the race 30 minutes before post time, the Kentucky Derby champion toyed with two other candidates and finished seven lengths in front.

Lawrin was greeted with boos when he galloped back into the winner's circle.

Carleton Burke, chairman of the California horse racing commission, said the commission veterinarian and two others had pronounced Dauber "unfit to race."

Eddie Arcaro, the jockey who rode Lawrin to victory over Dauber in the Kentucky Derby, shot his mount into a quick lead in today's mile and one-quarter race and proceeded to step the distance in 2 minutes 4.3 seconds, a new record for the new track. The old one was 2 minutes 6.4 seconds, set last week.

Lawrin was a length and a half ahead going into the back stretch, increased it a length, dropped to lead by a mere three-quarters going into home and then Arcaro pushed down the throttle and the big colt galloped in.

A total of $140,394 was wagered on the race, and the track paid off on a minus pool basis—the minimum 20 cents for $2 ticket. There was no place or show pool.

Lawrin's victory netted his stable $40,000. Wing and Wing collected $10,000, and Rommy, $5,000.

MENOW went to the front after the opening furlong, drew clear before rounding the first turn and steadied along under stout restraint until the closing three furlongs, drew out steadily and won with speed to spare. BUSY K was unable to keep pace early, began bettering his position after leaving the backstretch and, closing with a rush on the outside through the stretch, was up in the last 50 yards to wear down WAR MINSTREL and WAR ADMIRAL for third. WAR MINSTREL was slow to begin and not hurried during the first half mile, responded gamely when placed under punishment and while unable to close any ground through the stretch, outlasted WAR ADMIRAL at the end. WAR ADMIRAL was placed under pressure when straightening out on the backstretch while holding to a position on the outside, moved up slowly only to weaken under his impost during the last quarter mile. PELIGOROS II saved considerable ground at the first turn, was down in the deeper going while in closest pursuit of the leader early, weakening in the last half mile. FLYING SCOT, away fast, dropped back badly nearing the half-mile ground and was not persevered with when beaten.

Headley Colt Is Victor by 8 Lengths

Seabiscuit Is Scratched; Busy K. Is Second in Suffolk Classic.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Suffolk Downs, Mass., June 29.—Not War Admiral, not Seabiscuit, but an underrated colt named Menow, the only 3-year-old in the six-horse field, won the $58,000 Massachusetts Handicap today.

And it wasn't even close.

Before 66,000 stunned New Englanders who had eagerly dumped $78,149 into the mutuel machines on War Admiral, as if the 2-5 favorite were a gilt-edged investment instead of a horse in a race, Menow won.

And it wasn't even close, for Menow at 10 to 1 won by eight lengths and was under Jockey Nick Wall's snug hold at the finish. Taking down the $10,000 second money was the 20-to-1 shot, Busy K. Third was War Minstrel, the 19-to-1 shot in the field.

And War Admiral?

He finished fourth—a laboring fourth in a blanket finish for second money, and denied third place by the photos of the finish which showed his royal nose inches behind the snout of War Minstrel at the wire.

Seabiscuit Scratched.

For War Admiral, suffering his first defeat after a dozen successive triumphs in stake races, there were no excuses. But for Seabiscuit, there were. Because Seabiscuit did not accept the issue today, he was scratched 15 minutes before post time to the accompaniment of boos from the 66,000.

Thus the War Admiral-Seabiscuit race for which turf fans had waited for two years again failed to materialize. Trainer Tom Smith, of Seabiscuit, refused personally to scratch his horse after declaring that when the bandages were removed as the field waited in the paddock, Seabiscuit was found to be suffering from sore tendons in his right foreleg, suffered probably during a morning workout here.

Trainer Smith submitted the horse to the inspection of track veterinarians and then it was announced that Seabiscuit would not run.

All money bet on Seabiscuit was refunded. And with Seabiscuit out, the mobs hammered down the odds on War Admiral from 4 to 5, to 2 to 5. There was no longer a threat to War Admiral, unbeaten since his 2-year-old days.

And then up popped Menow.

The Hal Price Headley colt that quit in the Kentucky Derby after flattering his backers by setting the pace, and had quit in the Preakness the following week after another brief pace-setting performance, didn't quit today.

There was no apparent cause for alarm when Menow, with a 107-pound package in the person of Nick Wall on his back, a 23-pound concession from War Admiral, raced to the front as the field passed the clubhouse turn and took command in the first furlong. For that was Menow's typical race. He would fold.

2 Lengths at First Turn.

But today Menow did not fold. A length and a half in the lead at the first turn, he was a clear two lengths in front as the field turned into the backstretch, and still under stout restraint by Wall. At the three-quarters it was Menow by four, with the tardy War Admiral making a move and reaching second position in a bit of a duel with War Minstrel.

Into the stretch they turned, with Menow three lengths in the van and the 66,000 still waiting for him to chuck it. But there was no quit in Menow today, as we have been saying.

Down through the stretch it was Menow, galloping, buck-jumping under his light impost. Four lengths, five lengths, six, seven, eight lengths began to show between the son of Pharamond II and the second flight of steeds.

It was a laughing finish in which Menow earned $49,500 for his owner. And if ever a horse actually lifted a horse-laugh to the rivals in his

Foxx and Cronin Hit Homers As Red Sox Trim Nats, 6 to 4

Nats Load Bases With None Out, But Score Only Once; Marcum Tight Thereafter, But Leonard Leaves After 6th.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Boston, June 29.—Dutch Leonard's knuckle ball held no terrors for the Red Sox today. In fact, they developed a great fondness for it, and Manager Bucky Harris was constrained to remove Leonard from the premises after six innings.

But by that time the Red Sox had runs sufficient to win a 6-4 ball game from the Nats. Johnny Marcum was the prime reason six runs were sufficient. He held the Nats to ten scattered hits and yielded only one run to the Washington contingent after the fourth inning.

Big Marcum, who has been staging something of a comeback for the Red Sox, was operating with the score tied at 3-3 in the fourth inning. Then the Red Sox gave him a comfortable three-run lead in the fifth, and after that Marcum was a very tough fellow to get along with as far as the Nats were concerned.

The Red Sox weren't trifling much with ordinary singles against Leonard. They started swinging from the heels right off the bat and knocked him loose from two runs in the first inning.

Those two runs were very simply obtained. Jimmy Foxx merely slapped his twenty-second home run of the season over the convenient rightfield wall, with none on and two out. And then Manager Joe Cronin, operating probably on the theory that he couldn't let an underling surpass him, did the same thing.

The Nats got one of those runs back in the second inning, but missed out woefully in an attempt for a truly big inning. It had all the earmarks of a juicy session for the Nats when Al Simmons singled to left, Bonura singled to center and Travis singled to right, scoring Simmons. Then Buddy Myer drew a walk and the bases were filled with none as yet out.

But the Nats bowed out of the inning most disgracefully. Rick Ferrell took three futile swings against Marcum and struck out. And Leonard obligingly hit into a double play started by third baseman Pinkey Higgins.

Buddy Lewis gave that one run right back to the Red Sox. He permitted Bobby Doerr to beat out a slow-hit roller to third base and then threw wild past Bonura to put Doerr on second. Eventually, Marcum singled to center and scored Doerr to put the Sox in front, 3-1.

Al Simmons, who had started the previous scoring of the Nats, launched a two-run uprising that tied the score at 3-3 in the fourth. He singled to left. Bonura flied to Chapman and Travis forced Simmons at second, but along came Buddy Myer with a single to center. Rick Ferrell drove Myer home with another of those singles to center and when Cronin muffed the return throw from the outfield, Myer also galloped home.

Then, like a base ingrate, Leonard pitched three runs back to the Bostons in the fifth. He suffered from double trouble in that inning. Vosmik banged a double to left and Foxx drove him home with a single to center. Then Cronin, who had been in something of a slump, having hit only a home run and a double in two times at bat, hit another double—a hopper over Bonura's head.

With Cronin and Foxx in scoring position, Higgins scored 'em with—you guessed it—the Sox's third double of the inning.

That made the score 6-3 and Marcum, as we said, was very tough thereafter. The Nats picked up a run in the seventh because Rick Ferrell singled, Pinch-hitter Taft Wright doubled down the rightfield line and West grounded out. But the Nats were equal to no more, and that was too bad, because Pete Appleton held the Red Sox scoreless in the eighth and ninth.

Suzanne Lenglen Fights for Life.

Paris, June 29 (U.P.).—Suzanne former women's tennis champion of the world, who is critically ill in a hospital, underwent a third blood transfusion late tonight as physicians struggled to save her life.

Two transfusions were made during the day to combat pernicious anemia, resulting from a ganglioinic condition (tumors) behind the ears.

Puglisi Wins Easy Match With Thomas

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Shaking off the misty effects of a straight right to the chin that sent him plunging headlong to the canvas, George Abrams came back fighting to win a unanimous decision over Phil Furr in a ten-round bout last night at Griffith Stadium.

Some 3,000 fans, largely pro-Abrams in their sentiment, saw the broad-chested Jewish lad stage a rally that all but put Furr on the canvas too. He hit him with everything in the book in late rounds when Furr weakened and tired, but couldn't put him down.

But if Abrams' punch was a bit anemic, his heart wasn't, for he survived a series of belts that landed in foul territory to win. Three times his face creased in agony, and he appealed to Referee Eddie LaFond for protection as Furr drove steaming left hooks below the beltline. Then he fought his way out of distress like a true gladiator.

Pounds Abrams' Stomach.

But there were times when Furr's painful pot-shots landed above the belt line—in the sector usually referred to as the tummy, and Abrams' twisted features revealed that he didn't relish such treatment. But working in his corner were Jimmy White and Lew Diamond, experienced seconds, and when the late rounds rolled around with George's midsection glowing like a midsummer sunset, he finally managed to block Furr's body blows.

In the sixth round Referee Eddie LaFond twice stopped the fisticuffing to wave a warning finger in Furr's face about the submarine socking Furr, plainly disgusted at continual warnings and frequent penalties, seemed to lose heart, and from the sixth to the tenth rounds he was not the same. As a matter of fact he wasn't the old Furr District fans expected to see. He looked rusty. His timing was bad, and after putting Abrams down in the second, he started to fade.

After the fight he displayed a damaged knuckle, knocked out of place when he delivered the blow. But that doesn't detract from Abrams' victory. The kid took the play away from his more experienced adversary, shifted his attack to the body, briefly, then switched back to the head with definite results. Furr took everything George tossed at him, and he took it around the head.

Phil Takes Punishment.

He wobbled precariously in the eighth and ninth, and it looked as though Abrams might win by a knockout. But he still had a keen, fighting mind to rely on when physical endurance failed, and it was his ring generalship that saved him.

Abrams shook him in the first round, and in the eighth and ninth. In the other rounds the fighting was close and usually at short range, discounting Furr's fouls—which were not overlooked on the official score sheets.

To Abrams' everlasting credit let it be noted that in the third round, when he drove Furr to the ropes, Phil turned his back to him to ward off some of the blows, leaving himself completely at the District boy's mercy. But George refused to hit him. He stepped back, and waited for the referee to step between them. It was a sportsmanlike gesture.

O'Mahoney, Dusek Clash Tonight on Griffith Stadium Mat

Strong Card Will Support Main Event

Program to Be Staged at Arena in Case of Bad Weather.

Danno O'Mahoney, favorite of Washington's Irish colony, returns to familiar scenes tonight at Griffith Stadium, where the former world's champion meets Joe Dusek, the youngest member of the famous Dusek "riot squad" in the headline wrestling bout. In the event of rain the show will be transferred indoors to Turner's Arena, Fourteenth and W streets.

One of two men to down Jim Londos in the last ten years, O'Mahoney plans to bring into play his "Irish Whip" against the cunning Dusek, who already has stolen the thunder from his big brother, Rudy.

O'Mahoney lifted the world's crown one night in Boston a few years ago from Londos. Londos left this country for a barnstorming tour. Meanwhile O'Mahoney enjoyed a great success until he collided with Yvon Robert, the French-Canadian, who, in turn, dropped the crown to Cliff Olson, the Minnesota Swede.

The apple-cheeked Irishman is hopeful of regaining his crown. He has asked Promoter Turner to match him with either Bronko Nagurski, the recognized Dusek title claimant, or Crusher Casey, the Bowser standard bearer.

This, Promoter Turner, has promised.

Meanwhile, Joe Dusek, who is a dangerous boy on any mat, will have something to say about that. Dusek never has met O'Mahoney here, but Jumpin' Joe is anxious to win top billing for the rest of the summer with a victory over Danno.

A cargo of T. N. T.-laden behemoths will be unleashed in supporting bouts. Gino Garibaldi, Italian favorite, returns for a duel with Ed (Strangler) White, former football star.

Emil Dusek, generalissimo of the Duseks, having recovered from an auto injury, will return for a bout with Angelo Savoldi, a cousin of Dynamite Joe Savoldi.

First bout is at 8:30.

championship, although Furr scaled only 147¼ pounds, to 157 for his opponent.

Referee Eddie LaFond gave every round but the second—which went to Furr—to the winner. Judge Bob Eller scored it the same way with the exception of the fourth, which he called even. Judge Bob Mushall agreed with LaFond. But with all the fouling, all three had a fairly close score on their sheets.

Angelo Puglisi (162½), of Duluth, loafed six easy rounds with Buddy Thomas and won a unanimous decision. Thomas was down in the first round for a count of nine, the result of colliding with a straight right, and sank softly to the canvas in the second. He was hit hard, but not stoutly enough to put him down. He took another nine for good measure, and was strictly on the catching end thereafter. Puglisi looked sluggish and lazy.

Joe (The Poser) Spangler (151¾), of Richmond, opened the same gash over El Brookman's left eye that he did in winning over the Washington boy by a technical knockout in their last bout, and won a six-round decision. Brookman (152½) didn't appear to be in the best of condition, and his timing was notoriously bad. He rallied near the end of the fourth and fifth rounds, but Spangler worked on the eye sufficiently to keep Brookman on the defensive and keep the balance in his favor.

Lynch Kayoes U. S. Fighter in England

Paisley, Scotland, June 29 (AP).—Benny Lynch, of Scotland, scored a 12-round knockout over Jackie Jurich, of San Jose, Calif., tonight after the British board of boxing control had shorn Lynch of his world flyweight title for failure to scale within the 112-pound division limit.

The bout was scheduled as a 15-round world championship battle, but at the weighing-in today Lynch scaled 118½ and his title was declared vacant. The bout went on at catchweights, Jurich coming in at 110½. Lynch's $1,000 money posted as a guarantee he would make the weight was forfeited to Jurich, whose manager, Jack Rogers, immediately claimed the vacated title for the Californian.

Sandlot Pick-ups

Tom Sutphin, who tosses the ball from the mound to home plate quite effectively, is giving the Wakefield Dairy Farms rooters plenty to crow about . . . During the last 22 innings, he has allowed but six hits, only walked three, and given up four runs . . . To start his achievement, Tom shut out the Annapolis Juniors, 10-0, and then downed the Blue Jay Juniors, 5-2 . . . In the last four frames of the Maryland Athletic Club tilt, he was sent in with the score standing 14-2 against his club . . . He held the enemy hitless and scoreless, but his Wakefield chums lost, 14-12 . . . As you probably know, Sutphin was not the losing hurler . . . The fact that his mates shoved across 10 runs while he was toiling on the rubber, is enough to illustrate how Tom is respected by his coworkers.

• • • •

Fred Davis, first basemen for the Wakefield nine, has played in 12 games this season and has this to show for his efforts: . . . A fielding average of 1.000 . . . He has not even bobbled one, and do not let anybody tell you he does not go after the hard ones . . . A batting average of .428 . . . Two homers, two triples, and three doubles have been sandwiched in between a barrage of one base blows.

• • • •

You usually think of an unlimited ball team as being much older than this one . . . The Post Circulators probably have the youngest squad in or around the city of Washington . . . The team average is 19 . . . The baby member of the lot is Ralph Clark, 17, who occupies the position half way betwen second and third bases . . . And he is showing his mates how they play baseball out on the Coast . . . Ralph was California All-State high school short stop . . . If all reports are true, he really can apply the wood to the hide. PERRY WILKINSON.

Chisox Beat Browns, 9-5

Radcliff, Rensa, Owen Lead Chicago Attack.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, June 29.—The big bats of Rip Radcliff, Steve Rensa and Marvin Owen clubbed the St. Louis Browns into submission again today as the Chicago White Sox took the third straight of their four-game series, 9 to 5.

Steve Rensa broke Oral Hildebrand's spell in the seventh with a homer, scoring behind Owen, for the Sox' first runs.

Mike Kreevich started the eighth with a triple. Radcliff followed him to the plate and blasted his second four-bagger in as many days to tie the score at 4-all. Owen, next up, also hit for the circuit. Three more runs came in when Hayes walked, forcing Rensa in, and Steinbacher singled, scoring Joe Kuhel and Monte Stratton.

Home Runs Whip Tribe

Detroit Wins, 4-3; Rogell Greenberg Turn Tide.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, June 29.—Mel Harder, fresh from duty in the Cleveland bull pen, seemed to have a shutout over Detroit to his credit going into the eighth inning today—but when it was over Bill Rogell and Hank Greenberg had home runs and Detroit had a 4-to-3 victory.

Harder coasted along easily for seven innings, allowing only five hits, fanning six and walking only one man. He appeared to be in old time form.

But Rogell, first man up in the eighth, smacked one offering over the rightfield wall and a few minutes later Greenberg was standing at the plate with Gehringer and York on base. It was Greenberg's twenty-first home run of the season.

The defeat narrowed the Indians' lead over the second-place Yankees to three games as the New Yorkers took two games from Philadelphia.

A bad throw by Hal Trosky in the eighth helped to build up the situation which gave Detroit the victory. After Rogell's homer, Walker singled and Gehringer followed with a sharp bounder to Trosky.

Menow Wins $50,000 Stake

wake it was Menow, for when he returned to the winner's circle to receive the floral horseshoe about his neck he tossed his head gayly and actually nibbled at the yellow chrysanthemums.

And what of War Admiral?

There were grave misgivings at the outset when the son of Man o' War, after kicking up his usual fuss at the starting stalls, did not break with his usual speed and got off third behind the flashy Flying Scot and Menow.

Slow Start Unusual.

That was not War Admiral's habit—the slow break—and Charley Kurtsinger began to hustle him. The Riddle colt was three lengths out of it in the first quarter, but moved up to third behind Menow and Peligoroso II as the field turned into the backstretch.

There Kurtsinger called for some speed and with those long strides of his, War Admiral made an impressive move. Past Flying Scot he moved quickly and then got his head in front of War Admiral. Two lengths beyond was the flying Menow the sprinter, and War Admiral began to look like the winner.

And then Nick Wall, the East Boston boy on Menow, put on the pressure and actually ran away from War Admiral and Kurtsinger, with four lengths of daylight showing. Around the turn into the homestretch, War Admiral raced as a team with War Minstrel in second place and now only a sensational stretch rush could overtake Menow.

And War Admiral didn't have it. His crushing impost of 130 pounds was taking a fearful toll. Menow was literally bouncing along in front and Busy K, a new threat, was beginning to show. But there was none to threaten Menow. Busy K could only threaten War Admiral and War Minstrel, and he came from fifth to take down second money ahead of War Minstrel.

Giants Beat Phils Twice, 9-1 and 6-2

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, June 29.—Hal Schumacher pitched six-hit ball for his seventh victory of the season and Lanky Cliff Melton ended a personal 4-game losing streak today as the New York Giants beat the Phillies, 9-1 and 6-2, in a double-header, to run their National League lead to three full games.

Schumacher, given 12-hit support in the opener, had a 4-hit shutout until the last of the ninth, when Martin's single and Arnovich's double accounted for the lone Philly run.

Bob Seeds, the Giants' new lead-off man, led the attack with three singles and three runs driven in. He singled in the first, went to third on Danning's double and scored on an error; drove in two of the five runs in the fourth with another single to left, and clouted his third straight hit in the fifth to bat in one of the two runs the Giants scored. The New Yorkers picked up another in the eighth.

Melton gave up 10 hits in the nightcap, but scattered them well. He shut out the Phils until the sixth, when they put together singles by Atwood, Stainback and Whitney for both their tallies.

(WJSV-Wheaties Baseball Commentator.)

The Man of the Month points were divided between seven of the Nationals yesterday. Although none of them starred in the 6-4 defeat by the Red Sox, all contributed one or two highlights of the game.

To Al Simmons, two points, as the veteran outfielder continued his batting streak with two safe hits, and took a three-point lead with only two games remaining in the second month of the contest.

To Rick Ferrell, two points, for hitting safely twice against Johnny Marcum.

To Zeke Bonura, two points, for the same reason, two hits.

5 Homers Help Yanks Take 2 From Macks

Gomez and Hadley Turn in 4-Hit Performances to Win, 10-0 and 13-1.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 29.—The Yankees stepped up their home run production to its pre-recession level today, belting five four-baggers as Lefty Gomez and Bump Hadley turned in a pair of four-hit pitching performances that give the world champions two decisions over the Philadelphia Athletics, by scores of 10 to 1 and 13 to 1.

Gomez, who has been running in tough luck this season, hurled the shutout. Behind their erratic southpaw the Yanks bagged 14 hits off George Caster and Ed Smith, Joe Gordon leading the procession with a homer, double and two singles. Bill Dickey, with a homer and triple, was right behind.

Hadley, in the nightcap, barely missed repeating Gomez's feat. He did pitch four-hit ball, but one of those hits was a home run by Frank Hayes. For Hadley the Yanks produced 13-hit support, with Red Rolfe crashing out a four-bagger and three singles, Lou Gehrig a homer, double and single, and Gordon another homer and a single.

Pirates Top Reds by 5-4

Swift's Relief Hurling, Waner's Bat Factors.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, June 29.—Bill Swift's superb relief flinging and Paul Waner's big bat united today to bring the Pittsburgh Pirates from behind and edge out the Cincinnati Reds today, 5 to 4.

"Big Poison" drove in the tying and winning runs with a pair of doubles in the fifth and seventh innings, while Swift limited the Reds to one safety in five and two-thirds innings.

Swift relieved Jim Tobin, who was belted for 4 runs and 9 hits. Cincinnati Manager Bill McKechnie lifted Pitcher Davis in the fifth during a Pirate 4-run rally and Joe Cascarella was charged with the loss.

Dick Meyer Wins Junior Championship on 19 Hole

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer.

New York, June 29.—When Joe Louis gave Max Schmeling, such a terrific beating at the Yankee Stadium last week that he sent the German challenger and pretender to the throne right to the hospital, a sudden calm seemed to settle over the pugilistic profession. The Brown Bomber apparently knocked the whole heavyweight division into a state of coma, although of course it is possible that someone beat him to it.

VIDMER.

Anyway there has been hardly a chirp from any of those fine fellows who were going about a few weeks ago saying that they hoped Louis would win because Louis was one guy they knew they could knock over. Obviously most of them were at the ringside and saw what happened to Schmeling. If not, the descriptive powers that relayed the result to them must have been just about as convincing as Louis himself. In any event, there has been a strange and significant silence from former challengers ever since the fight.

Before the battle of unbelievable brevity, Mike Jacobs, czar of boxing promoters, discussed his future plans. If it turned out to be a close and sensational fight, he said, then he might bring Louis and Schmeling together for a third match in September. It was sensational enough, but no possible stretch of the imagination could pronounce it close. Louis simply was the winner and Schmeling didn't even finish second.

• • • •

But Uncle Mike had another plan in case such a thing happened and somehow I suspect that he anticipated the lopsided ending that developed. If a third match between the Brown Bomber and the Black Uhlan didn't seem to promise much public appeal, Uncle Mike suggested that he would toss Max Baer back into the ring against the champion.

This was quite acceptable to Mr. Baer. In fact, he was eager for the chance to meet Mr. Louis again. He went about telling all who asked him, and I might add, practically everyone who with false tact, remembering the last meeting between Louis and Baer, refrained from mentioning the dark destroyer in his presence, that there was nothing he would like better than to fight Louis again.

• • • •

For the Kiddie.

He admitted that he hadn't been very impressive before, and even went so far as to agree that those who said he had quit like a dog perhaps had something. But all was different in Max Baer's heart. He was a changed man. Why, he was a proud papa of a bouncing boy and the one ambition in his life was to wipe out the stain of that ignominous defeat.

• • • •

Still, it seems that a Baer-Louis fight in September is about all there is to offer the followers of the fights. It doesn't make much difference who is tossed in there with Louis under current conditions. An atmosphere of awe, deeper and thicker than ever before, has settled around the prowess of the Brown Bomber. Even those who once sneered and asked, "who did he ever lick?" have become silent, realizing perhaps that he has licked every man available, including every active former heavyweight champion of the world — Jack Sharkey, Max Schmeling, Max Baer, Primo Carnera and James J. Braddock. And he has knocked out every one of them!

• • • •

Voices in the Wilderness.

But there are a couple of fighters who never were heavyweight champions, or even close to the throne, who he didn't knock out. One is Tommy Farr and the other is Bob Pastor, and both are claiming that they are the logical challengers for the title, or at least their managers are claiming it for them. As a matter of fact, I doubt very much that either is particularly anxious for his manager to succeed in pressing his claims, although the managers, Messrs. Joe Gould and James J. Johnson, respectively, are old enough and wise enough in the ways of the ring to know that no manager ever got hurt yet.

• • • •

No, Mr. Johnston, I'm afraid your Bob Pastor doesn't command much respect from the commission, the fight fans or Joe Louis. Baer at least would provide a little color—he 'alks a good fight, anyway—and if he lies down, at least he doesn't run away. And Farr might provide a test of Louis' power to punch. He can take more than any man now fighting and Louis can punch more than any man alive. It might be interesting on that account. But Pastor doesn't provide a fight—he prevents it

Maybe we had best let Louis rest for a while and wait until somebody new springs up across the horizon—somebody who can belt out fellows like Baer and Farr and Pastor without getting up a sweat. Because if he can't, he wouldn't have a chance with the current champion of the world anyway.

Vass Loses 4-Up Lead In 8 Holes

Kenwood Youngster Wins Over Ross in Upset in 3d Round.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Four down and eight to play, apparently doomed to the runner-up role in a tournament he had dominated from the start, Richard "Dick" Meyer, young Manor Club star, rallied to overcome the deficit and win the District Junior championship on the nineteenth hole of his home course yesterday. The final round victim was 15-year-old George Vass, jr., and captain of the Western High golf team, from Kenwood.

Meyer, medalist with a 1 over par 71, defeated Jimmy Stevens, of Army and Navy, 4 and 3, in the morning semifinals, and strengthened his favorite's role, as Vass was pulling the first major upset of the event, as he defeated Scotty Ross, Capital, by a decisive 4 and 3 margin. Meyer had par in for a 69 in the morning, while Vass was 3 over for 15 holes.

Playing in the tournament for the last time, as he will be over the age limit of 18 next year, Meyer started the final round with a par and win on the first hole. He lost a stroke to par on the second and Vass evened the match, and then won the latter three of the next four holes with pars to take a commanding 3-up lead.

Vass Goes 4-Up.

A birdie 3 by Meyer on the seventh hole stopped Vass' streak, but the Kenwood youngster replied with a birdie on the eighth and turned 2-up as they halved the ninth in regulation figures.

Vass went 4-up and was apparently the new champion, as Meyer missed par on the tenth, but here the Manor representative found his touch, and with three pars and a birdie on the next four holes, squared the match on the fifteenth green.

Each missed birdie putts on 16, halving the hole in pars, and on the finishing numbers, 17 and 18, they pulled the Alphonse-and-Gaston act, obligingly halving the holes in one over par and sending the issue into extra holes.

Meyer wasted little time on the nineteenth, or first hole, as he placed a second shot within three feet of the pin and was conceded the birdie hole and the match as Vass three-putted the green. The champion was five over par for the final round, with Vass seven over.

Meyer, former St. John's Prep captain, now employed with a local bank, served notice on his opponents that he was going to win the title before going over the age limit, as he played his course in low figures during practice rounds, then won three matches without being extended and then conquered Vass, after overcoming a four-hole deficit.

But outside of Meyer's fine play Vass was the sensation of the event, as he won two matches in a row in the role of underdog, over Bob Brown, Kenwood, and Ross, and then let the crown slip from his grasp with an erring putter on the final holes.

Donohue Wins Consolation.

Bob Donohue, Kenwood youngster, won the consolation by trouncing Cliff Gruver, Washington, 4 and 3 in the finals. In the morning semifinals Donohue won 7 and 6 over Jerry Quinn, Congressional, while Gruver downed Ray Rhineheart, Argyle, 6 and 5.

Meyer's name on the Albert MacKenzie trophy is a signal that his future in local golf is guaranteed. For with the exception of Ralph Bogart, last year's winner, who has hardly had time for much competitive golf, all of the previous junior championship winners have become champions of one event or other.

They include Roger Peacock, Maury Nee, Frank Roesch, Page Hufty, Johnny Brawner, Billy Shea, Billy Dettweiler, Bobby Brownell and others. The crown has been won by a Manor golfer four of the past seven years, Nee, Brownell twice, and Meyer.

Johnny Goodman Weds Schoolday Sweetheart.

Omaha, Nebr., June 22 (AP).—National Amateur Golf Champion Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, and Miss Josephine Kersigo, his schoolday sweetheart, were married here today. Both are 28 years old. The marriage, at St. Stanislaus Church, of which the bride is a member, was attended by about 400 friends of the couple. They will set up housekeeping here after a two-week honeymoon trip.

D. C. Women Golfers Win

Take Philadelphia Match, 9½, 8½.

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29.—Washington's women golfers won a clean-cut victory over Philadelphia representatives today, 9½ points to 8½, in a match played under the best ball Nassau System.

There were 12 players to a side in six foursomes, with a total of 18 points, and the match was played over the Overbrook Golf Club course. The lead at each nine holes counted a point with a third point for the match.

The Philadelphians had anticipated a victory without difficulty, but the women from Washington got a firm grip at the start and refused to be ousted.

Summary:

Marion Brown, Mrs. Bishop P. Hill, Washington, 2½; Mrs. W. G. Hamilton, jr., Anne Krumbhaar, Philadelphia, ½.

Mrs. Charlotte Stern, Mrs. W. R. Stokes, Washington, 1; Mrs. E. L. Howe, Mrs. J. J. Mitchell 3d, Philadelphia, 2.

Mrs. L. G. Pray, Mrs. Myron Davy, Washington, 1½; Mrs. Richard Francis, jr., Mrs. J. Walker Hoopes, Philadelphia, 1½.

Mrs. H. J. Simons, Kate Hyde Scully, Washington, 1; Mrs. Conyers Button, Mrs. J. S. Diston, jr., Philadelphia, 2.

Mrs. F. S. Godfrey, Mrs. J. W. Ludewig, Washington, ½; Eliza Todd, Ruth Haley, Philadelphia, 2½.

Mrs. Louis Bieler and Mrs. Theodore Wiedersoffi, Philadelphia, played a round with Susan Hacker and Mrs. J. F. Gross, Washington, and took all three points, but this was not part of the team match.

Don Budge, Austin Meet In Semifinal

Both Stars Breeze Ahead as Foes Offer Little Competition.

By Scotty Reston,

Associated Press Staff Writer.

Wimbledon, England, June 29.—Don Budge and that mechanical rabbit, Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, scampered into the finals of the All-England tennis championships today and Wimbledon, a little bored by their superiority, turned its attention to tomorrow's semifinals in the women's section of the tournament.

Austin, reaching the zenith of his form, eliminated Germany's Henner Henkel in just 55 minutes, 6—2, 6—4, 6—0. Budge followed the English stylist on the center court and thrashed Ferenc Puncec, of Yugoslavia, 6—2, 6—1, 6—4.

Budge's overwhelming superiority was actually little short of pathetic. Trying to stop him was like holding up your hand to halt an avalanche. He hasn't dropped a set in this tournament and hasn't lost in major competition since Fred Perry beat him in the 1936 United States finals.

The victories of Budge and Austin cleared the way for the real climax of the tournament—Helen Jacobs against Alice Marble and Helen Wills Moody against Hilda Krahwinkel, the only non-American remaining in the women's singles.

Miss Marble and Mrs. Moody got a brief look at each other today on the center court when Alice paired with Budge to beat Queen Helen and Jean Borotra, of France, in the quarter-finals of the mixed doubles. The scores were 6—1, 6—4.

Miss Jacobs and Frau Sperling had the day off. Denmark's star, who represented Germany before her marriage, came out to Wimbledon to watch Henkel lost to Austin. But Miss Jacobs deserted the tournament and went over to the deserted Queens Club, and with Bill Tilden, sharpened her new forehand for tomorrow's struggle.

John Burke, Hoyas, Wins 2 Matches

Shea Loses in College Golf; Turnesa Wins Handily.

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., June 29.—Paced by the winning co-medalists, Willie Turnesa, of Holy Cross and Lew Oehmig, of Chattanooga, the national intercollegiate golf championship progressed today to the quarter-finals stage after a series of 24 spectacular matches.

Turneas, 23-year-old "youngster" of the Elmsford, N. Y., golfing clan, turned back successfully in the opening two rounds of eliminations William S. Boyd, of Stanford and Bobby Jacobson, of Dartmouth, both by counts of 3 and 2.

After an easy morning victory by 5 and 4 over Ralph Sharpless, of Texas, Oehmig was pressed all the way by big Edward J. Flowers, of Michigan State before he dropped a 10-foot putt at the eighteenth for a halve in birdies and a one-up victory.

Joining the co-medalist, in the quarter-final bracket for 36-hole matches tomorrow were Robert N. Babbish of the University of Detroit, Stanley Holditch of Georgia Tech, John P. Burke of Georgetown University, Henry Castillo and Bert McDowell, both of Louisiana State and Bill Barclay of Michigan.

Hoyas Break Even.

Georgetown broke even as John P. Burke eliminated Brown W. Cannon, of Stanford, 4 and 3, and William L. Shea was ousted by Edward J. Flowers, of Michigan State, 2 up, in the first round.

Burke lost second when trapped, won third and fourth when Cannon three-putted, won sixth and seventh when Cannon's wood game faltered, rounded turn 4 up with 37, 1 over par. Burke lost tenth when roughed drive, lost eleventh by missing 2-foot putt, but won fifteenth and match by sinking 15-foot putt for birdie.

Shea was beaten on first by birdie. He 3-putted third, hit trap on sixth, was short on drive and approaches on eighth to lose the three holes. Won ninth when Flowers' drive went short. Shea rounded turn with 39, 3 over par and 3 down. Shea won thirteenth when Flowers' approach went short. He took fourteenth and sixteenth when Flowers 3-putted. Flowers won seventeenth with birdie and eighteenth when Shea's ball was lost.

Four down through the twelfth, Robinson settled down to a spectacular streak of shot-making, finishing with an eagle and two birdies to square the match. Both got good drives on the nineteenth, but Robinson was down hill to the left with his iron while Burke's approach neared the edge of the green. Robinson missed a 30-foot putt. Burke overshot the hole with his third, but sank the long putt coolly to win.

McDowell Is Victor.

A technicality gave McDowell, the Kansas City youngster, a one-up victory over Billie Lee Craig, of Oklahoma on the eighteenth. They were even through the seventeenth. McDowell reached the eighteenth green in three, Craig's scond rolled over and his shot was obstructed by a boundary post.

In dropping his ball away, Craig turned his back to the hole instead of facing the flag as required by the rules, costing the match.

Holditch, a quarter-finalist last year, built up an early lead and remained out in front to register a 2-and-1 decision over Phil Donahue, of Notre Dame. Holditch conquered Paul Genung, of Dayton, one up in his first match.

Seven Seeded Players Gain Net Round of 8

By Jack Munhall.

Play ran true to prediction in the District of Columbia tennis championships yesterday as five seeded singles players won their fourth-round tennis matches at Columbia Country Club to move into the quarter-finals and favored doubles teams advanced without upset.

The round of eight in the singles is now filled, for Lieut. James Farrin, Ray Stocklinski and Hugh Lynch gained berths Tuesday. Joining this trio are Defending Champion Barney Welsh; second-seeded Dooley Mitchell; fourth-seeded "Baron" Bill Breese; sixth-seeded Tony Latona, and seventh-seeded Lieut. Stan Robinson.

Since Lieut. Farrin was the No. 5 ranked player and Lynch the No. 3, the quarter-final round is composed of only one unseeded player—Stocklinski. Only seeded player to be eliminated was eighth-seeded Tom Mangan. He bowed in the first round.

Though the favorites won without exception in the singles, Mitchell, Latona and Lieut. Robinson were thoroughly extended before emerging victorious. Latrona and Lieut. Bill Howard fought for more than 2½ hours before Latona grabbed the match in three sets, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3.

Both Mitchell and Lieut. Robinson were made to hustle by youngsters, of the type which made the early rounds interesting by their surprising improvement. Mitchell rated the chief threat to Welsh who is seeking his fifth straight title, turned back DeWitt Smith, junior ace, 6—2, 10—8, but not before having match point twice in the seventeenth game of the second set.

Robinson had even more trouble in polishing off Ralph (Buddy) Adair in straight sets, 7—5, 7—5. Both sets were so closely contested that a break here and there would have returned Adair the winner.

Adair and Robinson were tied at 5-all in both sets but each time the Army officer called on his greater experience to break Buddy's service and hold his own for the necessary games.

Torturer Wins Indian River Steeplechase Event at Delaware Park

Clark Horse Leads Field 8 Lengths

Finds Heavy, 2½-Mile Course With 16 Jumps to His Liking.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Delaware Park, Stanton, Dela., June 29.—The new steeplechase course, which leads the horses apparently out of the park and in again, was the scene of the principal action supplied a crowd of 8,000 here today. Over the grueling route of 16 jumps, came Torturer, representing F. Ambrose Clark, to win by eight lengths in the two and one-half mile contest known as the $6,000 added Indian River Steeplechase Handicap and due to be a yearly feature at this track between the railroads.

Torturer, a son of the mud-loving Wrack, found the heavy steeplechase course to his liking and reached the finish line eight lengths in front of his closest rivals, El Dorador, owned by Mrs. Randolph Scott, sister of William duPont, jr., who laid out and supervised the building of the course.

Third money in the field of seven went to Gladys Whitney's Red Rain with Thomas Hitchcock's Rioter a distant fourth. Swimalong finished in fifth position, Ossabaw, stable mate of Rioter and National Anthem, hope of the Brookmeade Stable, losing their riders in the late stages.

Torturer was overlooked in the betting despite the fact that Jockey J. McGovern had previously ridden three steeplechase winners here and H. G. Gaither had saddled the same number. Those who wagered on the light blue and yellow collected at the rate of $16 for each $2 investment.

A colt and a filly, both the property of Leo W. Ulmer, took down first and second money in the opening event. Robespierre, a son of Sir Andrew, scored his first victory by taking the measure of Sis Lottie, but the latter kept the main money in the same stable. Burner was third, with six others out of the pay in the 5-furlong test. The result brought a "trick" set of prices, with the winning entry, favorite in the wagering, paying $9.30 to win and $12.40 to place.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROBESPIERRE (Ulmer entry), $9.30, $12.40, $6.10; SIS LOTTIE (Ulmer entry), $12.40, $6.10; BURNER, $4.30.

ROBESPIERRE, steadied along while forwardly placed, responded when shaken up to move up stoutly and collared SIS LOTTIE inside eighth pole, to win going away. SIS LOTTIE, quickest to begin, shook off PROSIT to draw out and closed with good energy. BURNER made up ground gradually in stretch run.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:22. Off 3:26. Winner, Miss E. Billor's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITTLE JOCK, $4.00, $2.70, $2.60; IDLE ELF, $2.80, $2.40; LUCULENT, $3.50.

LITTLE JOCK, sent through on rail at turn, assumed command nicely and was kept to pressure to finish. IDLE ELF, well dropped back after racing with RUM BOY on top and came with good speed in closing test, but was held safe. LUCULENT was forced to race on outside throughout and weakened slightly in final sixteenth.

Daily Double, Robespierre and Little Jock, Paid $39.00.

THIRD RACE—About 2½ miles. Purse, $6,000 added. The Indian River Steeplechase Handicap. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:53. Off 3:54. Winner, F. A. Clark's b. m (4), by Wrack—Pola Negri. Trained by H. G. Gaither. Net value to winner, $6,800; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $150. Time, 5:06 2-5. (Track record.) 16 Jumps.)

†Thomas Hitchcock entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TORTURER, $16.00, $7.80, $4.60; EL DORADOR, $18.50, $6.40; RED RAIN, $4.00.

TORTURER, in hand while fencing in good fashion for mile, improved his position with rush leaving tenth fence, took lead and was not seriously menaced thereafter, winning with speed in reserve. EL DORADOR was forward factor from start and finished gamely, but was no match for winner. RED RAIN, under stout restraint for turn of field, moved up boldly approaching ninth fence and was bothered by loose OSSABAW in closing stages. NATIONAL ANTHEM was well placed when he lost rider at fifteenth fence. OSSABAW showed way for mile and weakened, losing rider at thirteenth fence.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:26½. Off 4:27½. Winner, W. M. Elder's ch. g. (2), by Sir James—Hardy Fern. Trained by N. K. Beal. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:11 1-5.

•Two-dollar mutuels paid—HARDY JIM, $13.60, $3.30, out; ARIEL TOY, $2.30, out; MISTER MAJOR, out.

HARDY JIM, under restraint for quarter, went wide for racing room leaving backstretch, rallied when shaken up to take lead and easily held ARIEL TOY safe. The latter was rated when outrun by MISTER MAJOR going to turn, saved ground entering stretch and closed gamely. MISTER MAJOR weakened after going to top with rush under hustling tactics.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:55. Off 5:01. Winner, W. S. Kilmer's br. c. (3), by Neddie—Sunazr. Trained by W. A. Crawford. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:15 4-5.

†Fairfields Stable-W. S. Kilmer entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NEDAYR (entry), $3.20, $2.20, $2.80; BILLY BEE, $2.70, $2.90; LUCKY OMEN (entry), $2.80.

NEDAYR, showing liking for the going, was under slight restraint while close to leaders, came through on inside to take command, but had to be put to stout drive to stave off closing bid of BILLY BEE. The latter, off in close quarters, came with a rush in midstretch, but tired suddenly. LUCKY OMEN closed with good energy from a slow beginning.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. Grade C Handicap. For 2-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:30. Off 5:30½. Winner, H. P. Headley's br. c. (4), by Pharamond II—Miss Tony. Trained by D. A. Headley. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:49 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OLD NASSAU, $3.80, $4.00, $2.80; UNHERALDED, $5.30, $3.70; CHIEF CHEROKEE, $2.60.

OLD NASSAU, under steadying restraint for half, was taken to outside for racing room leaving backstretch, responded gamely to drive to gain gradually and came with rush in final eighth to win going away. UNHERALDED was rated close to pace of CHIEF CHEROKEE to midstretch, disposed of latter, but was no match for winner. CHIEF CHEROKEE was sent to front going to first turn, was rated while setting pace, but weakened suddenly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 6:00. Off 6:01. Winner, G. Ring's b. g. (3), by Wise Counsellor—Precedence. Trained by P. D. Watts. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:51 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHY TARRY, $9.00, $3.50, $2.90; AFFIRMATION, $2.60, $2.30; PLAY BY PLAY, $4.60.

WHY TARRY, sent to contention with rush while racing on outside of field leaving backstretch, assumed command inside eighth pole and responded to punishment to withstand closing bid of AFFIRMATION. The latter, rated for three-quarters, closed with bold rush on outside. PLAY BY PLAY disposed of ROCKY MEADOW to get to front, but weakened.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 6:30. Off 6:30½. Winner, L. EPITOME, rated while within striking distance of leaders to half-mile pole, moved up gradually and closed with rush to win under strong handling. BRAVING DANGER moved around on outside after a half and closed full of run. SCREEN set pace after opening furlong and fought it out stubbornly in closing test.

Cards Trim Cubs, 10 to 5

Loss Shoves Chicago Into Fourth Place.

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 29.—The St. Louis Cardinals shoved Chicago's Cubs down to fourth place in the National League today, converting a 15-hit attack on three pitchers into a 10 to 5 victory.

The Cards, paced at bat by Mickey Owen, who connected for a double and three singles, belted Bill Lee, ace of the Cub staff, out of action in the fourth and continued their assault against Jack Russell.

Wheat Lower With Favorable Crop Prospects

Securities Rise Acts as a Temporary Stimulus.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 29.—In a nervous late reaction from upturns of about a cent a bushel, the Chicago wheat market today more than lost the gains.

Jumps of securities were a transient stimulus to wheat values, but failed to exert lasting influence in the face of generally favorable conditions both for spring crop growth and the winter crop harvest. Word that black stem rust infection had developed in Manitoba Province, Canada, attracted only moderate notice. A disturbing factor was uncertainty over the showing which might be made by monthly unofficial crop estimates.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were unchanged to ⅜ lower, compared with yesterday's finish; July, 75¼; September, 76½@76⅝; corn unchanged to ⅜ higher; July, 57⅛@57¼; September, 58⅝@59¾; oats unchanged to ¼ off; rye ½ to 1 cent down, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents setback.

Stout Receives New Position in Banking Group

Field Secretary Created by Morris Plan Bankers.

Ralph W. Pitman, president of the Morris Plan Bankers Association, announced yesterday that Richard H. Stout, cashier of the Louisville Morris Plan Bank, has accepted the position of field secretary of the association. He will assume his duties July 1 and will have his headquarters in the national office in Washington. At the same time Pitman announced the appointment of Calvin C. Vane, of the national office staff, as assistant secretary of the association.

The position of field secretary is one newly created by the directors of the Morris Plan Bankers Association, the immediate object being special field surveys.

Mr. Stout is by education and experience unusually well equipped for the position he is assuming. After graduating from Centre College and completing a post-graduate course at Harvard, he began his banking career with the Louisville Trust Co. In 1926 he was one of the organizers of the Louisville Morris Plan Bank, becoming a director and cashier.

He has been very active in the work of the American Institute of Banking and is a past president of the Louisville Chapter of the A. I. B. He is a member of the Louisville and Kentucky Bar Associations.

The Morris Plan Bankers Association is the national organization through which the activities of locally owned and operated member banks throughout the United States are coordinated. The Morris Plan was the pioneer in banking for the individual, and was founded by Arthur J. Morris, of Norfolk, Va., in 1910.

Wash. Gas Co. Net Increases

The monthly report of the Washington Gas Light Co. filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission shows operating revenue of $593,588 for May this year compared with $604,769 for May last year, adecrease of $11,181.

Operating expenses for the month increased $9,799 from $458,948 last year to $468,747 this year, resulting in a net operating revenue of $124,841 last month, which compares with $145,821 for the same month last year.

After all deductions for interest and amortization, three was a net income of $47,664 compared with $84,740 for May last year. For the first five months of the current year, the net income was $708,534 compared with $625,708 for the same period last year.

The Market

By C. Norman Stabler, A Special Correspondent.

Stock Market Rally Is the Most Convincing of Recent Months; Rail Bonds Advance.

New York, June 29.—The upward swing in the stock market took a new lease on life today and it do so in such a definite manner that a few near term records were established. Brushing aside the irregularity of the last two days, which was created by profit taking on the part of traders who could not resist the profits they saw piled up last week, the list staged one of its most convincing rallies of recent months.

Trading of 2,658,690 shares made it the largest day on the big board since last October 29. A total of 947 individual issues appeared on the tape, the greatest number since last March 29. Sales of $11,552,000 in bonds were the largest for any day this year. And aside from the figures on volume, the extent of the rise was the most sensational in the current phase of the market.

The composite average of 100 representative stocks went ahead 1.90 points, the best gain since November 10, 1937. At its best for the day, this average was higher than for any time since February 23 of this year, the familiar bull market action, of rotating different groups for leadership, was in evidence.

New Highs Reached.

Blue chip stocks, represented largely by the manufacturing issues, went to a new high for the year as did the composite of the store and food stocks. Rails are still lagging behind. Odd lot transactions show a balance on the selling side, which indicates that some of the active traders are attempting to buck the trend by putting out odd lots on the short side.

Explanation for Rise.

A beauty of today's market was that business indices now coming to hand give the economists some explanation for the rise. A week ago, it is true, that certain popular indices of business showed minor upswings, but they were so small that the average Wall Street trader was caught by surprise. Certainly most of them were surprised by the extent of the advance.

But it appears that the stock market was in itself the best index of business, for now the old tried and true are coming along, showing the welcomed upward curves which the stock market first plotted.

The index of business shows its second consecutive weekly advance. The best performance is recorded by the index of production, a component part of the business index. This is sharply higher, under the influence of a notable expansion in building contracts. Part of the improvement must be ascribed to governmental contracts, for the major portion of this rise was accounted for by public works. The gain for the week in the production index was the best in more than a year. The building component was benefited by the highest total of highway awards in five years. Improvement was also noted in the indices of steel activity, electrical power output and commodity car loadings.

Building Stocks Standout.

Building stocks stood out in today's trading. Most active issue on the big board was American Radiator, which moved ahead 1⅝ points. One of the best gains was scored by Johns Manville, which advanced 6⅞, and United States Gypsum, normally inactive, soared 8½.

Gains of 1 to 6 points were well distributed among the speculative leaders. United States Steel added 3¾, Bethlehem 4 and Republic 1⅛. General Motors was up 1⅞ and Chrysler 4½. New York Central was the most active rail and closed up 1⅞. United States Rubber again stood out with a 3¾-point gain and Montgomery Ward was a leader of the stores, up 3½. Anaconda piloted the metals with a 1¾-point gain.

Rail Issues in Demand.

Advances were general in the listed bond market today, with low-priced carrier obligations leading the movement. The bullish atmosphere produced gains ranging to 5 points in the more speculative issues of rail bonds, and other issues that offer a possibility of appreciation in the event of a business upturn also were in demand. United States Treasury obligations remained in demand, and corporate bonds in the money market classification also improved. Foreign dollar issues were slightly better.

Medium-priced interest payers in the rail group were in keen demand. Issues of New York Central, Southern Pacific and similar systems surged forward 1 to 9 points. Higher grade liens that recently tumbled because of the poor rail outlook regained points between sales, on occasion. Default rails were traded heavily and at advancing levels, the cheapest issues being in greatest demand. The rail market still has a long way to go, however, before best levels of the year are within striking distance.

Steels Active.

Steel bonds were steadily in demand, with the convertibles especially active. Bethlehem Steel 3½s moved over the underwriting level of 95½ for the first time since issuance last year. Other industrial obligations also remained in favor. International Telephone 4½s, due next year, moved closer to par in active trading. Holding company bonds shared in the improvement, and even local tractions were somewhat better.

Long-term United States bonds showed gains to one-fourth of a point in active dealings. Institutions appeared satisfied that the stock activity will not occasion much liquidation of these money market issue, and orders were numerous from all parts of the country. Guaranteed bonds of the farm and home corporations joined the movement. Best rated utility, railroad and industrial bonds gained fractionally.

Best grade foreign issues of Australian, Canadian and Scandinavian origin held to former figures. Japanese and Italian bonds were dull. In the Latin-American default group small gains were the rule, with Cuban 5½s doing better than others as exchanges for new 4½s proceeded. Austrian 7s moved up on the further agitation against the German default.

Report Shows Foreigners Are Removing Cash

Nearly Billion Dollars Has Been Liquidated Since Recession Began.

By the Associated Press.

Foreigners have pulled nearly $1,000,000,000 of their capital funds out of the United States since our business recession began.

This was disclosed by a Treasury report yesterday. Although the withdrawals have been confined largely to short-term banking funds, a liquidation of American securities also was reported for the first quarter of this year. The second quarter of 1937 was the only other period in the last three years that foreigners were bearish on American securities.

Before the withdrawal of foreign funds began there had been a marked inflow of such funds. Between January 2, 1935, (earliest date for which statistics are available) and October 6, 1937, the net accumulation amounted to $3,925,877,000. By March 30, 1938, this had been reduced to $3,207,280,000, and, although official figures will not be available for three months, the Federal Reserve Board has stated the outflow continued and even grew in the second quarter of this year.

The Treasury made public today figures for the first quarter of 1938, showing that the trend of foreign securities buying switched from American securities to American-owned foreign securities.

Stock Trading Drops in May

The Securities and Exchange Commission reported yesterday that the dollar value of sales on all registered securities exchanges in May, 1938 amounted to $682,779,711, a decrease of 22.4 per cent from the value of sales in April and a decrease of 53.7 per cent from May, 1937. Stock sales, including rights and warrants, had a value of $566,394,727, a decrease of 24.5 per cent from April. Bond sales were valued at $116,394,351, a decrease of 9.7 per cent from April.

Total sales of stocks, including rights and warrants, in May were 26,634,898 shares or 25.5 per cent under April's total. Total principal amount of bonds sold was $161,697,470, a decrease of 10.6 per cent from April. The two leading New York exchanges accounted for 95.5 per cent of the value of all sales on registered exchanges, 94.6 per cent of stock sales and 99.9 per cent of bond sales. The total value of sales on all exempt exchanges was $517,911, an increase of 4.6 per cent over April.

On the Washington Stock Exchange May stock sales were $52,040 and bond sales $9,514, a total of $61,554, which compares with a total of $71,507 in April, made up of $44,613 in stocks and $26,894 in bonds.

Stock Seat $65,000, Advance of $7,000

New York, June 29 (AP).—Booming activity in the stock market in the past ten days was reflected today as arrangements were made to transfer a membership in the New York Stock Exchange at $65,000, up $7,000 from the previous sale.

This is the second advance since the value of a seat hit a 20-year low of $51,000 on June 15. The high price this year was $75,000 on January 12.

Continental Oil Plans $2,000,000 Pipe Line

New York, June 29 (AP).—Continental Oil Co. plans to construct a $2,000,000 six-inch welded pipe line from the Lance Creek, Wyoming, field to the company's refinery at Denver, it was announced today.

The line would cover a distance of 245 miles and would have a daily capacity of around 10,000 barrels.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, June 29 (AP). (United States Department of Agriculture)—Sizeable quantities of Western-grown wools were being taken today by a number of mills. Business included orders for some graded territory wools, to be delivered as soon as grading can be done. Fine territory wools in original bag were being moved at 62@63 cents, scoured basis, for good French combing lengths. Twelve-month Texas wools were bringing 60 to 62 cents, scoured basis, on a fair turnover.

August 1 Is Set As Personal Tax Returns Limit

Assessor Lists Tangible, Intangible Articles Subject to Levy.

Personal property tax returns may be filed at any time in July and on August 1, Tax Assessor Fred D. Allen announced yesterday. The last day for filing returns usually is July 31, but since this is a Sunday the time is automatically extended one day.

Allen said his office had mailed 50,000 tax return blanks, but anyone not receiving a blank by tomorrow is requested to communicate with the Personal Tax Office, either by mail or by phone, for an additional blank.

Tangible personal property consists of stock in trade, fixtures, implements, equipment, supplies, household furnishings, livestock, boats and jewelry, and any other tangible property, including automobile trailers, located in the District, all subject to taxation.

Household furnishings, furniture, draperies, silverware, rugs and carpets, if in use, are exempt up to $1,000 in value, but not if rented out or in storage.

Intangible property is money in the bank or in one's possession, shares of stock, mortgages, notes, chattel mortgages, stocks and bonds. The valuation of all of this property, he said, must be as of July 1, 1938.

Persons having deposits in local building associations should ascertain if their money is on deposit or if it is in shares of stock. Money on deposit is taxable in any amount over $500, whereas shares of stock are subpect to exemption under the personal tax law.

Allen said any persons having a marginal account, in which they only have an equity, must file a personal tax return on the total amount of the securities, not on their equitable interest.

Allen pointed out the tangible personal tax is deductible only from the business privilege after the personal tax is paid, as the law requires one-half during the month of September, 1938, and the second half during March, 1939, or the entire amount may be paid during the month of September, 1938.

Troopers Warned Not to Interfere In County Cases

Baltimore, June 29 (AP).—Maj. Elmer F. Munshower, State police superintendent, said today his officers were under general orders to participate in no county criminal investigations or routine police work unless requested to do so by county authorities.

Maj. Munshower, replying to queries specifically concerning Allegany County, said the "situation" there was possibly "worse" than in other counties.

"It's gotten so that our men are called by citizens to go out on routine alarms, such as fights and disturbances," he explained. "I have ordered State officers to make no arrests or raids in local jurisdictions unless they are asked to do so by the authorities and are accompanied by a local officer."

Roosevelt Vetoes Compensation for Maryland People

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt today vetoed a bill which would have paid idemnities to a group of persons and firms who claimed they were damaged by the establishment of the Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland.

The claimants said they suffered loss of business and other damages as a consequence of the bombing of Army field guns and the low flying military planes.

The President, citing court decisions, said it had not been the Federal Government's practice to pay consequential damages incident to a public undertaking. He expressed belief damages were paid for land taken over for the proving ground.

Two-Month Relief Fund of $133,333 Allotted by State

Richmond, Va., June 29 (AP).—A State fund totaling $133,333 was available to cities and towns of Virginia today for local relief from July 1 to September 1.

Allocations were announced yesterday by State Welfare Commissioner William H. Stauffer. The localities must match the State money with 60 per cent appropriations amounting to $79,999.89.

The amounts allocated to counties and towns near Washington and the amounts the locality must appropriate are: Arlington County, $1,465.27, with the county appropriating $879.16; Fairfax County (State), $1,390.43; county, $834.53; Fauquier, $1,160.66 and $696.03; Loudoun, $1,092.24 and $655.76; Alexandria, $1,329.50 and city, $797.70.

100,000 Farmers Served by Co-Op

Richmond, Va., June 29 (AP).—Dr. T. K. Wolfe, director of distribution for the Southern States Cooperative, in a speech here yesterday said 750 retail agencies make supplies of the co-operative available to 100,000 farmers of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia.

Dr. Wolfe spoke at the closing session of the Southern States Universtiy, a training school for cooperative leaders.

A meeting to elect a director to the board of the co-operative will be held in Baltimore, July 7.

Compromise Proffered In Bay Span Dispute

Ocean City, Md., June 29 (AP).—Next move in the Sinepuxent Bay bridge controversy was left to the State roads commission tonight following a compromise proposal that the new $450,000 span be located at the north edge of the resort city and that the State agree to improve and maintain the present bridge.

Amateur Champion and Bride

Cashing of Stolen WPA Check Convicts Two of Safe's Theft

A $21.20 WPA check in a stolen 1,500-pound safe yesterday brought about the conviction of two men in U. S. District Court on charges of housebreaking and larceny and sentences of from 3 to 15 years and 2 to 10 years, respectively, on each count.

The men are Carmen G. Quantrille, 32, formerly of 1393 F street northeast, and Henry R. Milton, 35, formerly of 3111 Seventh street northeast. They were charged with breaking into the Washington Beef & Provision Co., Inc., 1110 E street southwest, last September.

The heavy safe and contents, valued at $1,000, with the exception of the check, have never been recovered by the police, and Assistant U. S. Attorneys Cecil R. Heflin and John W. Jackson built their case entirely on the check.

The men were trapped, testimony disclosed, when Milton took the check, which the provision company had cashed for a WPA worker, to a gasoline service station attendant and got it cashed. An indorsement by "James Conroy" was traced by handwriting experts to Quantrille.

Detective Sergt. Frank O. Brass, who developed the case for the Government, is a former top sergeant of the U. S. Marines, and Milton was a private in his company.

Fusionists Short Of Candidates in Montgomery Race

Montgomery County's Fusion Party, which controls most of the county patronage, virtually dissolved itself last night.

Three hundred delegates to a party meeting at the courthouse in Rockville adjourned subject to indefinite call after hearing a report from its campaign committee that the committee had been "unable to secure a satisfactory group of candidates to run on the fusion ticket."

The report was submitted by B. Peyton Whalen and F. Bernard Welsh for a committee comprised of eight antiorganization Democrats and eight Republicans.

Shortly after hearing the report the delegates adjourned to meet "on call," but no time for another meeting was set and no one was authorized to call it.

Low Bid Is $49,220 On College Project

Fredericksburg, Va., June 29 (AP).—Blackwell Engineering and Construction Co., of Richmond, was low bidder today on the contract for enlargement and remodeling of Chandler Hall at Mary Washington College to provide additional class rooms.

Their bid of $49,220 was the lowest of seven submitted, all by Richmond firms.

Dr. Morgan L. Combs, college president, said construction would begin at once with completion due in time for opening of the fall session.

Governor Price Lauds Roosevelt As Humanitarian

Farmville, Va., June 29 (AP).—Gov. Price said here last night that "After an impressive and dynamic first term, Roosevelt remains still the greatest friend of mankind."

Addressing a public meeting sponsored by the Prince Edward County Young Democrats, Price said the Democratic Administration has been a "social period and a humanitarian era by whatever catchname it is described.

"The Government used to be concerned only with fiscal affairs and the preservation of financial resources. To this it has now added cultural and spiritual values."

He also sketched the work of the 1938 General Assembly, which he described as "the workingest" he had ever seen.

2nd Victim Dies In Hearse Crash

Warrenton, Va., June 29 (AP).—Bruce Baver, 24, of Candler, N. C., died in the Fauquier County Hospital last night of injuries suffered in a highway collision near Gainesville, which also killed Frank Gosselin, about 25, of Asheville, N. C.

Hospital attendants said today there was no improvement in the condition of two others injured in the accident—R. L. Moser, of Warrenton, and Horace Gardiner, 26, of eWaverville, N. C.

The Carolinians' automobile was in collision yesterday afternoon with a hearse driven by Moser, Warrenton undertaker, who was returning from Washington with the body of a colored man.

Scientists Offer Remade World If Given Peace

Urey and Compton Declare War May Destroy Man's Progress.

By the Associated Press

Ottawa, June 29.—Chemistry and physics can remake the world's civilization, two of America's outstanding Nobel Prize winners told the Association for the advancement of Science today, if men and nations abandon "cowardly" wars as a solution of economic problems.

Dr. Harold C. Urey, of Columbia University, and Dr. Arthur H. Compton, of the University of Chicago, accepted for science much of the blame for economic upsets, unemployment, depressions and social and political revolutions in recent years.

However, they declared the world should not lose faith in a greater and happier life which scientific developments promise.

Urey declared "chemistry can and perhaps will destroy our European civilization because of its contributions of new explosives, incendiary bombs and poison gases."

On the other hand, "If we act with courage our descendants will live in an abundance of necessities and luxuries the like of which we cannot imagine," he added.

Dr. Compton called electric power and machinery "vital to the world's existence," and said the use of X-rays is of constantly growing value. He declared "A century from now . . . X-rays and the developments consequent upon them will have become of a significance comparable with that of electricity today."

But even the most modern developments are comparatively crude if man takes full advantage of the opportunities ahead he added. "There appears no reason to fear man's inability to find an adequate new supply of energy" from within the atom before the energy of the sun is dissipated, the Chicago scientist said.

Livestock Medal Again Offered as 4-H Prize

College Park, Md., June 29 (AP).—The Thomas E. Wilson gold medal for the 4-H Club member doing outstanding livestock work is being offered again this year, E. G. Jenkins, State Boys Club agent, said today.

The prize will be awarded by club leaders at the close of the feeding and showing season. Reports of county winners must be submitted by October 15.

Gray Veteran, 86, Visits Place Where Ear Was Shot Off

Richmond, Va., June 29 (AP).—Frank M. Ironmonger, 86-year-old Confederate veteran, passed through Richmond today en route to the Blue and Gray celebration at Gettysburg and said he was "almost afraid to get off the train, because, you know, the Yankees darn near caught me here once."

"The sons of guns shot my ear off, too," he said. Then he asked, "Sure there ain't any Yankees out there now?"

Ironmonger, who lives in Jacksonville, Fla., said he was able to enter the army because he was large for his years.

Capt. Eyston Off for U. S.

Southampton, England, June 29 (AP).—Capt. George Eyston, British auto racer, sailed today on the Queen Mary for the United States, where he will make another attempt to break his own world's speed record of 312.20 miles per hour on the Bonneville flats in Utah. Sir Malcolm Campbell saw him off.

Notice is hereby given that the Assessor of the District of Columbia has caused to be prepared blank schedule for personal property subject to taxation as required by the Act of Congress, approved July 1, 1902, imposing a tax on personal property in the District of Columbia, as amended by Acts of Congress approved September 1, 1916; March 3, 1917; June 30, 1922; July 3, 1926, and February 15, 1929, and that a copy of said schedule will be delivered to any citizen applying therefor at this office. The law requires such schedules to be properly filled out, sworn to and returned to the Assessor during the month of July, 1938. This law will be strictly enforced by the Board of Personal Tax Appraisers, F. D. ALLEN, Assessor, D. C. 28,29,30

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, June 20, 1938. A public hearing having been held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the matter of closing part of Michigan avenue west of Eighteenth street northeast, considered in connection with a dedication of certain area for highway purposes in this vicinity, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closing, and that the same is in the public interests and not detrimental to the interests of abutting property owners, notice is hereby given that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order: "Ordered that pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 13, 1923, a part of Michigan avenue northeast, on the southerly side, lying immediately west of Eighteenth street, is hereby ordered closed, as shown on plat filed in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia numbered as Map 2058-A, same to take effect on and after July 20, 1938, the title to the land comprised within the part of Michigan avenue so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said map; and in connection therewith a dedication is provided for the acquisition of additional street area at Michigan avenue and Bunker Hill road northeast, and for the widening of Bunker Hill road on the northerly side, west of Eighteenth street northeast." And and all parties interested must file objections in writing, if any, to said closing before the effective date of above order; otherwise said order shall become effective on July 20, 1938, as aforesaid, and said part of said avenue shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said Act. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, DAN I. SULTAN, Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

Bob Burns Says—

I suppose we all have'ta have some principles to follow and stick up for but I imagine if you could get up high enough to get a bird's-eye view of the whole world, you'd find that some of us are pretty narrow.

I was over at a politician's house the other night and he kept talkin' about a certain fella bein' a traitor and finally his little boy spoke up and says, "Papa, what is a traitor?" The politician says, "A traitor is a man who leaves our party and goes over to the other side."

The son says, "Well, suppose a fella leaves the other side and joins your party—is he a traitor?" The politician says, "Oh, no, he's a convert."

Police Shakeup Follows Birth Of Precinct 13

Boundaries of 6 Districts Changed; 150 Officers, Men Transferred.

Boundaries of six police precincts were changed and more than 150 officers and men were transferred by Maj. Ernest W. Brown yesterday.

The chief of police said the wholesale changes were only "routine," brought about by the establishment of the new precinct—the Thirteenth.

The Second Precinct was cut practically in half by the reorganizaion. Its boundaries which formerly ran from K to Euclid streets northwest, Fifteenth street northwest to Second street northeast, were cut to extend from K street northwest to S street. The east and west boundaries remain the same.

Capt. James E. Bobo, commander of the old Second Precinct, was named to command the Thirteenth Precinct. It will stretch from S street northwest to Euclid street, and from Rock Creek Park to Second street northeast and North Capitol street.

Also from the Second Precinct to the new station will go Lieuts. Clarence H. Lutz and C. J. P. Weber. The Second Precinct will be under the command of Capt. Jeremiah Sullivan, Fourth Precinct, and Lieuts. Clyde N. Strange and Nelson O. Holmes.

The Third Precinct loses about a quarter of its former territory by the change. Its boundaries, which ran from Potomac Park to Calvert street northwest, have been cut to S street northwest. The old boundaries of Rock Creek Park and Fifteenth street northwest remain the same.

Tenth Precinct Also Changed.

The Tenth Precinct limits were changed and now circle the McMillan Reservoir from Fairmont street to Michigan avenue northwest, instead of passing through the reservoir.

Boundaries of the Ninth Precinct were straightened to run along New York and Florida avenues to Second street northeast, instead of along First street northeast.

Capt. Oscar J. Letterman, promoted Tuesday, will take command of the Fourth Precinct, where he served as a lieutenant.

Sergts. John E. Scott, Thomas Mason, jr., and John L. Norris, promoted to lieutenants, will be placed in the Fifth Precinct, Hack Inspectors' office, and Eleventh Precinct, respectively.

Six sergeants promoted were assigned as follows: Ray Aggleson, Sixth to First Precinct; William H. Hinson, Third to Thirteenth Precinct; Maurice F. Prestelle, Second to Twelfth Precinct; Thomas C. Kelleher, Eighth to Seventh Precinct; Joseph P. Comisky, to remain at Fourth Precinct, and George C. Deyoe to remain on vice squad.

Other sergeants who received different assignments are James M. Larkins, Second to Thirteenth; Paul Sullivan, Second to Thirteenth; Paul L. Barnes, Second to administrative headquarters; Robert A. Johnson, Second to administrative headquarters; John R. Leach, Fourth to Second; Marshall R. Gore, Twelfth to administrative headquarters, and Beverly C. Beach, Seventh to administrative headquarters.

Shift in Detective Squad.

Precinct Detectives Frank M. White, Frederick B. Asho and Frank Ashley were sent to the Thirteenth Precinct from the Second Precinct. Precinct Detective James G. Austin and Sigurd Ostenso were assigned to the Second Precinct. Precinct Detective Richard E. Williams was also assigned to the Second Precinct.

Precinct Detective James C. Collins, Third Precinct, was sent to the Second Precinct; Precinct Detective Fred L. Rawlinson assigned to duty as detective sergeant and transferred from the First Precinct to Detective Bureau, and Precinct Detective Frank Smith was sent from the Second to the Twelfth Precinct.

Private Archie B. Clothier was sent from the Fourth Precinct to the Sixth Precinct.

Private Earl A. Hersley, First Precinct, was sent to the Fourth Precinct.

Three Famous Folk Flash Broad Bon Voyage Smiles

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS.

2 Boys Testify Against Father In Wife Slaying

One Cries in Parent's Arms After Giving Damaging Testimony.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., June 29.—The two solemn-eyed, sad-faced young sons of James Clifton Abdell, on trial for murder after the death of his wife May 11, testified against their 41-year-old father today.

A few minutes later a slim, smartly dressed brunette, who gave her name as Mrs. Anne Dunn Williams, admitted on the witness stand she had lived with Abdell under an assumed name about a year. She told the jurors he was in her room in Norfolk at 3 a. m. the day the battered body of 38-year-old Audrey Sharpe Abdell was found in the gas-filled kitchen of the Abdell home. The body was found late in the afternoon.

Abdell himself, alternately nervous and calm during the trial as Commonwealth Attorney John M. Arnold presented direct testimony against him during the entire session of court, is expected to tell his story tomorrow, when the defense attorneys, W. H. Venable and Ivor A. Page, jr., reveal the nature of their defense.

Father Away "Year or Two."

Thirteen-year-old Robert Sharpe Abdell, his sandy hair neatly brushed and his blue eyes weighted with concern, told his story in a boyish voice from the witness stand while his father looked at him fondly. The lad was direct with his answers.

"How long do you suppose it has been since your father spent the night at your home?" he was asked.

"Oh, I guess it's been about a year or two," the boy answered.

"Robert, did your mother ever tell you goodby?" asked Judge R. B. Spindle.

"Yes, sir, she told me goodby."

"What kind of condition was your mother in when you left for school that morning?" Tyler asked.

"She was well and happy," Robert answered.

As the boy came down from the witness stand he passed within an arm's reach of his father, and both suddenly were in each other's arms. The lad's face clouded with tears that he tried to repress, but his father cried openly, hugging his boy to him.

Deputy Removes Boy.

"We can have no demonstration in the courtroom," Judge Spindle said, and Deputy Sergt. T. E. Leesnitzer took the boy from the courtroom.

James Clifton Abdell, jr., 15, now living with relatives in Roanoke, where his mother is buried, told the jurors that he heard his father tell his mother that "one day she would be among the missing."

"Did he say anything else to frighten her?" Tyler asked.

"Yes, he told her there were plenty of people you could get to do things for you cheap this time."

The older boy admitted that he had been suspended from school this year for truancy. He said that his father threatened to take him to the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court.

"You threatened to kill your father?"

"Yes, sir."

James W. Lawlor's Funeral Tomorrow

Last rites for James W. Lawlor, 80, retired clerk of the Southern Railroad, who died Tuesday at his home, 4509 Fifteenth street northwest, will be held in the Shrine of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock with burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Lawlor was a native of Rochester, N. Y., and lived in Virginia before he came to Washington. He entered the Southern 60 years ago, in the days of wood-burning locomotives, and he was retired in March, 1937. He was a member of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church and the Holy Name Society.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Annie Lawlor; two daughters, Miss Ella M. Lawlor, of Washington, and Mrs. I. Joseph Farley, of Detroit; two sons, William Leo Lawlor, of Washington, and James Thomas Lawlor, of Atlanta, Ga.; a sister, Mrs. Agnes Ivy, of Catlett, Va., and five grandchildren.

Rites Set Today For W.T. Burrows, Union 'Volunteer'

Funeral services for William Tyson Burrows, 83, retired stone contractor and native Washingtonian, who died of a heart attack Tuesday at his home, 4426 Grant road northwest, will be held at his residence today at 10 a. m., followed by burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery. The Rev. Walter M. Michael, pastor of the Eldbrooke Methodist Episcopal Church, will officiate.

Mr. Burrows was the son of Probert Burrows, who lived to be 96, and the grandson of Mrs. Alegia Queen, who died at the age of 101.

At the age of 8 he ran away from home to be with the Union soldiers, and no word was heard of him until several months later, when he was returned home by the troops. Fifty-four years ago he was married to Miss Helen Harry, of Washington, and brought her as his bride to the home he had built and in which he died. He was a Mason and a member of the Jonadabs.

Besides his widow, Mr. Burrows is survived by six children, Mrs. Florence Heath, Mrs. Edna Kelly, Mrs. Lois Hines and John Bradley Burrows, all of Washington, and William Bernard Burrows, of Spartanburg, S. C., and Mrs. S. Galin Hyder, of Biltmore, N. C. He also leaves 11 grandchildren, among whom is Dr. Harris Fletcher, of Washington.

Roosevelt Will Meet Strike at Fairgrounds

New York, June 29.—President Roosevelt, who will lay the cornerstone of the Federal building at the site of the New York World's Fair of 1939 in Flushing Meadows, Queens, tomorrow, and later address the international program of the National Education Association at the fair grounds, will find construction activity at the exposition virtually paralyzed by a strike, it was learned last night.

Local No. 3, of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, called the strike tonight as a result of a jurisdictional dispute with the New York Telephone Co.

Anti-Fascist Pickets Denounce Jose Iturbi

New York, June 29.—Seven detectives rushed Jose Iturbi, Spanish conductor, into Lewisohn Stadium tonight past pickets bearing signs denouncing him as a fascist and asking a boycott of his concerts.

Joseph M. Martinez, in charge of the picket line, said the demonstration was a result of Iturbi's refusal for the last fortnight to define his stand on the rebel bombings of women and children in Spanish cities.
